(Zech.12:3 & 9 - The Burdensome Stone)

Headline: Abbas Welcomes Summit on Reconciliation, Jerusalem Fund

Qatar called on Tuesday for the immediate establishment of a $1 billion fund to help Palestinians in east Jerusalem, and offered to contribute $250 million to it. Qatar's Emir, Sheikh Hamad bin Khalifa Al-Thani, made the proposal at the opening of an Arab summit in Doha that is expected to focus on the crisis in Syria and stalled Israeli-Palestinian peace process. The emir did not, however, elaborate on the practicalities of the fund. He also suggested an Arab summit in Cairo to implement Palestinian reconciliation between Fatah and Hamas, Palestinian news agency Ma'an reported. Palestinians contend that Israeli building in E1 would separate east Jerusalem from the West Bank, damaging the prospects for the establishment of a contiguous Palestinian state with east Jerusalem as its capital. Headline: Palestinians hail UN call for end to Israeli settlements

The Palestine Liberation Organization lauded on Tuesday UN condemnation of Israeli settlement building, but slammed the US position on human rights "violations" by the Jewish state. "On behalf of the Palestinian people and leadership, I would like to express great appreciation and gratitude" to the UN's Human Rights Council, PLO Executive Committee member Hanan Ashrawi said in a statement. "We appreciate your support and value your courage to stand behind your convictions." The UNHRC presented a report to diplomats this month which said Israel must immediately begin withdrawing its settlers from the Palestinian territories. The body also passed resolutions slamming settlement building and alleged abuses against Palestinians, all of which the US voted against.

Jordan

Headline: Jordan denies Syrian border closures as rebels claim crossing seizure

Jordan on Monday rejected as baseless reports claiming that the Kingdom has moved to close its borders with Syria amid claims by rebel forces that they have captured their first ever crossing point into Jordan. Minister of State for Media Affairs and Government Spokesman Samih Maaytah stressed that authorities have not closed the Nasib/Jaber border crossing with Syria — the focus of a heated 48-hour battle between regime and rebel forces. “Jordan has not taken any decision to close the Jaber border crossing — if there are any disruptions, they are coming from the Syrian side,” Maaytah told The Jordan Times. Maaytah’s statement came as rebel forces claimed to have “liberated” the crossing point, which lies some 10 kilometres north of the border city of Mafraq and has long acted as one of Syria’s main conduits into Jordan.

United Nations Special Coordinator for Lebanon Derek Plumbly underscored the organization’s support for stability in the country following the resignation of the government of Prime Minister Najib Miqati. In a statement made following a meeting with Miqati on Tuesday, the UN envoy echoed the stance of UN chief Ban Ki-Moon, stressing “the importance of all Lebanese working together with the institutions of the state to maintain calm and stability, respecting Lebanon’s policy of disassociation, and supporting the Lebanese Armed Forces and the security forces.” Plumbly also stressed the importance of reaching consensus over a new government when asked whether he was “worried” about the possible repercussions on Lebanon of the resignation of its government.

Headline: Shia Saudi cleric Sheikh Nimr charged with instigating unrest

A court in Saudi Arabia has charged prominent Shia cleric Sheikh Nimr al-Nimr with "instigating unrest" and "seeking foreign meddling" in the kingdom. Sheikh Nimr appeared in court on Tuesday, nearly eight months after he was arrested for criticizing the ruling Al Saud family and demanding the release of political prisoners, AFP news agency quoted a witness as saying. The prosecutor also accused the cleric of supporting uprising in Bahrain, where Saudi troops are assisting the ruling Al Khalifa family in its brutal crackdown on demonstrations. The court panel adjourned the hearing until a lawyer is appointed.

Headline: Egypt court postpones ruling on Muslim Brotherhood's legality

A leading Egyptian blogger, who was previously arrested during his country's revolution under the rule of toppled Hosni Mubarak, was again taken into custody by orders from the country's prosecutor general on Monday. Alaa Abd el-Fattah, along with four other prominent political activists, are accused of stirring violence against the Muslim Brotherhood. Fattah, a symbolic figure of the Egyptian revolution, said in a statement he would head to the prosecutor general's office on Tuesday calling the warrant of arrest as a proof of the "corruption of the case and the prosecutor general's bias in favor of the Muslim Brotherhood." Meanwhile, an Egyptian court postponed on Tuesday a ruling on whether President Mohamed Mursi's Muslim Brotherhood is illegal, agreeing to the Islamist group's request for more time to present evidence in a case that has put it on the defensive.

