The Israel Air Force shot down a Hezbollah drone off the coast of Haifa on Thursday. IDF air defenses picked up the drone shortly after 1 p.m., and F-16 fighter aircraft and combat helicopters scrambled to intercept it. Simultaneously drama unfolded in the skies in the North, as an air force helicopter carrying Prime Minister Binyamin Netanyahu on a visit to a Druse village in the Western Galilee was forced to land after pilots were told about the drone. The hostile craft flew southward along the Lebanese coastline when it came under the observation of the IAF. As it was flying about 8 kilometers off the coast of Haifa, IAF chief Maj.-Gen. Amir Eshel gave the order to destroy the drone, and an F-16 dispatched a missile, blowing up its target at an altitude of 6,000 feet, IDF Spokesman Brig.- Gen. Yoav Mordechai said. It was not immediately clear whether the drone was armed. The IDF was searching for the craft's remains in the Mediterranean Sea.

Headline: Israeli army breaks up Palestinian march on Jewish settlement

Israeli soldiers fired tear gas and rubber bullets to disperse about 500 Palestinian villagers marching toward a Jewish settlement outpost in the occupied West Bank on Friday. The procession, the largest of its kind for years, followed charges by Palestinians that the Israeli settlers, whose caravans abut village land, had attacked them twice this week. Around half a million settlers have moved to the West Bank and East Jerusalem since Israel captured the area, along with the Gaza Strip, in the 1967 Middle East War. Palestinians want the settlements gone from what they see as their future state. Men from Deir Jareer, including Christian and Muslim clerics, gathered for Friday prayers on a craggy outcrop between their village and a cluster of half a dozen makeshift settler homes surrounded by Israeli army jeeps and soldiers. Their march, preceded by a group of stone-throwing youths, was repeatedly pushed back by salvos of Israeli tear gas. Young boys howled from the effects of the tear gas and old men hitched up their robes to flee, holding onion slices to their noses.

Gaza's Hamas terrorist rulers condemned on Thursday a decision by the Palestinian Authority to postpone five UNESCO resolutions against Israel. "This step is like a reward to the occupation for its crimes and violations," Hamas spokesman Fawzi Barhoum said in a statement quoted by the Bethlehem-based Ma'an news agency. "It is a contribution in erasing the Arabic and Islamic identity of Jerusalem, and it encourages the occupation to continue its Judaization program," Barhoum said. The Hamas official added that no one had the right to compromise the rights of the Palestinian people.

Headline: Obama to meet Jordan king, Syria atop agenda

Jordanians have staged an anti-US demonstration in the capital, Amman, to protest against the proposed deployment of US troops on the kingdom's border with Syria. Hundreds of Jordanian protesters took to the streets on Friday to express their opposition to the planned deployment of 200 US troops in their country, AP reported. The demonstrators said the deployment could be just the beginning of a process that paves the way for US interference in the Syrian unrest. They also burned American flags. They also said that they do not want to see a US-led invasion of Syria, like the 2003 war in Iraq, based on faulty intelligence about weapons of mass destruction. "No to US troops in Jordan. This is not in our national interest," the demonstrators chanted.

Headline: Jordan's Islamist MPs challenge alliance with Israel

Increasingly “disobedient” Jordanian parliamentarians are challenging the Hashemite leadership’s firm relationship with Israel, in a not-so-subtle tug of war between King Abdullah and a disgruntled civil society. Media and labor unions in the kingdom — Israel’s best ally in the Arab Middle East — already all formally boycott Israel. Now the political climate is becoming ever more hostile too. The latest example stemmed from Israel’s 65th Independence Day celebrations. Last week, Jordanian member of parliament Muhammad Asha Dawaimah made the “mistake” of attending an independence event at the residence of President Shimon Peres.

The Lebanese army has increased its presence along the Lebanon-Israel border, the official Lebanese National News Agency reported on Friday. According to the report, the IDF increased its presence along the border as well, and IAF aircraft were seen flying over Lebanese territory. The news comes a day after an unmanned aerial vehicle (UAV) penetrated Israeli air space from Lebanon. The UAV was shot down by Israel about eight kilometers off the coast of Haifa. Hizbullah was fingered as being behind the incident, but the terror group denied “sending any unmanned drone towards occupied Palestine.” Deputy Defense Minister Danny Danon promised that Israel would retaliate for the UAV flight into Israeli airspace.

