Palestinian mobs took to the streets Thursday after a female Israeli soldier shot and killed a young Palestinian man who had threatened one of her subordinates with what turned out to be a fake gun. The incident occurred on Wednesday night in the Judean town of Hebron. The Palestinian man came to the Israeli army checkpoint outside the Cave of the Patriarchs, and handed over his ID card as requested. The female officer at the center of the scandal went inside to run a background check, and after returning found the Arab choking one of her soldiers and holding a hand gun to his head. Acting instinctively, the officer said she looked for a clean shot that would avoid hitting the other soldier. When such a shot presented itself, she took it. Only in the ensuing investigation of the scene did army officials discover that the gun used by the Arab man was not a real firearm. Political and army officials defended the officer's actions, insisting that she could not have known the assailant's gun was fake, and certainly should not be expected to risk both her and the other soldier's lives to find out. Palestinian Authority Arabs rioted Thursday in Hebron, where they hurled rocks and bottles at Israeli soldiers. IDF troops responded with mob control methods that included the use of tear gas. There were no reports of serious injuries, according to local sources, who said that nearly a hundred protesters had attempted to storm the IDF troops. A damaging video of Israeli soldiers fleeing from rock-throwing terrorists has inspired an IDF review of the limitations being placed on the nation's troops. Several Israeli soldiers have charged that officers' concerns about media photos have recently forced them to retreat in the face of PA Arab mob attacks.

Headline: Mahmoud Abbas' duplicitous recognition of Israel

Headline: Abbas slams Mashaal for not recognizing Israel'

Palestinian leader Mahmoud Abbas this week insisted that his government had already fulfilled its obligation to recognize Israel back in 1993. But a few problems with Abbas' position were immediately noted. Following meetings with the Turkish government in Ankara on Thursday, Abbas told reporters

(in English) that he does not agree with recent remarks by Hamas leader Khaled Mashaal rejecting recognition of Israel, "because we, in fact, recognized it in 1993." Abbas' went on to note that Mashaal and Hamas recognize Israel's existence, too, as they have signed on to Palestinian government documents that acknowledge a two-state solution. The Palestinian leader's words were meant to counteract harsh criticism from Israeli Prime Minister Benjamin Netanyahu over his failure earlier in the week to condemn the anti-Israel rhetoric coming from Hamas. But the duplicitous nature of Abbas' words was not lost on Israelis. First, Abbas cleverly continued to refuse to recognize Israel's right to exist, and especially its right to exist as a national homeland for the Jewish people in their ancient land. Without that level of recognition, Israel's leadership rightly argues that the stage remains set for future conflict.

Headline: Abbas: Hamas Seeks Peace, Even if its Boss Says Otherwise

In a speech given by Hamas top terrorist Khaled Mashaal in Gaza over the weekend, Mashaal said that Hamas would not rest until it had destroyed Israel completely, taking over all the land between "the river and the sea" and destroying the Jewish communities of Israel. Masha'al said that Hamas "would never recognize the state of Israel," and would continue to use terrorism until Israel was destroyed. Abbas said that technically, Mashaal had already recognized Israel. "I do not agree with Masha'al about not recognizing Israel, because we have already done so in 1993." Hamas and Fatah, he said, had already agreed to accept Oslo, "and this agreement was ratified by Mashaal. "There are a number of agreements between Hamas and Fatah which talk about the two-state solution," Abbas added. "Mashaal stands behind these agreements," despite his very clear comments in Gaza that Hamas intended to continue its terror campaign until Israel was destroyed.

Headline: Look who's urging Obama to talk with Hamas

The Egyptian government is leading diplomacy with the U.S. and European Union aimed at opening official Western dialogue with Hamas, according to informed Middle Eastern security officials. The officials said Muslim Brotherhood-dominated Egypt is pushing for the continued flow of international aid in the event of a future Hamas-led Palestinian government. Hamas, an offshoot of the Muslim Brotherhood, is expected to do well in any upcoming Palestinian elections. There is also a drive by Egypt, Turkey and Qatar to wean Hamas entirely off of Iranian money to help rid the Gaza Strip of Shiite Islamic influence, the officials said. Hamas believes distancing itself more from Iran could prompt a crisis with the Iranian-backed Islamic Jihad group in Gaza, added the officials.