Jeremiah 49:24-27

New King James Version (NKJV)

- 24 Damascus has grown feeble;
She turns to flee,
And fear has seized her.
Anguish and sorrows have taken her like a woman in labor.
- 25 Why is the city of praise not deserted, the city of My joy?
- 26 Therefore her young men shall fall in her streets,
And all the men of war shall be cut off in that day," says the LORD of hosts.
- 27 "I will kindle a fire in the wall of Damascus,
And it shall consume the palaces of Ben-Hadad."^[a]

The burden of Damascus. Behold, Damascus is taken away from being a city, and it shall be a ruinous heap.

Headline: Doha summit to allow Arab countries to arm Syrian rebels America must use Patriot missile systems in southern Turkey to prevent government attacks on civilians, the head of the Syrian opposition has said as he took over the country's Arab League seat. "I have asked Mr Kerry to extend the umbrella of the Patriot missiles to cover the Syrian north and he promised to study the subject," he said. "We are still waiting for a decision from Nato to protect people's lives, not to fight but to protect lives." The Sunni Muslim cleric took over Syria's vacant chair at the Arab League summit in Doha despite announcing on Sunday that he would step down as leader of the Syrian National Coalition. Meanwhile, the Arab Summit, which started in Doha today, is expected to issue a resolution giving any Arab country the right to arm the Free Syrian Army. In a draft resolution obtained by The Jordan Times, the Arab Summit also calls for a peaceful transfer of power in Syria and recognises the Syrian National Coalition (SNC) as the sole legitimate representative of the Syrian people. The declaration also calls for efforts to reconstruct Syria after two years of war that destroyed the country's infrastructure and for holding an international conference for that purpose.

Syria's opposition chief demanded in a fiery address after taking over his country's seat at an Arab League summit on Tuesday that he be allowed to represent Syria at the United Nations. Ahmed Moaz al-Khatib, head of the Syrian National Coalition opposition grouping, also insisted that Syria's future should not be determined by foreign powers. "We demand ... the seat of Syria at the United Nations and at other international organizations," Khatib said, addressing Arab leaders at the Doha summit. Syrian people alone should determine who rules the country, said Khatib, who on Sunday resigned his post although his resignation has yet to be accepted by the Coalition.

The United Nations said Monday it is moving about half of its 100 international staff in Syria out of the country after mortar shells were reported near the hotel housing its members. The Damascus office of U.N.-Arab League envoy Lakhdar Brahimi will be closed as part of the new measures, diplomats told the Agence France Presse news agency ahead of an official U.N. announcement. Brahimi's staff will be moved to Cairo or Lebanon. U.N. spokesman Martin Nesirky, who blamed worsening security conditions for the evacuation decision said all of the 800 Syrian staff remaining have been told to work from home until security improves. "Yesterday and today a number of mortar shells fell in close proximity to and on the grounds of the hotel in Damascus housing U.N. staff," Nesirky said. The mortars damaged the building and some cars, including one U.N. vehicle, he added.

Headline: Car bomb hits Syrian capital as rebels press closer

A suicide car bomber caused a deadly blast in northeastern Damascus on Tuesday, Syrian state television said, as rebel fighters stepped up attacks in the Syrian capital. The pro-government al-Ikhbariya news channel said the explosion had gone off near a military supply office.

But opposition activists in the area said it was not clear if the blast had been caused by a bomb or a mortar round. Neither side gave precise casualty figures, but the British-based Syrian Observatory for Human Rights, which has a network of contacts in Syria, said civilians and soldiers were among the dead in the attack in the Rukn al-Din district. Fighting between President Bashar al-Assad's forces and rebels has come closer to central Damascus in recent months. Opposition fighters vowed to intensify attacks on the capital in an online statement at the weekend, in a campaign they named "Operation Shaking the Fort".

Headline: Iraq’s deputy PM accused of striking deal with Hezbollah

Members of the Iraqi List accused the Deputy Prime Minister, Saleh al-Mutlaq, of sealing a deal with the Lebanese Shiite Party Hezbollah. The agreement is reportedly based upon the stipulation that he returns to the cabinet and supports Prime Minister Nuri al-Maliki. He is accused of striking that deal during his last visit to Lebanon. Mutalq’s announcement that he will participate in today’s cabinet session chaired by Maliki fueled the anger of the Iraqi List which said it will boycott the session. One of the list’s members said there is widespread popular anger towards Mutlaq and accused the latter of being an opportunist.

A powerful bomb tore through an armored car near a disputed town north of Baghdad on Tuesday, killing two officials and badly wounding a third, weeks ahead of Iraq’s first polls since 2010. The blast, which also killed one of the officials’ bodyguards and wounded another in the town of Tuz Khurmatu, brings to 11 the number of candidates in the provincial council elections who have been killed. Mayor Shallah Abdul, council chief Abdulqader Naimi and Salaheddin provincial councilor Rashid Khorshid had been travelling together to inspect a road paving project north of the town when the bomb went off close to their armoured car. Naimi and Khorshid, both candidates in provincial elections due to be held on April 20, were killed, and Abdul was badly wounded and transported to a hospital in the Kurdish city of Sulaimaniyah. The attack is likely to raise tensions in the town which is at the centre of a years-long row that politicians have warned threatens civil war.