Jeremiah 49:24-27

New King James Version (NKJV)

- 24 Damascus has grown feeble;
She turns to flee,
And fear has seized her.
Anguish and sorrows have taken her like a woman in labor.
- 25 Why is the city of praise not deserted, the city of My joy?
- 26 Therefore her young men shall fall in her streets,
And all the men of war shall be cut off in that day,” says the LORD of hosts.
- 27 “I will kindle a fire in the wall of Damascus,
And it shall consume the palaces of Ben-Hadad.”^[a]

The burden of Damascus. Behold, Damascus is taken away from being a city, and it shall be a ruinous heap.

Two Syrian officials denied Friday that government forces had used chemical weapons against rebels, Damascus' first response to U.S. assertions that it had. On Thursday, the White House and other top Obama administration officials said that U.S. intelligence had concluded with "varying degrees of confidence" that the Syrian government has twice used chemical weapons in its civil war. In the Syrian capital however, a government official said President Bashar Assad's military "did not and will not use chemical weapons even if it had them." He instead accused opposition forces of using them in a March attack on the village of Khan al-Assad outside of the northern city of Aleppo. Both sides have accused each other of the deadly attack.

Iran is ready to resume talks with world powers on its disputed nuclear program and awaits word from the European Union on timing and details, Iran's deputy nuclear negotiator said on Thursday.

Ali Bagheri, in an interview with Reuters in Geneva, said Iran needed 20 percent-enriched uranium for its Tehran research reactor and four others being built, and was continuing to convert some of its stockpile into reactor fuel. "We are waiting for Lady Ashton to call Dr. Jalili, and Dr. Jalili is obviously ready to take the call," Bagheri said. EU foreign policy chief Catherine Ashton oversees diplomatic contacts with Iran on behalf of the the United States, Russia, China, France, Britain and Germany.

Saeed Jalili is Iran's chief negotiator. "We are waiting to see whether Lady Ashton's response is going to cover the time and venue of another round of negotiations, or will she limit her response to just discussing the substantive side of things," Bagheri said.

At least four people have been killed and over 50 others injured in bomb attacks targeting mosques in and around the Iraqi capital, Baghdad. According to Iraqi security sources, explosions hit three mosques in Baghdad and one north of the capital following the Friday Prayers as worshippers were leaving the mosques. On Tuesday, at least seven people were killed and 17 others injured after two roadside bombs went off near a mosque in the southern Baghdad neighborhood of Dora as worshippers were leaving the mosque after morning prayers. No group has claimed responsibility for attacks, but Iraqi al-Qaeda frequently carries out coordinated bombings targeting civilian targets such as mosques, markets and restaurants.

The Kurdish Workers Party has scheduled the launch of a military withdrawal from Turkey on May 8. A senior commander said the PKK, headed by jailed leader Abdullah Ocalan, would pull out units from Turkey should Ankara suspend all counter-insurgency operations. Murat Karayilan, who controls the PKK base in northern Iraq, said the Kurdish fighters would be redeployed to what he termed "southern Kurdistan," a reference to Iraq's Kandil mountains. "The disarmament of guerrillas will be brought to the agenda following the realization of this process, which will witness the liberation of everyone, including that of leader Ocalan," Karayilan said. Spain says its economy is worsening and that it will take two years longer than first thought to meet Europe's deficit target. Madrid said Friday it expects its economy will shrink 1.3 percent this year, instead of the one-half of one percent figure it projected earlier. The government said it expects the Spanish economy will begin to grow again in 2014. At the same time, Spain - the fourth largest economy in the euro currency bloc - said its deficit would fall this year to 6.3 percent of its national economy. That is a sharp improvement over last year, but still more than double the three percent target set by the European Union. Spain said it would not meet the European target until 2016, two years later than promised in 2012.

Gold prices on Thursday climbed to their highest in more than a week during trading in Singapore, boosted by prospects of more central bank buying after a recent steep sell-off in the precious metal. Central bank purchases and surging physical demand helped gold bounce from a two-year trough around $1,321 an ounce hit last week, dealers said. But daily outflows from exchange-traded funds, reflecting sagging investor confidence, capped gains. Russia and Turkey raised their gold reserves in March, the International Monetary Fund said on Wednesday, increasing their holdings ahead of the spectacular plunge in prices this month that shocked ardent gold investors and bulls.

The latest available data from the United States Department of Agriculture (USDA) shows that a record number 23 million households in the United States are now on food stamps. The most recent Supplemental Assistance Nutrition Program (SNAP) statistics of the number of households receiving food stamps shows that 23,087,886 households participated in January 2013 - an increase of 889,154 families from January 2012 when the number of households totaled 22,188,732.

