Headline: Syrian tank shell lands in Golan Heights

A tank shell fired from Syria landed in the Golan community of Alonei Habashan late Wednesday morning, the first such incident since several mortars landed in the Golan in November. No damage was reported. The shell, believed to be an errant shot from a battle between Syrian government forces and rebels, landed in an open area and did not explode. Sappers later disarmed it. The IDF tracked a shell from the Syrian army to us,” Golan Regional Council deputy head Uri Kellner told a local radio station. “This the third or fourth time this has bled into our area, and it cannot continue.” On Monday, a pro-Syrian rebel activist in Israel told The Times of Israel that rebel forces now effectively control the Syrian border area, but have refrained from taking the Quneitra border crossing, given the political sensitivities of such a move.

Headline: U.N. rights envoy seeks inquiry into Palestinian inmate death

Issa Karaka, the Palestinian prisoner affairs minister said Wednesday that his office is considering pursuing legal actions against Israel at the International Crimes Court in The Hague following the death of Palestinian security prisoner Arafat Jaradat, in the Megiddo Prison on Saturday. Karaka said that the ministry is preparing a file on the case, but did not say when the Palestinians intend to file the motion. Meanwhile, A U.N. human rights investigator called on Wednesday for an international inquiry into the weekend death of a Palestinian prisoner in disputed circumstances in an Israeli jail.

The death of Arafat Jaradat has led to the widespread rioting in the occupied West Bank leading to fears of a new Palestinian uprising against Israel.

Headline: EU Reports Jerusalem Construction “Deliberate and Provocative”

Headline: EU Recommends Boycott Against Israel Presence in Judea, Samaria

The European Union is targeting Jewish construction in Jerusalem, calling it “systematic, deliberate and provocative.” Building projects in the eastern portion of Israel’s capital city are part of a strategy aimed at preventing the holy city from being divided and used as the capital for two states, the EU's "Jerusalem Report 2012" claims. Jewish construction in sections of the city restored to the capital and annexed following the 1967 Six Day War is seen by the EU as "the biggest single threat to the two-state solution," according to the report seen by AFP on Wednesday. This refers to construction projects such as basic upgrades to neighborhoods like Gilo, home to some 40,000 Jewish and non-Jewish residents in southern Jerusalem, and built in 1980; the more central neighborhoods of Ramat Eshkol and French Hill, where residents first began living in 1970, and the outlying neighborhoods of Neve Yaakov, Pisgat Ze'ev, East Talpiot (Armon HaNatziv) and Ramot. Meanwhile, The European Union has formally recommended its 27 member states "prevent" Israeli activity in Judea and Samaria through an economic boycott of Jewish communities in those regions.

Headline: 'Spontaneous' Arab Riots a Message from PA to Obama

The "spontaneous" riots in Judea and Samaria in recent days are actually a message from the Palestinian Authority to Prime Minister Binyamin Netanyahu and United States President Barack Obama, IDF Major-General (ret.) Oren Shachor told Arutz Sheva. "There's something organized here, maybe for Obama's visit. They're interested in a breakthrough, and they want a solution for the prisoners, too," he said. Obama is planning to visit Israel in March. Top U.S. officials have said that Obama plans to listen to both Israeli and PA leaders, and then possibly to formulate a peace plan. The latest PA riots were ostensibly sparked by the death of a terrorist prisoner in an Israeli jail. While Israeli sources say the man died of a heart attack for no clear reason, the PA insists that Israel tortured him to death. The PA has repeatedly demanded the release of all PA residents in Israeli jails as part of the peace process.

Headline: Hamas Official Calls for Third Intifada

A day after a Hamas official called on terrorists to kidnap IDF soldiers in order to force Israel to release their fellow terrorists from Israeli prisons, another Hamas official called on PA Arabs on Tuesday to start an intifada (violent uprising). The official, Izzat al-Rishq, said in a statement he released, "Our Palestinian people will not abandon the intifada and the resistance, and they live their lives in constant conflict with the Israeli enemy." He added that the Israeli "aggression" which, he claimed, consists of the ongoing violation of human rights of the "Palestinian people", the "Judaization" of Jerusalem and "defilement" of the Al-Aqsa mosque brings PA Arabs to a state of daily confrontation with the Jewish residents of Judea and Samaria who, he claimed, are protected by the IDF. Al-Rishq said the IDF's preparedness against the escalation of the ongoing riots by PA Arabs will only increase their determination to avenge the death of Arafat Jaradat, the prisoner who died while in Israeli custody.