He claimed that among other promises, Israel agreed to improve the conditions of Palestinians living in Gaza, and reiterated his country’s commitment to promoting the Palestinian issues regardless of the country’s relations with Israel. Meanwhile, Turkey’s prime minister said Tuesday he plans to visit the Palestinian territories to see if Israel follows through on its pledge to lift the Gaza blockage. Headline: Afghanistan Suicide Attack Kills 5 Police Officers As John Kerry Meets With Hamid Karzai In Kabul

Eight suicide bombers struck a police headquarters in eastern Afghanistan on Tuesday, killing at least five officers, a security official said. The attack in Jalalabad, about 120 kilometers (75 miles) east of Kabul, came on the second day of U.S. Secretary of State John Kerry's visit to the Afghan capital. First, an insurgent in an explosives-laden car detonated his vehicle in front of the Jalalabad Police Quick Reaction Force. Then, seven other attackers wearing vests rigged with explosives stormed the compound, police said. Three attackers blew themselves up inside the complex while police shot the remaining four during a gunfight that lasted more than an hour. Some of the attackers wore uniforms resembling those worn by the U.S.-led NATO coalition, said police chief Mohammad Sharif Amin in Nangarhar province, where Jalalabad is the capital. Taliban spokesman Zabiullah Mujahid claimed responsibility for the attack.

Headline: BRICS Summit Opens in South Africa

The biggest emerging markets are uniting to tackle under-development and currency volatility with plans to set up institutions that encroach on the roles of the World Bank and International Monetary Fund. The leaders of the so-called BRICS nations -- Brazil, Russia, India, China and South Africa -- are set to approve the establishment of a new development bank during an annual summit that began today in the eastern South African city of Durban, officials from all five nations say. They will also discuss pooling foreign-currency reserves to ward off balance of payments or currency crises.

“The deepest rationale for the BRICS is almost certainly the creation of new Bretton Woods-type institutions that are inclined toward the developing world,” Martyn Davies, chief executive officer of Johannesburg-based Frontier Advisory, which provides research on emerging markets, said in a phone interview. “There’s a shift in power from the traditional to the emerging world. There is a lot of geo-political concern about this shift in the western world.” The BRICS nations, which have combined foreign-currency reserves of $4.4 trillion and account for 43 percent of the world’s population, are seeking greater sway in global finance to match their rising economic power.

Headline: Eurozone official says banks in Spain, Italy, and Europe could be raided to save Euro

The new policy will alarm hundreds of thousands of British expatriates who live and have transferred their savings, proceeds from house sales and other assets to eurozone bank accounts in countries such as France, Spain and Italy. The euro fell on global markets after Jeroen Dijsselbloem, the Dutch chairman of the eurozone, announced that the heavy losses inflicted on depositors in Cyprus would be the template for future banking crises across Europe. "If there is a risk in a bank, our first question should be 'Okay, what are you in the bank going to do about that? What can you do to recapitalize yourself?," he said. "If the bank can't do it, then we'll talk to the shareholders and the bondholders, we'll ask them to contribute in recapitalizing the bank, and if necessary the uninsured deposit holders." Ditching a three-year-old policy of protecting senior bondholders and large depositors, over €100,000, in banks, Mr. Dijsselbloem argued that the lack of market contagion surrounding Cyprus showed that private investors could now be hit to pay for bad banking debts. "If we want to have a healthy, sound financial sector, the only way is to say, Look, there where you take on the risks, you must deal with them, and if you can't deal with them, then you shouldn't have taken them on," he said.

North Korea said on Tuesday it had ordered its strategic rocket and long-range artillery units to target US military bases on Guam, Hawaii and mainland America, Reuters reported. The North's KCNA news agency said "supreme command" had ordered the units to assume "combat duty posture No. 1." South Korea's Defense Ministry said, however, that it had seen no signs of an imminent attack. The order is the latest in a series of fiery statements from isolated, nuclear-armed North Korea since joint military drills by the United States and South Korea began on March 11. The North threatened the United States with "pre-emptive nuclear strikes" earlier this month. North Korea is not believed to have the capability to hit the continental United States with an atomic weapon. But the US military's bases in the Pacific area are in range of its medium-range missiles, Reuters reported.

