(Zech.12:3 & 9 - The Burdensome Stone)

Headline: Israel Planning to Build Holy Temple, Claims PA Official

The head of manuscripts at the Al-Aqsa Mosque, Najeh Bkeirat, has accused Israel of trying to "Judaize" the Temple Mount by building a new Holy Temple. Speaking on January 4 to the Palestine journal, which is affiliated with the Hamas terrorist group, Bkeirat claimed that "the construction of the false Temple is closer than ever before." Bkeirat claimed in the interview that an analysis of Jerusalem's development plans finds there is an intention to Judaize the Al-Aqsa Mosque, and within this framework build the Temple on its ruins and to then reduce the number of Arab residents in the city. In order to deal with the "danger" of such a move, he called to increase the Muslim presence in the Al-Aqsa Mosque and hold educational programs in it, in addition to public relations activities about the importance of the mosque and the other Islamic holy places in Jerusalem.

Headline: Former Shin Bet chief: Palestinian 'despair' threatens third intifada

Israel faces the prospect of a new Palestinian uprising because of despair over the gridlock in peacemaking, Yesh Atid candidate and former Shin Bet chief Yaakov Perry said Tuesday. The next government must make peace negotiations with the Palestinians its foreign policy priority, Perry told Reuters in an interview. "Israel must do everything to come back to the negotiating table and find a compromise," he said, criticizing other leaders from across the political spectrum for playing down the issue. The military has reported growing violence across the West Bank in recent weeks, prompting warnings of a possible intifada after years of relative calm. "Are we on the edge of a third intifada? It is a real possibility because of the amount of despair coupled with the [political] stalemate," said Perry, who took over the Shin Bet shortly after the first intifada broke out in December 1987.

Headline: Ashrawi Urges Europeans to End Israeli Occupation

Palestine Liberation Organization Executive Committee member, Hanan Ashrawi, urged the European Union to put a quick end to the Israeli occupation of the Palestinian territories, according to a statement issued Tuesday. Ashrawi stressed in a meeting in Ramallah with EU representative to the West Bank, Gaza Strip and UNRWA, John Gatt-Rutter, "the importance of the European role in supporting the two-state solution and in bringing about an end to the illegal occupation of Palestine and Israel's stepped-up illegal settlement campaign before it is too late." The two officials discussed ideas to that effect and steps relevant to Palestine in its accession to UN charters and conventions and Palestine joining UN agencies and organizations.

Jordan

Headline: Riot breaks out in Syrian refugee camp in Jordan

Syrian refugees in a Jordanian camp attacked aid workers with sticks and stones on Tuesday, frustrated after cold, howling winds swept away their tents and torrential rains flooded muddy streets overnight. Police said seven aid workers were injured. The refugees may be about to face even deeper misery with warnings of a major snowstorm threatening Jordan and Turkey — the two countries with the largest Syrian refugee populations. The riot broke out after the region's first major winter storm this year hit the Zaatari refugee camp, home to nearly 50,000 refugees in Jordan's northern desert. Inside the camp, pools and lakes surrounded tents, stranding refugees including pregnant women and infants.

Headline: Hezbollah from Lebanon's Bekaa Valley battling Syrian rebels in Damascus suburbs

Iran has recruited thousands of Hezbollah troops to defend the headquarters of the regime of Syrian President Bashar Assad. Arab diplomatic sources said Iran's Islamic Revolutionary Guard Corps has deployed thousands of Hezbollah fighters to battle Sunni rebels in Damascus. The sources said Hezbollah units were working with IRGC and the Syrian Army in the battle against rebels in the suburbs of the Syrian capital. "The Syrians don't have enough troops willing to fight, and the Iranians don't want to commit more men," a diplomat said. "The easiest and quickest solution has been to deploy Hezbollah units from eastern Lebanon."

Egyptian President Mohamed Morsi plans to meet the leaders of Palestinian factions Hamas and Fatah on Wednesday in a renewed effort to help them heal their five-year-old feud, Palestinian and Egyptian officials said. But there was no confirmation President Mahmoud Abbas of the secular Fatah group and Khaled Meshaal of the Islamist Hamas movement would meet face to face, and a unity pact reached in Cairo last year has yet to be implemented.