An Iranian delegation will make an official visit to Gaza later this month, in a sign of the strong ties between Tehran and the Palestinian enclave. The visit will come a little over a month after the end of Gaza's eight-day mini war with Israel, in which the Hamas-ruled strip used Iranian supplied weapons and technology to fire 1,500 rockets at Israel's south and heartland. The Iranian representatives will tour the Strip and distribute food and medical supplies to locals who were injured during operation Pillar of Defense. According to Palestinian News Agency Ma'an, the delegation is expected to arrive at the el-Arish port in the Sinai Peninsula by boat and will enter Gaza via the Rafah Border Crossing. Egyptian security officials confirmed Wednesday that they have authorized the visit.

His Majesty King Abdullah on Wednesday said the Arab Spring presented an opportunity for Jordan to press ahead with reforms and develop various sectors, according to a Royal Court statement. During a meeting with representatives of the Houses of Commons and Lords at the British parliament in London, the King said the steps taken by the Kingdom pave the way for the development of political and partisan life, in addition to engaging the people in the decision-making process. His Majesty stressed the importance of the youths' role in the reform process, and engaging them in political action and the upcoming parliamentary elections, slated for January 23. The King said that he envisions institutionalised partisan work, so that it is based on clear programmes and processes that address daily life issues and challenges faced by the people, including education, health and unemployment. Discussions also covered the Middle East peace process, and prospects of reaching a lasting and just peace based on the two-state solution. The King said Jordan will continue to work with the UK, the US and other international and regional powers to bring both the Israelis and the Palestinians back to the negotiating table.

Egypt's Islamist Coalition on Thursday announced plans to stage a million-man rally at the Rabaa Al-Adawiya Mosque in Cairo's Madinet Nasr district on Friday in support of President Mohamed Morsi's “democratic legitimacy” and Egypt's draft constitution. In a Thursday statement, Gamaa Islamiya, one of the coalition's member groups, declared that it would participate in the rally, both to voice support for President Morsi and call for a ‘yes’ vote in an upcoming constitutional referendum. According to Muslim Brotherhood Secretary-General Mahmoud Hussein, Friday's rally will begin at 10am in the public square outside the landmark mosque. Egypt is currently divided between Islamist parties and groups that support the draft constitution and liberal, leftist and nationalist parties and movements that are calling for a ‘no’ vote in Saturday's poll.

Jeremiah 49:24-27

New King James Version (NKJV)

- 24 Damascus has grown feeble;
She turns to flee,
And fear has seized her.
Anguish and sorrows have taken her like a woman in labor.
- 25 Why is the city of praise not deserted, the city of My joy?
- 26 Therefore her young men shall fall in her streets,
And all the men of war shall be cut off in that day,” says the LORD of hosts.
- 27 “I will kindle a fire in the wall of Damascus,
And it shall consume the palaces of Ben-Hadad.”<sup>[a]</sup>

The burden of Damascus. Behold, Damascus is taken away from being a city, and it shall be a ruinous heap.

Headline: Assad fires Scuds to stop Al Qaeda arm seizing chemical arms at Al Safira

By the blacklisting Tuesday, Dec. 11, of the Jabhat al-Nusra group fighting in Syrian rebel ranks as “a foreign terrorist organization” and affiliate of al Qaeda in Iraq, Washington faces four quandaries:

1. The 10,000 fighters of this al Qaeda affiliate are the best-trained and most professional component of the Syrian rebel front;
2. Jabhat al-Nusra fields 3,000 fighters out of the mostly Free Syrian Army’s 14,000 rebels fighting in and around Aleppo. They also constitute the assault force’s spearhead.
3. The Islamists are at the sharp front edge of the rebel force battling for control of the Syrian army’s biggest chemical weapons store at Al Safira, near Aleppo. Thursday morning, Dec. 12, they were just a kilometer from the base’s northwestern perimeter fence and advancing fast. By week’s end, Jabhat al-Nusra jihadis may have smashed into the base and seized control of the chemical stocks and Scud D planes standing there armed with chemical warheads. The imminence of this peril forced Bashar Assad’s hand into sending Scud jets against rebel-held areas in an effort to stop their advance on the base.
4. This al Qaeda affiliate is also better armed and equipped than any other Syrian rebel force, thanks to the generous financial and logistical aid laid on by Persian Gulf sources, especially in Saudi Arabia, Qatar and Kuwait.

The difficulty here is that those three Gulf Arab states are also American allies in the war against Assad and the most important contributors to the US-sponsored Friends of Syria, a forum which met in Marrakesh Wednesday and formally recognized the umbrella Syrian opposition coalition of exiled groups as the legitimate government of Syria.