Headline: 'Hamas agrees to Palestinian state on '67 lines'

Hamas is prepared to accept a Palestinian state demarcated by the pre-1967 lines, with Jerusalem as its capital and without any Jewish settlements within its borders, an official in Hamas's political bureau said, noting that the sole difference in outlook between his organization and Fatah on the matter concerns recognition of Israel. Moussa Abu-Marzouq, the deputy head of Hamas's political bureau and the top candidate to replace the organization's chief, Khaled Mashaal, after his expected retirement, said in an interview published on Hamas's website that Hamas and Fatah had agreed to statehood based on the pre-1967 ceasefire lines as part of a national reconciliation agreement signed in Cairo on May 4, 2011. PA President Mahmoud Abbas has repeatedly asserted that Hamas agreed to the principle of Palestinian statehood along the pre-1967 lines, but never has a Hamas official so explicitly confirmed those remarks.

Headline: Report: Nasrallah's Hezbollah Deputy Injured or Killed in Syria

The second-in-command to Hizbullah chief Hassan Nasrallah has been injured -- and may have been killed -- in an attack on a convoy by Syrian opposition forces. Naim Qassem, deputy to Nasrallah, was wounded Tuesday in the blast along with several high-ranking Syrian officers, according to the Lebanon-based al-Mustaqbal newspaper. The paper, affiliated with the anti-Hizbullah movement, quoted sources linked to the Free Syrian Army (FSA) as saying the explosion struck the convoy as it was traveling along the outskirts of Damascus. According to the report, the convoy was coming from Lebanon following a meeting with senior Syrian officials. No one in the convoy survived the blast, the rebels claimed, adding they had laid mines along the Damascus-Beirut Highway on the Syrian-Lebanese border.

Headline: U.N. warns Lebanon could be drawn into Syria war

The United Nations warned Tuesday that Lebanon could be dragged into the bloody conflict in Syria, as rival Lebanese politicians struggled to agree on a new electoral law for the June 9 elections. Beirut MP Ammar Hourri said his Future Movement has been engaged in talks with the Progressive Socialist Party in an attempt to reach common ground on a hybrid vote system to break the monthslong stalemate over a new electoral law. "Discussions between the Future Movement and the PSP are ongoing on a hybrid vote formula to break the deadlock over a new electoral law," Hourri told The Daily Star. Meanwhile, the United Nations expressed renewed concern that Lebanon could be drawn into Syria's worsening 2-year-old civil war, which the world body said had developed sectarian overtones and been aggravated by foreign fighters and extremist groups.

Saudi protesters have staged fresh demonstrations against the Al Saud regime, calling for the release of political prisoners. Anti-regime protesters took to the streets in the capital Riyadh and the central province of al-Qassim on Tuesday night to voice their solidarity with a similar protest rally held earlier. On Monday, female demonstrators held a protest in Buraidah, the capital city of al-Qassim Province, to show their outrage at the Saudi regime's illegal detention of dissidents. They also burned the picture of Saudi Interior Minister Mohammad bin Nayef during the protest.

Headline: Egypt's Opposition Announces Boycott of Elections

Egypt's main opposition bloc said on Tuesday it will boycott upcoming elections because their transparency cannot be guaranteed, as President Mohammed Morsi urged dialogue to ensure the polls are impartial, AFP reported. "The decision of the Front, unanimously, is to boycott the elections," National Salvation Front member Sameh Ashour told a news conference in Cairo after a meeting of the alliance, which groups mainly liberals and leftists. Ashour said the decision had come after NSF demands, including the formation of a new government "to save the country," had been ignored. "There can be no elections without a law that guarantees the transparency of the electoral process... without a real independence of the judiciary," Ashour said as opposition activists broke out into chants against Morsi's Muslim Brotherhood.