Jeremiah 49:24-27

New King James Version (NKJV)

- <sup>24</sup> Damascus has grown feeble;
She turns to flee,
And fear has seized her.
Anguish and sorrows have taken her like a woman in labor.
<sup>25</sup> Why is the city of praise not deserted, the city of My joy?
<sup>26</sup> Therefore her young men shall fall in her streets,
And all the men of war shall be cut off in that day," says the LORD of hosts.
<sup>27</sup> "I will kindle a fire in the wall of Damascus,
And it shall consume the palaces of Ben-Hadad."<sup>[a]</sup>

The burden of Damascus. Behold, Damascus is taken away from being a city, and it shall be a ruinous heap.

Iraqi Prime Minister Nuri al-Maliki accused anti-government protesters who have blocked off a key trade route for two weeks of abusing their freedoms and causing "chaos," in a speech on Wednesday. Maliki said security forces could intervene to end the protests, which have swept Sunni-majority provinces in western and northern Iraq since December 23, but also renewed an offer to consider some of the demonstrators' demands. The protests were sparked by the December 20 arrest of at least nine guards of Sunni Finance Minister Rafa al-Essawi. One has cut the main highway between Baghdad and the Jordanian and Syrian borders. Demonstrators have accused the Shiite-led authorities of persecuting Iraq's Sunni Arab minority community and have called for the release of prisoners from jails and reform of anti-terror laws.

Turkish military forces have killed at least 12 Kurdistan Workers' Party (PKK) members during an operation on the Turkish border with Iraq, Turkish authorities have announced. The slain PKK members intended to attack a Turkish military checkpoint near the Iraqi border taking advantage of thick fog and heavy snow at the time. The incident occurred a week after the Turkish government confirmed negotiations with the PKK's jailed leader, Abdullah Ocalan. The negotiations are aimed at putting an end to the armed fighting between PKK members and the Turkish government and the formation of an autonomous Kurdish state in southeastern Turkey.

Brussels is demanding that 26 police forces across the EU should have access to the personal details of every motorist in Britain. The Government is being threatened with fines totalling millions of pounds unless it obeys the 'Orwellian' edict. Foreign police also want open access to the UK's national DNA database and fingerprint records so they can check them against crime scenes and camera footage. MPs and civil liberties groups fear identity mistakes will lead to Britons being accused of crimes they have not committed. But there is particular alarm at the idea of overseas police having access to information about every registered driver in the UK.

Headline: U.N. wants to use drones for peacekeeping missions

The United Nations, looking to modernize its peacekeeping operations, is planning for the first time to deploy a fleet of its own surveillance drones in missions in Central and West Africa. The U.N. Department of Peacekeeping has notified Congo, Rwanda and Uganda that it intends to deploy a unit of at least three unarmed surveillance drones in the eastern region of Congo. The action is the first step in a broader bid to integrate unmanned aerial surveillance systems, which have become a standard feature of Western military operations, into the United Nations' far-flung peacekeeping empire. But the effort is encountering resistance from governments, particularly those from the developing world, that fear the drones will open up a new intelligence-gathering front dominated by Western powers and potentially supplant the legions of African and Asian peacekeepers who now act as the United Nations' eyes and ears on the ground.

Headline: 20 Facts About The Collapse Of Europe That Everyone Should Know

The economic implosion of Europe is accelerating. Even while the mainstream media continues to proclaim that the financial crisis in Europe has been "averted", the economic statistics that are coming out of Europe just continue to get worse. Manufacturing activity in Europe has been contracting month after month, the unemployment rate in the eurozone has hit yet another brand new record high, and the official unemployment rates in both Greece and Spain are now much higher than the peak unemployment rate in the United States during the Great Depression of the 1930s. The economic situation in Europe is far worse than it was a year ago, and it is going to continue to get worse as austerity continues to take a huge toll on the economies of the eurozone.

Headline: US Seared During Hottest Year on Record by Far

America set an off-the-charts heat record in 2012. A brutal combination of a widespread drought and a mostly absent winter pushed the average annual U.S. temperature last year up to 55.32 degrees Fahrenheit, the government announced Tuesday. That's a full degree warmer than the old record set in 1998. Breaking temperature records by an entire degree is unprecedented, scientists say. Normally, records are broken by a tenth of a degree or so. "It was off the chart," said Deke Arndt, head of climate monitoring at the National Climatic Data Center in Asheville, N.C., which calculated the temperature records. Last year, he said, will go down as "a huge exclamation point at the end of a couple decades of warming." The data center's figures for the entire world won't come out until next week, but through the first 11 months of 2012, the world was on pace to have its eighth warmest year on record.