Tuberculosis (TB) was declared nothing less than a world-wide health emergency by the World Health Organization 20 years ago. If you haven't heard much about the threat of that disease lately, does it mean modern medicine has it under control? Far from it. In fact, a group of international health policy makers and healthcare experts recently held a meeting in London on World TB Day (March 24th) and issued a series of papers in the medical journal Lancet to issue a global warning. They claim drug-resistant TB is a growing threat to millions of people across the planet. There are two strains of these superbugs that are particularly frightening to medical experts -- multi-drug resistant TB (MDR), which is resistant to treatment with the most potent drugs used to treat the disease (isoniazid and rifampin) and extensively drug resistant TB (XDR), which is resistant to an even wider range of drugs.

Headline: 'Superspreaders' could turn new coronavirus into SARS-like event: experts

People who think the new coronavirus couldn't take off and cause a SARS-like crisis may have forgotten a phenomenon that was a game-changer during SARS -- patients called superspreaders. At present, this new coronavirus doesn't seem to spread easily from person to person, a fact which some people use to argue it will not become the next SARS. Some limited human transmission has occurred, but confirmed cases are few and sporadically seen. However, several experts suggest that superspreaders, which turned SARS into a global outbreak, could do the same with this new virus. That term refers to people who buck the transmission trend with a given bacteria or virus, infecting many more people than is the norm.

Headline: Bill Gates' $100 million database to track students

Over the past 18 months, a massive $100 million public-school database spearheaded by the $36.4 billion-strong Bill and Melinda Gates Foundation has been in the making that freely shares student information with private companies. The system has been in operation for several months and already contains millions of K-12 students' personal identification – ranging from name, address, Social Security number, attendance, test scores, homework completion, career goals, learning disabilities, and even hobbies and attitudes about school. Claiming that the national database will enhance education, the main funder of the project, the Gates Foundation, entered the joint venture with the Carnegie Corporation of New York and school officials from a number of states. After Rupert Murdoch's Amplify Education (a division of News Corp) spent more than a year developing the system's infrastructure, the Gates Foundation delivered it to inBloom – a nonprofit corporation recently established to run the database.

Revelation 6:3-4 speaks of the fiery red horse given power to make men slay one another and Revelation 6:8 speaks again of this red horse in conjunction with the pale horse of Death and Hades, as the one that has the power to kill by sword. I like to call this “The Arab Spring in Prophecy” because for us it is easy to identify- that’s what the world calls it.*

Luke 21:9: wars & commotions; the Greek word here is Akatastasia, meaning instability, a state of disorder, disturbance, confusion (revolutions)

Matthew 24:7: the Greek word for nation is Ethnos & refers to various ethnic groups fighting among themselves, where the next sentence in the verse refers to kingdoms (basileiva) fighting one another (not to be confused with an actual kingdom but rather the right or authority to rule over a kingdom) I have tried to separate it into areas that sweep EAST from the point of North America.

Headline: Djotodia to rule by decree, suspends constitution

Headline: Rebels patrol Central African Republic capital

Michel Djotodia, who seized power in the Central African Republic over the weekend, announced late on Monday that he would rule by decree, having dissolved parliament and suspended the constitution. Central African strongman Michel Djotodia was facing international isolation Tuesday after dissolving the country's institutions and announcing he would rule by decree after the weekend coup. The former diplomat turned rebel leader, whose Seleka coalition took over the capital Bangui in a rapid-fire weekend assault, announced late on Monday he would rule by decree until elections are organised in three years. Earlier Monday, the African Union suspended the coup-prone landlocked nation from its membership and the European Union condemned the coup as "unacceptable".

Europe

Headline: Protesters rally against bailout in Cyprus

Protesters have marched near the presidential palace in Cyprus, as questions over the bailout package for the financially crippled island linger with the resignation of the chairman of the country's largest commercial bank. As protesters took to the streets on Tuesday, Bank of Cyprus Chairman Andreas Artemis submitted his resignation opposing plans to restructure the bank, Al Jazeera's John Psaropoulos, reporting from Nicosia, said. The refinancing and restructuring plan of the Bank of Cyprus requires it to absorb the deposits of another financial institution called Laiki Bank, which has been shuttered. As banks remained closed nationwide for the second week, an estimated 1,500 protesters gathered in the capital Nicosia to denounce the European Union, European Central Bank and the International Monetary Fund creditors. The protesters, many of them students who organised the event online, were cheered on by government workers as they marched past the labour ministry.

Headline: Death toll from attacks targeting Myanmar Muslims rises to 40

Myanmar government says death toll from recent attacks targeting Rohingya Muslims in central part of the country has risen to 40. State media reported on Tuesday that eight more bodies were found in the wreckage of a riot-hit area in the town of Meiktila. Clashes erupted in Meiktila on March 20 when extremist Buddhists attacked dozens of houses and mosques for three days. Earlier reports said that at least 32 people were killed in the violence that also displaced more than 12,000 people. Vijay Nambiar, the UN's top adviser on Myanmar, toured Meiktila on Sunday and called on the government to punish those responsible for the tragedy.