Jeremiah 49:24-27

New King James Version (NKJV)

- 24 Damascus has grown feeble;
She turns to flee,
And fear has seized her.
Anguish and sorrows have taken her like a woman in labor.
- 25 Why is the city of praise not deserted, the city of My joy?
- 26 Therefore her young men shall fall in her streets,
And all the men of war shall be cut off in that day," says the LORD of hosts.
- 27 "I will kindle a fire in the wall of Damascus,
And it shall consume the palaces of Ben-Hadad."^[a]

The burden of Damascus. Behold, Damascus is taken away from being a city, and it shall be a ruinous heap.

Headline: Syria rebels shell central Damascus

Fierce battles pitting Syria's army against rebels rocked towns near Damascus on Wednesday as the regime renewed its campaign to suppress the insurgency around the capital, a watchdog said. Army tanks pounded the rebel-held town of Daraya southwest of Damascus, said the Syrian Observatory for Human Rights, while fresh clashes broke out in Irbin, northeast of the city. State television reported meanwhile that "two mortar rounds fell near the Faculty of Literature in Damascus", without elaborating. Pro-regime daily Al-Watan ran a headline that read: "New attempt [by insurgents] to break security in the capital, hundreds of terrorists killed." Using the regime's term to refer to insurgents, the newspaper said the army was locked in a bid to keep encroaching rebels out of Damascus on Tuesday night. "In the northeastern entrance into Damascus, on the edges of Qabun district, there was a new bid to stage an incursion into the capital... but the attempt resulted in the death of more than 100 attackers who committed a kind of collective suicide," said Al-Watan. Elsewhere, six rebel fighters were killed in fighting near the police academy in Khan al-Assal, said the Britain-based Observatory.

Headline: Syrian forces clash with rebels around Aleppo

Syrian warplanes carried out airstrikes on rebels trying to storm a police academy outside Aleppo on Wednesday, while jihadi fighters battled government troops along a key supply road leading to the southeastern part of the city, activists said. Aleppo, Syria's largest city and former commercial capital, became a key front in the country's civil war after rebels launched an offensive there in July 2012. In months of bloody street fighting, opposition fighters have slowly expanded the turf under their control, although the combat has left much of the city in ruins. The police academy has recently emerged as a new front in the fight for Aleppo, which is considered a major prize in the conflict. Activists say the government has turned the facility into a military base, using it to shell opposition areas in the countryside as well as rebel-held neighborhoods inside the city. The Britain-based Syrian Observatory for Human Rights said clashes raged Wednesday around the complex, which is located in the suburb of Khan al-Asal.

Headline: Iran exploring second route to nuclear bomb

Satellite images show that Iran's Arak heavy-water plant is operational, raising fears that it is trying to produce plutonium for a nuclear bomb, Britain's Daily Telegraph claimed on Tuesday. The newspaper published images on its website which appear to show steam rising from forced air coolers, suggesting heavy-water production at the plant, which has been closed to international inspectors for 18 months. Heavy water is required in plutonium-producing reactors and that raises alarms that Teheran is seeking a second path to obtain the bomb. Stuart Ray of consultancy firm McKenzie Intelligence Services told the paper that the images, commissioned from commercial satellite operators, suggested that the heavily-guarded facility was 'operational'. World powers and Iran on Tuesday exchanged offers at talks in Kazakhstan aimed at breaking a decade of deadlock over Teheran's disputed nuclear drive. International efforts have so far been concentrated on the Islamic Republic's attempts to enrich uranium, but the Telegraph insists that the new evidence shows it is developing a 'Plan B'.

Headline: Iran: Nuclear talks 'positive,' new Western proposals 'more realistic' than in past

Headline: U.S. moves to expand economic sanctions on Iran as nuclear talks end Iran's chief negotiator Said Jalili told a press conference in Almaty, Kazakhstan on Wednesday that nuclear talks with Western officials were "positive" and that some of the proposals presented by the powers were "more realistic than those presented in the past and made an effort to approach the positions of Iran." Nuclear talks between Iran and the P5+1 group of nations – the United States, Russia, the United Kingdom, Germany and France – in Almaty, Kazakhstan ended on Wednesday, after two days. The sides agreed to carry out a round of low-level expert talks in Istanbul on March 17 and 18, and an additional round of higher level talks with the heads of the negotiation teams in Kazakhstan, most likely in April. The talks mainly dealt with an updated proposal by the six world powers to Iran. According to the proposal, in exchange for closure of the Fordo underground facility, suspension of uranium enrichment to 20 percent and the transfer of enriched uranium outside of Iran, the world powers would offer Iran a series of measures to ease the harsh economic sanctions against the country.