A new strain of the winter vomiting disease norovirus has spread to France, New Zealand and Japan from Australia and is overtaking all others to become the dominant strain in Britain, health officials said on Wednesday. The norovirus variant, known as Sydney 2012, was identified in a scientific paper last week and Britain's Health Protection Agency (HPA) said genetic testing showed it was now causing more cases in England and Wales than other strains. Sydney 2012 does not carry worse symptoms than others but, like other norovirus strains, it can cause violent and projectile vomiting, diarrhoea and sometimes fevers, headaches and stomach cramps. Norovirus cases have risen earlier than expected this winter in Britain, across Europe, Japan and other parts of the world.

The fears of major health organizations have come true: Gonorrhea that is immune to the last remaining effective oral antibiotic has been detected in at least nine North American patients, meaning the era of "incurable" gonorrhea could be close. In a study released Tuesday in the Journal of the American Medical Association, a group of scientists led by Vanessa Allen of Public Health Ontario, found that 6.7 percent of patients with gonorrhea at a Toronto clinic still had the disease after a round of cephalosporins, the last effective oral antibiotic used to treat the disease. Of 133 patients who returned for a "test of cure" visit, nine remained gonorrhea-positive. This is the first time cephalosporin-resistant gonorrhea has been found in humans in North America.

Impoverished Christian villagers in India's western state of Maharashtra were refused water and firewood Tuesday, January 8, after a Hindu attack on their house church injured some 30 believers, a chief investigator told Worthy News. Joseph Dias, secretary-general of Indian rights group Catholic-Christian Secular Forum (CSF), said the incidents are part of an ongoing Hindu campaign to intimidate minority Christians in Maharashtra's Thane Rural District. Tensions have been rising since December 30 when up to 500 "Hindu nationalists" surrounded a house church in Tamsai village where dozens of Christian tribals gathered for a Sunday worship and New Year prayer service, Dias said. "Suddenly the mob surrounded the place and asked the Christian villagers to stop the prayer service. Then about a dozen of them began beating the believers, including many women and children," he explained.

The Freedom From Religion Foundation said Wednesday that it would continue to fight an Ohio school board that said it would not remove a large portrait of Jesus that has been inside a middle school since 1947. "There's really no gray area here," Andrew Seidel, a staff attorney for the foundation, told FoxNews.com. "This is a blatant infringement on our First Amendment rights." The activist group dedicated to the separation of church and state notified the school district recently that the painting hanging above the entrance of Jackson Middle School is an illegal endorsement of Christianity and should be taken down.

Headline: National Cathedral to perform same-sex weddings

The Washington National Cathedral, where the nation gathers to mourn tragedies and celebrate new presidents, will soon begin performing same-sex marriages. Cathedral officials tell The Associated Press the church will be among the first Episcopal congregations to implement a new rite of marriage for gay, lesbian, bisexual and transgender members. The church will announce its new policy Wednesday. In light of the legality of same-sex marriage in the District of Columbia and now Maryland, the Rt. Rev. Mariann Edgar Budde, the Episcopal bishop of Washington, decided in December to allow an expansion of the Christian marriage sacrament. The diocese covers the district and four counties in Maryland. The change is allowed under a "local option" granted by the church's General Convention, church leaders said. Each priest in the diocese can then decide whether to perform same-sex unions.

Headline: Activity increases on the Sun, as sunspots proliferate

NOAA forecasters estimate a 35% chance of M-class flares and a 5% chance of X-flares during the next 24 hours. The most likely source would be sunspot AR1652; it has a 'beta-gamma' magnetic field that harbors energy for M-class eruptions. The active region is circled in this Jan. 8th image from NASA's Solar Dynamics Observatory: Of greater interest, perhaps, is the large sunspot emerging just south of AR1652. Denoted by an arrow, the unnumbered region is crackling with C-class solar flares and, based on its size, could be capable of even stronger eruptions. We will know more in the days ahead as the sunspot turns toward Earth; a more direct view will reveal what kind of magnetic field the sunspot possesses. A very large sunspot is emerging over the sun's eastern limb. Numbered AR1654, it consists of two dark cores each 4 or more times wider than Earth.

In the fall of last year the San Antonio Northside School District in Texas announced that they would track students with RFID (radio frequency identification) chips in their student badges. One student, sophomore Andrea Hernandez, was suspended for refusing to where the tracking device and took the matter to court. On Tuesday, U.S. District Judge Orlando Garcia ruled in favor of the school district claiming they have the right to expel Hernandez for refusing to abide by school requirements. By default the judge ruled that the school had the right to force children to be treated like cattle while on campus.

