(Zech.12:3 & 9 - The Burdensome Stone)

Headline: As Fatah fades, UN recognition of Palestine may eventually benefit Hamas

Headline: Hamas, Jihad in 'Mini-flipflop' Over Statehood Bid

Thursday night, Nov. 29, the UN General Assembly grants Palestine non-member observer status within 1967 borders by a majority vote. Israeli Prime Minister Benjamin Netanyahu has tried dismissing this upgrade as meaningless – awarding its initiator Mahmoud Abbas (Abu Mazen) nothing more than a small town sheriff’s badge. But the fact remains that this status and those borders are on the books, no matter which Palestinian government is in power, Abbas’s Fatah which rules the West Bank from Ramallah or the extremist Hamas in the Gaza Strip. And Israel now has a new headache, especially if the Palestinian entity seeks membership of the International War Crimes Court in The Hague. For now, the Palestinians are treading carefully. They say they won’t apply as yet. However, by having Yasser Arafat’s remains exhumed in a grand military ceremony, for samples to be tested for poison in Paris and Moscow, they have set a road sign pointing to The Hague.

The United Nations is expected to pass a resolution on Thursday to admit the PLO as a non-member state and recognize the “right of the Palestinian people to self-determination and to independence in their State of Palestine on the Palestinian territory occupied since 1967,” even though its regulations require a state to have a functioning government within borders under international agreement. The Palestinian Authority, the administrative body of the PLO, also does not satisfy U.N. requirements that it have a functioning government over the presumed borders. PA Chairman Mahmoud Abbas has ruled from the PA capital of Ramallah more than two years beyond the prescribed date for new presidential elections, and the legislature has not functioned for years following the Hamas parliamentary victory in the first and only parliamentary elections.

IDF officials predicted on Wednesday evening that no unusual disturbances will take place Thursday night, other than a few gatherings in Area C. On Friday, the IDF believes, PA Arabs will try to escalate the violence but it is believed this will be "at a level that is not different from the reality we have seen recently."

Headline: Morsi's dilemma in Egypt bad news for Jordan's Islamists

As the political scene in Egypt continues to unfold, the Muslim Brotherhood movement's leaders in Jordan struggle to disassociate themselves from their Egyptian peers, advocating a narrative focused on the so-called "Moroccan option" for reform rather than the Egyptian scenario. Last week, Egyptian President Mohamed Morsi declared unilaterally that until a new constitution is decreed all presidential decisions would be immune from legal challenge, triggering a wave of protests across the country, and setting him on course for a showdown with Egypt's judges as well as other political rivals. But despite the dramatic events in Egypt, Abu Rumman said, the Muslim Brotherhood leaders in Jordan continue to reiterate their demands to apply the Moroccan scenario, where Islamist party leaders formed the government after winning a majority of parliamentary seats, rather than the Egyptian option in terms of the political reform they have been calling for.

Headline: Cash crisis, Arab ferment threaten Jordan's stability

Headline: Jordan secures financial assistance from Saudi Arabia

Violent protests that shocked Jordan this month have mostly subsided, but unprecedented chants for the "fall of the regime" suggested a deeper malaise in a kingdom so far spared the revolts reshaping the Arab world. Anger over fuel subsidy cuts undoubtedly drove the unrest, in which police shot dead one man during a confrontation at a police station. The government's planned electricity price rises starting next year may well ignite more popular fury. King Abdullah has made some constitutional reforms and his counsellors say turnout at a parliamentary poll in January will test public support for the pace of political change amid an acute financial crisis that has forced Jordan to go to the IMF.

Future bloc reiterates call for government to resign

The Lebanese opposition's Future bloc reiterated its call on Thursday for the current government backed by Hezbollah to resign. "The bloc reiterates its call for the current government run and controlled by Hezbollah to resign," the Future bloc said in a statement issued following its weekly meeting. "This government is raising tension, corruption, and looting especially with the recent forged pharmaceuticals scandal, the ranks and salaries system issue, drug trafficking, irresponsibility in the power and communication sectors, and many more" Political tension has been on the rise since the announcement made by March 14 in late October to cut all ties with the government of Prime Minister Najib Miqati after the specter of political assassinations returned to Lebanon.

Hezbollah Secretary-General Nasrallah Threatens Thousands Of Missiles All Over Israel If It Attacks Lebanon

"If Israel was shocked and confused when a few Fajr-5 missiles landed on Tel Aviv, I would like to say today – and this may be the first time I say it so clearly, to friend and foe: I want our friends to know that this enemy has been deterred, and I want this enemy to know what will await it if it even thinks about attacking Lebanon. "Israel was shaken by a few Fajr-5 missiles, which could be counted on the fingers of one's hand, in the course of eight days. So how will it be able to withstand the thousands of missiles that will land on Tel Aviv and elsewhere, if it attacks Lebanon?"