Headline: Iraq's Hezbollah forms new militia to frighten protesters: Sunni leader

Iraq's prime minister warned Wednesday that a victory for Syria's rebels will spark sectarian wars in his own country and in Lebanon and will create a new haven for al-Qaida that would destabilize the region. The comments by Prime Minister Nouri al-Maliki in an interview with The Associated Press marked one of his strongest warnings yet about the turmoil that toppling Syrian President Bashar Assad could create in the Middle East. It comes as his government confronts growing tensions of its own between the Shiite majority and an increasingly restive Sunni minority nearly a decade after the U.S.-led invasion of Iraq. Fighting in Syria has sharp sectarian overtones, with predominantly Sunni rebels battling a regime dominated by Alawites, an offshoot Shiite Islam. Assad's main allies are Shiite Iran and the Shiite militant group Hezbollah in Lebanon. Al-Maliki too is a Shiite and his sect dominates Iraq's government. His comments reflect growing fears by many Shiites in Iraq and elsewhere that Sunnis would come to dominate Syria should Assad be pushed from power.

Headline: ECB bond plan in jeopardy as Italy's voters reject conditions

The verdict was much the same in chancelleries across the eurozone, especially in those countries already starting to feel the first wave of contagion. "The result touches us all," said Spain's foreign minister, Jose Manuel Garcia-Margallo. "It is a jump into the void that bodes well for nobody, neither for Italy, nor for the rest of Europe." Almost 57pc of the Italian vote went to parties that have vowed to tear up the EU austerity script. Together they control a majority of senate seats. The great fear is that the European Central Bank (ECB) will find it impossible to prop up the Italian bond market under its Outright Monetary Transactions (OMT) scheme if there is no coalition in Rome willing or able to comply with the tough conditions imposed by the EU at Berlin's behest. Europe's rescue strategy could start to unravel.

Andrew Roberts, credit chief at RBS, said: "What has happened in these elections is of seismic importance. "The ECB rescue depends on countries doing what they are told. That has now been torn asunder by domestic politics in Italy.

Headline: Europe deals with independence movements in Britain, Belgium, Spain (Daniel 2:41-43)

Scotland, Flanders and Catalonia. Independence movements in these regions of Britain, Belgium and Spain are raising concerns about the stability of a fractious European Union trying to forge closer ties to prevent economic catastrophe. Cultural identity plays a role in each independence movement, but some of the separatists are also gaining support over the response to the debt crisis in the 27-nation EU, analysts say. "When a national government is hell bent on austerity and pulling out resources, whatever tension that exists between [political] centers and the periphery is going to be even that much more awkward," said Ben Tonra, a professor who specializes in European relations at Ireland's University College Dublin. The EU has spent billions of dollars to bail out fiscally reckless countries like Greece and prevent a collapse of the euro, a currency used by 17 of the member-nations.

Headline: US unemployment merits third round of money printing, says Ben Bernanke

Ben Bernanke, chairman of the US Federal Reserve, defended the decision to launch a third round of QE by telling US politicians that the benefits still outweighed the risks. He was speaking shortly after Sir Mervyn King, Governor of the Bank of England, told an audience in Japan that monetary policy was “not a panacea” for economic problems and repeated his warning that, “as time passes, larger and larger doses of stimulus are required”. Mr Bernanke said policymakers were aware of the risks from QE3, which was launched at the end of last year, including potential problems with unwinding the programme and rising inflation, but he claimed they were not material at the moment. “To this point, we do not see the potential costs of the increased risk-taking in some financial markets as outweighing the benefits of promoting a stronger economic recovery and more rapid job creation,” he told the Senate Banking Committee. The Fed is currently buying $85bn (£57bn) in bonds each month under QE3, having already acquired $2.5 trillion, and plans to keep purchasing assets until it sees a sharp improvement in unemployment.