Headline: Earthquake swarm rattles seafloor along Carlsberg Ridge

Because the Carlsberg Ridge is one of the slowest-spreading, and so supposedly less active oceanic ridges, many had thought it unlikely to be the location of a major volcanic eruption.. At ridges such as this, heat is thought to be released more slowly from the underlying magma. However, we may have to rethink that previous assessment. The Carlsberg Ridge region is currently being shaken by a major seismic swarm, which could very well be volcanic in nature. The strongest tremor in the current swarm is a magnitude 5.0. Nature journal said in previous eruption, "A huge plume of hydrothermal chemicals, drifted up to 1.4 kilometers above the vent site and 70 kilometers along the underwater ridge was seen some years ago. It's by far the biggest vent plume ever seen, and confirms that such plumes form following volcanic eruptions at the sea floor, even at slow-spreading oceanic ridges."

Luke 21:9 and Matthew 24:7 speak of nation against nation and kingdom against kingdom in the end times. Revelation 6:3-4 speaks of the fiery red horse given power to make men slay one another and Revelation 6:8 speaks again of this red horse in conjunction with the pale horse of Death and Hades, as the one that has the power to kill by sword. I like to call this "The Arab Spring in Prophecy" because for us it is easy to identify- that's what the world calls it.

Luke 21:9: wars & commotions; the Greek word here is Akatastasia, meaning instability, a state of disorder, disturbance, confusion (revolutions)

Matthew 24:7: the Greek word for nation is Ethnos & refers to various ethnic groups fighting among themselves, where the next sentence in the verse refers to kingdoms (basileiva) fighting one another (not to be confused with an actual kingdom but rather the right or authority to rule over a kingdom) I have tried to separate it into areas that sweep EAST from the point of North America.

After weeks of protests by the indigenous communities in Canada, the United Nations has urged Prime Minister Stephen Harper government to set up a meaningful dialogue with the aboriginal leaders of the country. UN Special Rapporteur James Anaya stressed on Tuesday that the Canadian government should set up talks in accordance with the standards expressed in the organization's Declaration on the Rights of Indigenous Peoples. During the past month, the leaders of aboriginal communities, the First Nation, and activists have carried out nationwide rallies under the name 'Idle no more,' accusing the Canadian government of violating the aboriginal's basic rights and undermining previously agreed treaties on the use of lands and resources.

Police in South Africa have fired rubber bullets in a bid to disperse striking farm workers protesting against low pay in the country's grape-growing province of Western Cape. On Wednesday, hundreds of farm workers hurled stones at the police and blocked the roads with burning tires in a region situated in 100 kilometers (60 miles) east of Cape Town. Police forces used rubber bullets against the protesters to scatter them. The Wednesday strike follows a similar walkout last year, which was suspended after at least two workers lost their lives in clashes with police.

Headline: Is the Muslim Brotherhood targeting the UAE?

After quietly brewing for the past year, the controversy over alleged Muslim Brotherhood efforts to infiltrate and destabilize the United Arab Emirates has now openly erupted. The most recent development is the arrest of 11 Egyptian expatriates in the UAE on charges of subversion, stealing state secrets and operating under the influence of—and sending large amounts of money to—the Egyptian Muslim Brotherhood. The men are accused of belonging to a "cell" seeking to overthrow the UAE government, with the intention of exporting the influence of Egypt's new Islamist-dominated political order.

Headline: N Ireland police face 6th day of riots

LOYALIST protesters have attacked Northern Ireland police with petrol bombs, fireworks, bottles and stones during the sixth consecutive night of disorder in the capital Belfast. Police were able to maintain order in the city's combustible eastern neighbourhoods on Tuesday without resorting to plastic bullets or water cannon, which were both used to quell Monday's unrest. No injuries were reported. Pro-British protesters have taken to the streets of Belfast almost every night since December 3, when the city council announced it would no longer fly the British flag all year round at the City Hall. The decision sparked riots at the start of December which gave way to largely peaceful protests, but the violence has flared again since the start of the new year.

Greek police arrested 100 people on Wednesday at an Athens squat popular with anti-establishment groups and radical leftists, prompting protesters to occupy the offices of a party in the ruling coalition. Dozens more activists were gathering near the site of the squat in the center of the capital and more protests were expected later in the day. The dilapidated Villa Amalia building, occupied by squatters for over two decades, was cleared by police last month. The arrests were made after 150 people re-occupied the site early on Wednesday, forcing officers to clear it again, police said. In retaliation, protesters occupied and unfurled a banner pledging solidarity with the squat at the headquarters of the smallest party in Greece's government, the Democratic Left. About 40 people were detained there, police said.