Egypt assembly votes on constitution

Egypt's opposition protest on Friday to reject constitutional declaration, draft constitution

The Islamist-dominated assembly writing a new Egyptian constitution has convened to vote on the final draft. In one of its first steps, the constituent assembly voted to keep sharia, or Islamic law, as the main source of legislation. It came after the constitutional court said it would rule on Sunday whether to dissolve the assembly. Egypt's judiciary is in a stand-off with President Mohammed Morsi after he granted himself sweeping new powers. Mr Morsi is scheduled to address the nation on television on Thursday evening. His decree last week has sparked huge protests across the country. Liberal, left-wing and Christian members have boycotted the assembly, accusing the Islamists of trying to impose their vision.

Headline: Clashes block access to U.S. Embassy

The U.S. Embassy in Cairo closed Thursday after fighting between protesters and police blocked access to the building. The clashes stem from Egyptian President Mohammed Morsi's refusal to back away from a showdown over his decree granting himself near absolute power, CBS News reported. CBS said the protesters were targeting riot police, not the U.S. Embassy in the confrontations occurring near the diplomatic compound. Most embassy staff were gone, and the embassy was closed for all American citizen services, officials said.

Jeremiah 49:24-27

New King James Version (NKJV)

- 24 Damascus has grown feeble;
She turns to flee,
And fear has seized her.
Anguish and sorrows have taken her like a woman in labor.
- 25 Why is the city of praise not deserted, the city of My joy?
- 26 Therefore her young men shall fall in her streets,
And all the men of war shall be cut off in that day," says the LORD of hosts.
- 27 "I will kindle a fire in the wall of Damascus,
And it shall consume the palaces of Ben-Hadad."<sup>[a]</sup>

The burden of Damascus. Behold, Damascus is taken away from being a city, and it shall be a ruinous heap.

Headline: New page in Syria war as rebel missiles hit aircraft

Syrian rebels have acquired as many as 40 shoulder-fired missile systems in recent weeks to counter assaults by Syrian military aircraft, introducing a possibly decisive new weapon into the conflict, Western and Middle Eastern intelligence officials say. The potential impact of the missiles on the 20-month-old civil war was demonstrated Tuesday with the dramatic downing of a Syrian helicopter, blasted from the sky near Aleppo by what military experts say was almost certainly a portable anti-aircraft missile. The Obama administration has steadfastly opposed arming Syrian opposition forces with such missiles, warning that the weapons could fall into the hands of terrorists and be used to shoot down commercial aircraft.

Headline: Assad regime cuts Internet across Syria

Headline: Syrian air strike kills 15 in Aleppo, activists say

The Syrian government shut down the Internet across the country and cut cellphone services in select areas on Thursday as rebels and government troops waged fierce battles near the capital's airport, forcing international airlines to suspend flights, activists said. The Internet blackout, confirmed by two U.S.-based companies that monitor online connectivity, is unprecedented in Syria's 20-month-old uprising against President Bashar Assad. Regime forces have suffered a string of tactical defeats in recent weeks, losing air bases and other strategic facilities, and the blackout may be an attempt by the government to dull any further rebel offensives by hampering communications.

Bombs mainly targeting Shiite Muslims and security forces in Iraq killed 45 people and wounded 205 others on Thursday in the deadliest day of violence to hit the country in more than two months. The attacks, the worst since 76 people were killed on September 9, included the second series of bombings against Shiites this week, after three car bombs exploded near their places of worship in Baghdad on Tuesday, killing a dozen and wounding scores more. The Thursday violence brings the number of people killed in attacks this month to at least 152 -- 16 more than in October, according to an AFP tally based on security and medical sources. That reversed a three-month trend of declining death tolls. Two roadside bombs targeted a group of Shiite pilgrims in the city of Hilla, police said. The EU commission Wednesday published its vision for a "genuine" economic and monetary union (EMU) under which national budgets could be vetoed and a central European budget would allow transfers for troubled countries. The 52-page blueprints emphasises the need for the eurozone to be able to "integrate quicker and deeper" than the rest of the EU, with the eurozone now largely seen as paying for being established as a political project without the fundamental economic and financial structures to back it up.

Consumer spending in the U.S. grew less than forecast in the third quarter, underscoring why Federal Reserve policy makers are zeroing in on fighting unemployment to spur the world's largest economy. Household purchases climbed at a 1.4 percent rate, the smallest gain in more than a year and down from a previously reported 2 percent advance, revised figures from the Commerce Department showed today in Washington. Gains in inventories and a smaller trade deficit more than offset the slowdown to propel gross domestic product to a 2.7 percent rate, exceeding the 2 percent pace previously reported. A lawsuit seeking the removal of a Jesus statue near a Montana ski resort will go on after a national group of atheists and agnostics produced a local member who says he is offended by the religious symbol whenever he swooshes down the slopes. The Knights of Columbus and four individuals had asked a judge to throw out the legal challenge because the Wisconsin-based Freedom From Religion Foundation had not named anyone actually harmed by the statue on federal land next to Whitefish

Headline: Moscow records heaviest November snow for 50 years

Officials in the Russian capital have called in 12,000 snow-removal vehicles to help combat the effects of the snow on the city's transport system but, in spite of lengthy efforts to minimise disruption, traffic jams have been reported to stretch back several kilometres on Moscow's roads. "I was speaking with the forecasters, and it's been more than 50 years since Moscow's seen something like this," said Deputy Mayor Pyotr Biryukov on a television interview. Further to gridlock in the city, flights from Moscow's airports have also faced major delays overnight. The capital's largest airport, Domodedovo, experienced over 70 flight delays, but was back to regular service by 5 a.m.