Headline: North Korea: US 'Well Within' Nuclear Range

Pyongyang has a message for the US: North Korea has become a "fully-independent rocket and nuclear weapons state," according to an official website—and America "should be acutely aware that the US mainland is now well within the range of our strategic rockets and nuclear weapons." How credible is the warning? Experts say it could be awhile before the North actually has an intercontinental ballistic missile ready, AFP notes. But debris from December's rocket launch suggested its possible range included the US West Coast, according to South Korea. Closer to home, Pyongyang is fuming over planned US-South Korea military drills. The Korean peninsula is "an inch away from explosion," official news warns. "The US is to blame for the situation on the Korean peninsula, which is inching close to an unpredictable phase now," said Pyongyang's UN ambassador, according to Reuters. Washington is pushing a "hostile policy" against the North via the UN Security Council, the official said.

Headline: China increases military buildup in South China Sea

China announced on Monday that it's increasing its military patrols in the South China Sea to protect Chinese fishermen and, presumably, to keep out other countries' fishermen. China has declared that it's claiming sovereignty over the entire South China Sea, including regions that have historically belonged to other countries, including the Philippines, Brunei, the Philippines, Malaysia, Taiwan, and Vietnam. China announced last year that in 2013 it would start boarding and taking control of other countries' ships in the South China Sea. According to China, the new South China Sea patrols highlight great advances in China's law enforcement capability in relevant waters, as Beijing seeks to safeguard its sovereignty and national interests in the region.

Headline: Mysterious new disease striking young women, symptoms mimic demonic possession

More disturbing evidences of vaccine-induced brain damage are emerging in the U.S. as primarily young women are increasingly developing a mysterious autoimmune condition known as anti-NMDA receptor encephalitis that exhibits symptoms similar to demonic possession. According to a recent report by CBS Philly, young women who develop the condition may act normally one minute, and the next minute develop extreme paranoia or an inability to control their limbs, which experts admit is a result of antibodies attacking the brain, causing swelling and inflammation. Two young women from the New England area are cited in the story as having suffered from the condition in recent years, which resulted in both of them developing extreme and bizarre side effects such as uncontrollable seizures, drastic mood changes, paranoia, and an inability to function and communicate properly. And the one thing the two had in common was brain inflammation so severe that one prominent area doctor described it as the brain literally being "on fire."

Headline: Bird flu death toll in Cambodia rises to 8

Officials said Cambodia's outbreak of the bird flu has become the country's largest flare-up ever, as the disease has now claimed eight lives. The Phnom Penh Post said Theon Doeun of Kampong Cham died Monday night. He was the ninth known case of the disease and the eighth death since the outbreak began two months ago. In 2011, the outbreak lasted seven months, during which there were eight cases and eight deaths, The Post reported. Doeun is believed to have caught H5N1 after eating two infected ducks three weeks ago, the Post reported. After Doeun's diagnosis, more than 300 poultry were killed, the Post said. Ly Sovann, the Ministry of Health's deputy director for communicable diseases control, said he was worried about the spread of the disease and asked residents for their help.

Headline: Reports of rare superbug jump in US, CDC says

A sharp jump in the number of rare but potentially deadly types of a superbug resistant to nearly all last-resort antibiotics has prompted government health officials to renew warnings for U.S. hospitals, nursing homes and other health care settings. The move comes just as researchers in Israel are reporting that people who carry dangerous CRE -- Carbapenem-resistant enterobacteriaceae -- can take more than a year before they test negative for the bacteria, making it more difficult to control and raising the risk of wider spread. Reports of unusual forms of CRE have nearly doubled in the U.S., the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention reported this month. Of 37 cases of rare forms of CRE, including the alarming NDM -- New Delhi metallo-beta-lactamase -- 15 have been reported since last July.