Headline: Iraq: Baghdad, Kurds agree to ease tensions

Iraq's president says the central government and Kurdish leaders have reached a deal to ease a military standoff that began last month. A statement issued by President Jalal Talabani's office Thursday says the accord between leaders in Baghdad and the self-rule Kurdish region would eventually lead to the withdrawal of both sides' military forces from disputed northern areas. Under the plan, local residents would oversee their own security. The deal appears to firm up a preliminary agreement announced by Iraqi Prime Minister Nouri al-Maliki last week. Talabani gave no timetable for the deal to be implemented. Tensions between Baghdad and the Kurds spiked following a decision by al-Maliki to form a new military command to oversee security forces bordering the self-ruled Kurdish region. The Kurds say the move was unconstitutional.

President Abdullah Gül has called on countries who opposed the upgrade of Palestine's status at the U.N. General Assembly to review their positions, in an explicit reference to the United States, one of nine countries who voted against Palestine's non-member state position during the U.N. vote. Gül's call came as Palestinian President Mahmoud Abbas paid his first visit abroad to Turkey following the historic U.N. vote. "We hope that those who abstained will change their current positions in a short time and lend their support to Palestine. I have no doubt that those countries who voted against [upgrading Palestine's status] will review their decisions and understand that they cannot maintain their position continuously," Gül told reporters during a joint press conference with Palestinian President Mahmoud Abbas. He particularly stressed the large majority that had voted to upgrade Palestine's status at the U.N. from "observer entity" to "non-member state."

Russia refused on Thursday to register a demonstration against President Vladimir Putin planned for Saturday and said some earlier protests were orchestrated by Georgia. Sudanese officials suspect Israel of using GPS-tagged vultures as spy drones, according to the Egyptian media. Cairo daily El Balad reported on Monday, in a story followed up by Israeli news site Haaretz and UK daily The Telegraph, that Sudan's military had "captured" one such vulture at the beginning of December in the country's Darfur region. The bird was equipped with a solar-powered GPS device that could reportedly transmit images by satellite. Sudanese officials, according to El Balad, suspect the scavenging bird of being an Israeli spy. The vital clue was a leg band marked "Israel Nature Service" and "Hebrew University, Jerusalem." "This means the equipment installed on the vulture was mounted on it in its home country," according to El Balad.

The Army's arrest and forced resignation of Malian Prime Minister Cheikh Modibo Diarra (announced in a 4.00 a.m. televised broadcast from Bamako on Tuesday, Dec. 11) and the appointment by President Amadou Toumani Touré of a new prime minister — former Administrator of the Presidential Palace Django Sissoko — did nothing to allay fears that the Republic of Mali was slipping further into dysfunction, without addressing the growing consolidation of control by jihadist groups in the country's north. But regional actors are also inhibiting a resolution of the situation under the guidance of the United Nations or the African Union. The Algerian government, in particular, was quietly — and seemingly successfully — pressuring the U.S. to avoid a significant military intervention into the dispute, ostensibly to avoid a costly war in the region. The primary reason for Algiers' strenuous efforts to play down the crisis, however, according to very senior GIS/Defense & Foreign Affairs sources in Algiers, was that the Government of President Abdelaziz Bouteflika wanted to avoid any prospect of foreign interest in Algeria's secret nuclear weapons program, which is located near Algeria's southern border with Mali.

Headline: Cameron to support plans for eurozone super-state

EU finance ministers have agreed a landmark deal establishing the European Central Bank (ECB) as the single supervisor of the European banking sector, beginning in 2014. The agreement reached in the early hours of Thursday morning (13 December) is a significant breakthrough as the EU bids to break the link between indebted banks and sovereign bonds nearly five years after the start of the financial crisis. It also makes good on an EU leaders' promise to agree on the supervisory framework before the end of 2012. Ministers will now switch their attention in 2013 to harmonising a deposit guarantee scheme and a resolution mechanism to wind up banks. Speaking at a press conference following the end of the talks, internal market commissioner Michel Barnier told reporters that ministers had taken "a big first step for banking union," adding that "the ECB will play the pivotal role, there's no ambiguity about that."

Comment: Jesus warned that through the Antichrist and his conquest of our world, all people will be forced to obey him and his One World Government. What is occurring right now through these government unions is just setting the stage for his world domination. Every one of these global unions, which are being set up, all center around money. This is another example of a 'union' that has gone even further in setting the stage of the antichrist's control of the world economy.