Headline: Deadly storms, tornadoes hit Italy

Fierce storms, blamed for four deaths, buffeted Italy Thursday, causing flooding and landslides that snarled transportation, officials said. Officials said three people died and one was hospitalized in critical condition after a tornado tossed their car into another lane Wednesday, slamming it into another vehicle, the ANSA news agency reported. Police said the driver of the second vehicle was killed on impact. In Tuscany, the regional government declared a state of emergency and sought financial assistance from the national government after flooding caused mudslides that covered roads and damaged homes throughout the region for the second time in as many weeks.

The Arab Spring in Prophecy

(Perilous Times Luke 21:9 & Nation against Nation, Kingdom against Kingdom Matt.24:7)
(Revelation 6:3-4 Revelation 6:8)

“For nation shall rise against nation,
and kingdom against kingdom.
There will be earthquakes in various places, and there will be famines and sedition; these are the beginning of the labor pains.”

Mark 13:8

UNREST

Luke 21:9 and Matthew 24:7 speak of nation against nation and kingdom against kingdom in the end times. Revelation 6:3-4 speaks of the fiery red horse given power to make men slay one another and Revelation 6:8 speaks again of this red horse in conjunction with the pale horse of Death and Hades, as the one that has the power to kill by sword. I like to call this “The Arab Spring in Prophecy” because for us it is easy to identify- that’s what the world calls it.

Luke 21:9: wars & commotions; the Greek word here is Akatastasia, meaning instability, a state of disorder, disturbance, confusion (revolutions)

Matthew 24:7: the Greek word for nation is Ethnos & refers to various ethnic groups fighting among themselves, where the next sentence in the verse refers to kingdoms (basileiva) fighting one another (not to be confused with an actual kingdom but rather the right or authority to rule over a kingdom) I have tried to separate it into areas that sweep EAST from the point of North America.

Headline: Brazilians rally in Rio over controversial oil revenue bill

Some 200,000 Brazilians have staged a demonstration in the city of Rio de Janeiro to demand that President Dilma Rousseff veto a plan on redistribution of oil revenues of Rio to non-oil producing states in the country. “I’m here in Rio’s defense and against injustice,” a protester said during the protest held on Monday. The protestors called on Rousseff to block the bill that has been approved by the country’s Congress. The president has until Friday, November 30, to make her decision about the bill.

Headline: African Union asks UN for immediate action on Mali

United Nations Secretary General Ban Ki-moon has warned against a hasty military intervention in northern Mali, saying it could lead to a humanitarian crisis. "I am profoundly aware that if a military intervention in the north is not well conceived and executed, it could worsen an already fragile humanitarian situation and also result in severe human rights abuses," Ban said, adding that a military operation should be seen as a last resort in helping the government in its battle with militants. "Fundamental questions on how the force would be led, sustained, trained, equipped and financed remain unanswered," the UN chief said.

Headline: Congo rebels pulling back; fate of Goma uncertain

Rebels who last week seized Goma, one of the most important cities in eastern Congo, said they had pulled back slightly and were on track to leave the city by Friday, in accordance with a deadline imposed by the international community. The apparent withdrawal of the M23 rebels indicates that international pressure may have succeeded in reversing the rebel advance and staved off what could have been the start of a new war between the enormous, jungle-covered nation of Congo and its much smaller and more affluent neighbor, Rwanda. The M23 rebels are widely believed to be financially and militarily backed by Rwanda, which is accused of using rebel groups to gain access to the mines that dot eastern Congo.

Headline: Yemenis stage demo against Saleh's relatives in power

Yemenis have taken to the streets to call on the government to dismiss the relatives of former dictator Ali Abdullah Saleh. The demonstration was staged in the Yemeni capital Sana'a on Wednesday. The protesters also renewed calls for the trial of Saleh and demanded that their revolutionary goals be fulfilled. Earlier in the day, unidentified gunmen shot dead a Saudi Arabian diplomat and his bodyguard in the city's southern district of Hada, an area which is home to diplomatic residences and embassies.

Headline: Burma Mine Protesters Attacked Ahead of Suu Kyi Visit

Opposition leader Aung San Suu Kyi visited Letpadaung mountain in upper Burma today to talk to villagers where a Chinese copper mine has caused a land rights dispute between farmers and the Burmese government. The government attacked protesters at the proposed area of expansion of the mine, leaving several monks injured. Riot police early Thursday moved in to disperse protesters at three camps at the Letpadaung copper mines, near Mandalay in upper Burma. Injured monks and villagers who retreated to a nearby monastery the following morning were seen with singed robes and skin. But the president's office issued a statement denying it used chemical weapons.