Prophecy Sign: Persecution Matthew 24:9 & Revelation 6:9

"Then they will deliver you up to tribulation and kill you, and you will be hated by all nations for My name's sake." (Matthew)

“When He opened the fifth seal, I saw under the altar the souls of those who had been slain for the word of God and for the testimony which they held.” (Revelation)

Headline: Muslims Behead Another Christian Pastor

A Christian pastor was recently slaughtered in the Muslim-majority African nation of Tanzania. While butchering Christian minorities is becoming increasingly common in that part of the Muslim world, the context for this latest slaughter is somewhat different than the usual forms of Christian persecution under Islam—such as allegations of “blaspheming” the name of Muslim prophet Muhammad. And yet, as in most forms of modern-day Muslim attacks on Christians, it too fits patterns and precedents. According to Religious Liberty Monitoring this latest slaying “has its source in a debate presently raging in Tanzania. Apparently it is a ‘long-standing tradition’ in Tanzania that Muslims have a monopoly on the meat industry. Recently however, Christians in Geita district, Mwanza region—on the southern shores of Lake Victoria—have entered the butchery trade, causing outrage amongst Muslims.”

Prophecy Sign: Apostasy & Alternative Lifestyles Amos 8:11, 1 Timothy 4:1-3 & Romans 1:26-27

“Now the Spirit expressly says that in latter times some will depart from the faith, giving heed to deceiving spirits and doctrines of demons, ² speaking lies in hypocrisy, having their own conscience seared with a hot iron, ³ forbidding to marry, and commanding to abstain from foods which God created to be received with thanksgiving by those who believe and know the truth.” (1 Timothy)

“Behold, the days are coming,” says the Lord GOD, “That I will send a famine on the land, Not a famine of bread, Nor a thirst for water, But of hearing the words of the LORD.” (Amos)

“For this reason God gave them up to vile passions. For even their women exchanged the natural use for what is against nature. Likewise also the men, leaving the natural use of the woman, burned in their lust for one another, men with men committing what is shameful and receiving in themselves the penalty of their error which was due”(Romans)

Headline: Obama Nearing Push to Make Gay Marriage a Constitutional Right

Headline: Which 80 Prominent Republicans Just Signed a Legal Brief Proclaiming Gay Marriage Is a Constitutional Right?

President Barack Obama may be poised to show new support for gay marriage as a deadline approaches for his administration to take a stand in the U.S. Supreme Court on a California ban on same-sex nuptials. A month after urging legal equality for gays in his inauguration speech, Obama could use the high court case as an occasion to call for same-sex marriage rights nationwide. An administration filing last week, in a separate Supreme Court case involving a law that limits federal benefits for same-sex couples, may have foreshadowed a call to overturn California’s ban under Proposition 8. In arguing against the federal law, Obama’s lawyers said gays have endured a history of discrimination and now should be afforded special protection under the Constitution, much like racial minorities and women. “The undisputed 20th-century discrimination has lasted long enough,” wrote U.S. Solicitor General Donald Verrilli, the president’s top Supreme Court lawyer.

Prophecy Sign: EARTHQUAKES/WEATHER

(Isaiah 24:19-20 , Matthew 24:7, Mark 13:8 , Luke 21:11 , Luke 21:25 - storms)

Headline: Cyclone Rusty hits Cat 4 level

People on Australia's west coast hunkered down Wednesday with slow-moving Category 4 Tropical Cyclone Rusty just 80 miles off shore. The Australian Broadcasting Corp. said Rusty's winds were roaring up to 125 miles per hour near its center. The powerful storm, about 125 miles wide, was expected to still be at Category 4 when it hits land somewhere between Port Hedland and Pardoo sometime during the afternoon, the ABC said. Forecasters predict Rusty will saturate parts of Australia with up to 24 inches of rain in a 24-hour period, the ABC said. People living in the red alert area have been warned to take shelter or a prolonged period because the storm is moving forward so slowly.

Headline: Chicago braces for snow as the Great Plains dig out after deadly hurricane-force storm leaves at least three dead and thousands without power

A potent winter storm that buried much of the Great Plains and left at least three people dead moved into Chicago on Tuesday, forcing hundreds of flight cancellations and raising the prospect of a nightmarish evening commute. The National Weather Service's Chicago office issued a winter weather advisory from noon through 9pm (CET). Forecasters predicted the storm, which packs a dangerous mix of wet snow, sleet, rain and high winds, would reach peak intensity around the evening rush hour, reducing visibility and creating treacherous driving conditions.

The Arab Spring in Prophecy

(Perilous Times Luke 21:9 & Nation against Nation, Kingdom against Kingdom Matt.24:7)
(Revelation 6:3-4 Revelation 6:8)

“For nation shall rise against nation,
and kingdom against kingdom.
There will be earthquakes in various places, and there will be famines and sedition; these are the beginning of the labor pains.”