Headline: S&P puts Britain's AAA rating on negative outlook

Standard and Poor's cut the outlook on Britain's AAA credit rating from stable to negative on Thursday, raising the possibility that it could downgrade the rating in the next two years. "The negative outlook reflects our view of a one-in-three chance that we could lower the ratings in the next two years if the UK's economic and fiscal performances weaken beyond our current expectations," S&P said in a statement. They followed the other two main ratings agencies in putting Britain's credit rating on a negative outlook. "We now expect the United Kingdom's net general government debt as a percentage of GDP to continue to rise in 2015, before declining again," S&P said.

Headline: Eurozone approves Greece's long-awaited bailout loan

Eurozone's lenders have approved a long-awaited bailout loan for Greece after the country's implementation of harsh austerity measures and a bond buyback scheme. The loan, which Athens intends to use to pay off debts and help its cash-strapped banks, "will be flowing to Greece as early as next week," Eurogroup President Jean-Claude Juncker said on Thursday. The International Monetary Fund (IMF) and the eurozone have agreed to release a total of EUR 43.7 billion of aid in a series of four packages that are scheduled to end early next year. Satisfied with the progress of Athens' reform policies, Finance ministers of the 17-nation bloc agreed to release the first aid package, some EUR 34.3 billion, "in the following days."

Headline: U.S. home seizures jump 5.4 percent for November 2012

The housing market showed signs of weakening again, according to the latest figures released this week. Seizures of homes in the U.S. rose 5.4 percent last month, the first annual increase in more than two years, as lenders tried to manage the flow of distressed properties without disrupting the housing recovery, according to official figures. Banks repossessed 59,134 homes, up from 56,124 in November 2011, the data in a report showed. The increase was the first since October 2010, when foreclosures decreased after allegations that lenders were using faulty practices of taking ownership from the delinquent owners. Seizures rose 11 percent from the previous month.

Headline: Stocks Drop Amid Budget Deadlock

U.S. stocks fell, halting a six-day rally in the Standard & Poor’s 500 Index, as the standoff in federal budget negotiations overshadowed a drop in jobless claims and growth in retail sales. Treasuries declined while precious metals led losses in commodities. The S&P 500 lost 0.8 percent to 1,417.83 at 2:44 p.m. in New York, ending its longest rally since August, and Europe’s regional benchmark stock index retreated from an 18-month high. Ten-year Treasury yields rose for a third straight day, adding three basis points to 1.73 percent. Silver and gold lost more than 1.2 percent as the Dollar Index (DXY) halted a three-day slump, with the U.S. currency strengthening against 14 of 16 peers.

Headline: U.S. military to boost Philippines presence; China tells army to be prepared

U.S. and Philippine officials are expected to agree on an increase in the number of U.S. military ships, aircraft and troops rotating through the Philippines, Filipino officials said, as tensions simmer with China over its maritime claims. Though he made no direct reference to the territorial disputes, new Chinese Communist Party chief Xi Jinping urged his military to prepare for a struggle. He made the comments during his visit to a South China Sea fleet ship in southern Guangdong province, but did not name any potential aggressor. Senior U.S. and Philippine officials met on Wednesday in Manila to discuss strengthening security and economic ties at a time of growing tension over China's aggressive sovereignty claims over vast stretches of the disputed South China Sea. Philippine defense and diplomatic officials said they expected to see more U.S. ships, aircraft and troops for training exercises and disaster and relief operations. "What we are discussing right now is increasing the rotational presence of U.S. forces," Carlos Sorreta, the foreign ministry's Assistant Secretary for American Affairs, told reporters. A five-year joint U.S.-Philippine military exercise plan would be approved this week, he added. The size of the increase in the U.S. military assets in the Philippines, a former U.S. colony, was unclear.

Headline: South Korea wants more sanctions against North over rocket

South Korea has called for tougher sanctions against the North as protests continued against Pyongyang's rocket launch on Wednesday. The government in Seoul admitted the operation was successful but again claimed the real reason was to develop a long-range ballistic missile, not as North Korea says, to put a weather satellite into orbit. The UN Security Council is weighing has condemned the launch in defiance of a ban and is considering its response. The South wants action. "North Korea ignored the Security Council's resolutions and international community's warnings. We believe more advanced measures should be taken than those in April," said South Korean Foreign Ministry spokesman Cho Tai-Young.