The most recent statistics from the United States Census Bureau-- from December 2012-- puts the number of households in the United States at 115,310,000. If you divide 115,310,000 by 23,087,866, that equals one out of every five households now receiving food stamps. As CNSNews.com previously reported, food stamp rolls in America recently surpassed the population of Spain. A record number 47,692,896 Americans are now enrolled in the program and the cost of food stamp fraud has more than doubled in just three years.

Headline: China slams Philippine bid to "legalise" occupation of islands

China accused the Philippines on Friday of trying to legalise its occupation of islands in the disputed South China Sea, repeating that Beijing would never agree to international arbitration.

Frustrated with the slow pace of regional diplomacy, the Philippines in January angered China by asking a U.N. tribunal to order a halt to Beijing's activities that it said violated Philippine sovereignty over the islands, surrounded by potentially energy-rich waters. Claims by an increasingly powerful China over most of the South China Sea have set it directly against U.S. allies Vietnam and the Philippines. Brunei, Taiwan and Malaysia also claim parts of the waters and China has a separate dispute with Japan in the East China Sea. Manila said on Thursday that a U.N. arbitration court had set up the tribunal which would hear Manila's complaint, but China said this was an attempt to steal Chinese territory.

Venezuelan opposition leader Henrique Capriles Radonski said Thursday his movement will boycott an audit of the election results and push the government to hold a new presidential vote.

Capriles said the opposition would not participate in the audit because the National Electoral Council did not meet its demand for an examination of registers containing voters' signatures and fingerprints. He said the opposition would go to the Supreme Court to challenge the results of the April 14 election, which was narrowly won by Nicolás Maduro, the handpicked successor of President Hugo Chávez, an anti-American leader who died from cancer.

The U.N. Security Council on Thursday established a 12,600-strong peacekeeping force to be deployed in areas of northern Mali, where a French military intervention has pushed back an Islamist insurgency that threatened to seize control of the West African nation. The Security Council also voted unanimously to authorize French forces that remain in the country to take offensive action to defend the U.N. peacekeepers, pending a case-by-case approval of the U.N. secretary-general, if they come under attack. France, whose forces entered Mali in January, has said it plans to reduce its forces there to 2,000 in July and 1,000 by the end of the year. The U.N. deployment is set to take place on July 1 unless the council, after a 60-day review, deems that conditions aren't conducive. The first 6,000 U.N. troops will be transferred from a joint West African force already deployed in Mali. The U.N. will seek the remaining troops from other nations willing to contribute them, diplomat said.

Headline: Pakistan to Seal Afghan Border May 11 for Election

Ten people including three policemen have been killed in three separate shooting attacks in Pakistan. On Thursday, three people, including a police constable, were killed and two others injured in incidents of gun violence in the southwestern province of Balochistan. In another event, Pakistani police and armed militants clashed in Karak district of the northern province of Khyber Pakhtunkhwa.

Two police officers and two attackers died in the incident. In a third incident, unknown gunmen killed three people in different areas of the southern port city of Karachi in Sindh Province. Police said at least eight militants were arrested. Since late 2009, there has been a surge in militant attacks in Pakistan. Pakistan will hold elections on May 11 for 272 general seats of the National Assembly and a total of 577 seats in the four provincial assemblies.

Headline: EU against austerity: Protesters clash with police amid unrest in Spain, Portugal

Thousands of protesters have gathered outside the Spanish parliament less than 24 hours before the latest round of economic and fiscal reforms, which will include further spending cuts, take effect. The protest comes as the country's unemployment rate has hit a new record with more than six million Spaniards unemployed for the first time ever. According to reports, some 1,400 police were deployed around the parliament and the building was totally cordoned off ahead of the evening demonstration. The parliament cancelled its session for the day, but blamed reasons other than the rally. Police in Madrid arrested four people suspected of plotting to set fire to a bank. Eleven people were also arrested for blocking access to a university ahead of the anti-government demonstration.

Headline: Bangladesh police fire teargas at building collapse demo

Thousands of workers have staged a demonstration in the Bangladeshi capital, Dhaka to protest poor working conditions and safety standards for the country's garment workers after a factory collapsed, leaving over 200 workers dead. On Thursday, protesters took to the streets and chanted slogans such as "we want execution of the garment factory owners". On Wednesday, some 250 people were killed and over 1000 others injured after the eight-story building collapsed in Dhaka. The number of deaths at the Rana Plaza is expected to rise. Reports say that more than 3000 workers were inside the garment factory at the time of the collapse.