Mark 13:8

CIVIL UNREST

Luke 21:9 and Matthew 24:7 speak of nation against nation and kingdom against kingdom in the end times. Revelation 6:3-4 speaks of the fiery red horse given power to make men slay one another and Revelation 6:8 speaks again of this red horse in conjunction with the pale horse of Death and Hades, as the one that has the power to kill by sword. I like to call this “The Arab Spring in Prophecy” because for us it is easy to identify- that’s what the world calls it.

Luke 21:9: wars & commotions; the Greek word here is Akatastasia, meaning instability, a state of disorder, disturbance, confusion (revolutions)

Matthew 24:7: the Greek word for nation is Ethnos & refers to various ethnic groups fighting among themselves, where the next sentence in the verse refers to kingdoms (basileiva) fighting one another (not to be confused with an actual kingdom but rather the right or authority to rule over a kingdom) I have tried to separate it into areas that sweep EAST from the point of North America.

Africa- ONLY COUNTRIES NOT IN PROPHECY

Headline: French in tough fight in northern Mali

Headline: Car bombing kills four in northern Mali

France's defense minister said Tuesday that French troops are involved in "very violent fighting" in the mountains of northern Mali and that it's too early to talk about a quick pullout from the West African country, despite the growing cost of the intervention. The fighting against Islamic extremists in the Adrar des Ifoghas mountains has been going on for days. A clash in the area killed 23 soldiers from neighboring Chad on Friday, according to a letter from French President Francois Hollande expressing condolences to his Chadian counterpart. Soldiers from Chad and a few other African countries have joined the French-led operation to help Mali's weak military push back extremists who had imposed harsh rule on northern Mali and started moving toward the capital last month.

Middle East- ONLY COUNTRIES NOT IN PROPHECY

Headline: Bahrainis rally for return of protester's corpse

A second wave of protests took place Wednesday in Manama demanding the Bahraini authorities to hand over the corpse of Mahmood al-Jazeera, a protester killed by the police, to his family.

According to the Bahrain Center for Human Rights (BCHR), Jazeera was hit directly on his head at close range by a teargas canister during an unarmed protest that took place in Nabi Saleh on February 14, marking the second anniversary of Bahrain's pro-democracy movement. Jazeera, 20, died from his wounds eight days later, after falling into a coma and suffering from a fractured skull, intracerebral bleeding, multiple brain contusions and severe brain edema, the BCHR stated.

Bahrain authorities have refused to hand in Jazeera's corpse to his family for proper burial, according to opposition activists. The authorities do not appear to have issued a statement with regards to the issue.

Europe

Headline: Bulgaria's winter of discontent

More than 100,000 people hit the streets in more than 40 towns in what local media described as the biggest demonstrations since 1997, when mass demonstrations over hyperinflation led to the fall of the then Socialist government. The latest protests were still going on on Tuesday, for the 17th day in a row. In another echo of 1997, they forced the centre-right government of Prime Minister Boyko Borisov to step down last week. According to different estimates, between 100,000 and 200,000 people were out on the streets of Bulgaria on Sunday, with increasingly different, contradictory and sometimes absurd demands. There are economic demands - the ones that started the demonstrations in the first place. In a country where the average monthly salary is not more than €400, people want their electricity bills reduced and all contracts signed with electric companies in the last 24 years revised. They have united "against the monopolies of the electric companies" and want them to be disciplined or nationalised. There are political demands as well. Most demonstrators say they want a total overhaul of the political system. But what this means and how it is to be achieved is another matter.

Headline: Tibetan teens set fire to themselves

A double self-immolation in southwestern China has claimed the lives of two Tibetan teenagers, human rights groups say. The two, residents of a Tibetan area of Sichuan province, set fire to themselves to protest Chinese rule, Antara News Agency reported. The victims were 18-year-old Donam Dargye and a 17-year-old identified only as Rinchen. Since 2009, more than 100 people have set themselves on fire to protest China's rule over Tibet. The International Campaign for Tibet said at least 22 of the self-immolations involved people younger than 19.