Headline: Smart ID card next year South Africa

The new smart ID cards will start being issued in the new year, Home Affairs Minister Naledi Pandor said on Thursday. "The pilot [programme] was a success and in the new year we will make an announcement on the implementation of the smart ID card project," she said. The cost of the card had not yet been determined. Pandor said the cost would not exceed that of the current green bar-coded identity document, which the card would replace. "The security features and the cost are still being discussed." A microchip, the specifications for which cannot be disclosed for security reasons, will house the necessary biometric data and the information on the chip will be laser-engraved to prevent tampering. She said a range of physical and data-security features was being considered, and that there was also ongoing discussion about whether to include provision for a pin code as a secondary means of verification, to complement the biometric features of the card.

Cyclone Evan, bringing heavy rain and high winds to the Samoan capital of Apia when it made landfall Thursday, was blamed for two deaths, officials said. A state of emergency has been declared for Samoa, the Australian Broadcasting Corp. reported. The Category 2 storm, with winds of up to 68 mph, destroyed homes and crops, flooded rivers, toppled trees and power lines, flooded roads, damaged buildings and forced the airport to close, officials said. Storm and flood warnings were posted and forecasters said Evan will cause a sea surge of nearly 10 feet, the Australian broadcaster said. Evan was expected to make landfall in neighboring American Samoa Thursday night.

CIVIL UNREST

Luke 21:9 and Matthew 24:7 speak of nation against nation and kingdom against kingdom in the end times. Revelation 6:3-4 speaks of the fiery red horse given power to make men slay one another and Revelation 6:8 speaks again of this red horse in conjunction with the pale horse of Death and Hades, as the one that has the power to kill by sword. I like to call this “The Arab Spring in Prophecy” because for us it is easy to identify- that’s what the world calls it.

Luke 21:9: wars & commotions; the Greek word here is Akatastasia, meaning instability, a state of disorder, disturbance, confusion (revolutions)

Matthew 24:7: the Greek word for nation is Ethnos & refers to various ethnic groups fighting among themselves, where the next sentence in the verse refers to kingdoms (basileiva) fighting one another (not to be confused with an actual kingdom but rather the right or authority to rule over a kingdom) I have tried to separate it into areas that sweep EAST from the point of North America.

Africa

Headline: Meanwhile in Africa: A secret nuclear facility in Algeria and a looming jihadist threat in Mali

The Army's arrest and forced resignation of Malian Prime Minister Cheikh Modibo Diarra (announced in a 4.00 a.m. televised broadcast from Bamako on Tuesday, Dec. 11) and the appointment by President Amadou Toumani Touré of a new prime minister — former Administrator of the Presidential Palace Django Sissoko — did nothing to allay fears that the Republic of Mali was slipping further into dysfunction, without addressing the growing consolidation of control by jihadist groups in the country's north. But regional actors are also inhibiting a resolution of the situation under the guidance of the United Nations or the African Union. The Algerian government, in particular, was quietly — and seemingly successfully — pressuring the U.S. to avoid a significant military intervention into the dispute, ostensibly to avoid a costly war in the region. The primary reason for Algiers' strenuous efforts to play down the crisis, however, according to very senior GIS/Defense & Foreign Affairs sources in Algiers, was that the Government of President Abdelaziz Bouteflika wanted to avoid any prospect of foreign interest in Algeria's secret nuclear weapons program, which is located near Algeria's southern border with Mali.

Headline: Congressman: State Dept. pressure on Bahrain helps Iran, hurts U.S.

Human rights activists have called for an immediate end to the ongoing heavy-handed crackdown on peaceful pro-democracy protesters in Bahrain, Press TV reports. During a meeting in the Lebanese capital, Beirut, on Thursday, the participants sought to raise awareness about the flagrant human rights violations in the Persian Gulf kingdom, amid the brutal crackdown by the ruling Al Khalifa regime. "The regime has been using an excessive amount of tear gas even throwing it into homes, to collectively punish groups for protests. They have been maiming protesters with bird shots, and they have also been torturing doctors, journalists, and even school children. So, these human rights abuses have been very rampant, and also have been worrisome. When it comes to the West, it is worrisome that the US continues to support this regime," Amber Lyon, former CNN correspondent and a guest to the conference, said.

Spanish health and justice workers hold separate demonstrations in Madrid to protest against austerity measures imposed on their sectors by the Prime Minister Mariano Rajoy's conservative government. The demonstrators took to the streets of the capital on Wednesday to show their outrage at the unpopular cost-cutting measures, saying the measures will lower the quality of the services they provide. Justice workers across Madrid staged a walk-out to protest against reforms in the justice system. The reforms include the elimination of substitute judges and a reduction in the number of leave days.
