Headline: Netanyahu approves Sharansky's proposal for egalitarian prayer section at Western Wall

Prime Minister Benjamin Netanyahu has given Jewish Agency chief Natan Sharansky approval to move ahead with his plan to set up a new space for egalitarian prayer services at the Western Wall, sources have told Haaretz. If implemented, the Sharansky plan would wrest exclusive control of prayer at the Western Wall from the Orthodox establishment. The plan calls for extending the area designated for prayer at the wall's northern section to the southern section next to the Mugrabi Bridge, known as Robinson's Arch. According to the plan, this new section would serve worshippers seeking to take part in egalitarian prayers services and would be open around the clock, rather than just a few hours a day as is the case today. A plaza would be built to make the new area equal in size and height to the current prayer area, which would continue to be divided into a men's and a women's section.

Headline: Leading EU countries to stigmatise Israeli settler goods

France and the Netherlands have joined an initiative by 13 EU states to help European consumers boycott goods made by Israeli settlers on Palestinian land. Foreign ministers from the group - which also includes Austria, Belgium, Denmark, Finland, Ireland, Luxembourg, Malta, Portugal, Slovenia, Spain and the UK - put forward their ideas in a letter to EU foreign relations chief Catherine Ashton on 11 April. The text - seen by EUobserver - says they "welcome [Ashton's] commitment to work with fellow [EU] commissioners to prepare EU-wide guidelines on the labelling of settlement produce." It notes that: "the correct labelling of products is necessary to ensure our consumers are not being misled by false information."

Headline: Netanyahu Vows to Retaliate for Eilat Attack

Israel will "extract a price" from those who launched the terror attack against the Red Sea resort town of Eilat last week, Prime Minister Binyamin Netanyahu announced Sunday. The statement made it clear that Israel has decided to draw a line in the sand for terrorists from Gaza - and elsewhere -- operating against the Jewish State from the Sinai Peninsula. Last Wednesday, the Mujahedeen Shura Council, a Salafi jihadist group claimed responsibility for firing two Grad Katyusha missiles at Eilat from the Sinai Peninsula and triggering activation of the Color Red rocket alert system in the city. One of the missiles landed in a building site, the other in the backyard of a private home. No one was physically injured, and no property damage was reported. A senior member of an unnamed Salafi terror group in Gaza was quoted by the London-based Arabic daily A-Sharq al-Awsat on Friday as saying that rocket fire aimed at Eilat is part of the Islamic concept of jihad (holy war) and will not stop.

Headline: Deal with the Rocket Attacks Now, Says Eshkol Region Head

The head of the Eshkol Regional Council, Haim Yellin, said on Sunday that it is time that Israel follow up on its words with actions and act to stop the rocket attacks from Gaza. Yellin spoke to Arutz Sheva after terrorists once again targeted Eshkol with a rocket on Saturday night. The rocket exploded in an open area, causing no physical injuries or damages. This attack followed an attack on the Eshkol Region on Thursday night, in which two rockets were fired from Gaza. "They are trying to accustom us" to a new wave of rocket terrorism, said Yellin. "This is the logic of terrorism. Terrorism without a response is not viable, both inwardly and outwardly. We may say that there's no reason to strike back over a small shell which explodes in an open area, but this small shell will eventually explode on Tel Aviv," he warned, adding that the Israeli restraint encourages Hamas terrorists to expand the range of the rockets until they reach Tel Aviv.

Headline: Hagel: Israel can 'make the decision' to strike Iran

U.S. Defense Secretary Chuck Hagel held out hope Sunday for a nonmilitary way to ending the threat of a nuclear-armed Iran, but he also emphasized Washington's willingness to let Israel decide whether and when it might strike Tehran in self-defense. In an interview with reporters on his flight from Washington, Hagel said the United States and Israel see "exactly the same" threat from Iran, which he described as a toxic combination of nuclear ambition and support for terrorism. But he acknowledged differences on when it may reach the point of requiring U.S. or Israeli military action. Hagel stressed repeatedly that Israel has a sovereign right to decide for itself whether it must attack Iran. He made no mention of the possibility that an Israeli attack would draw the U.S. into the conflict and lead to a wider regional war. "Israel will make the decision that Israel must make to protect itself, to defend itself," Hagel said as he began a weeklong tour of the Middle East.

Jordan

Headline: Jordan to request UN Security Council 'action' on Syrian refugee crisis

Jordan moved on Sunday to petition the UN Security Council to address a growing Syrian refugee crisis as thousands of Syrians fled to the Kingdom. The government moved to file a petition at the council on Sunday highlighting the "burdens and difficult humanitarian conditions" facing the country due to a refugee influx that has reached some 2,000 persons per day, the Jordan News Agency, Petra, reported. In the petition, Jordan is expected to urge for an international response to help the country face the burden of hosting a refugee community. Hosting this number of displaced Syrians is set to cost the country some $1.5 billion this year. The move comes less than two days after violent protests in the Zaatari camp, which triggered anti-Syrian protests in the border city of Mafraq, the latest in a series of rising tensions between Syrians and local residents.

Headline: Report: Hezbollah chief 'secretly' meets with Iran's Khamenei to discuss Assad support

The Syrian opposition called on Hezbollah to withdraw its fighters from the country immediately, as activists said regime troops supported by pro-government gunmen linked to the Lebanese Shiite militant group battled rebels Sunday for control of a string of villages near the Lebanon-Syria border. The Syrian National Coalition - the main Western-backed opposition group - warned that Hezbollah involvement in Syria's civil war could lead to greater risks in the area, and urged the Lebanese government to "adopt the necessary measures to stop the aggression of Hezbollah" and to control the border to "prevent further risks and to protect civilians in the area." The statement, posted on the Coalition's Facebook page, coincides with a surge in fighting around the contested town of Qusair in Syria's Homs province near the frontier with Lebanon. Over the past two weeks, the Syrian military, supported by pro-regime militia backed by Hezbollah, has pushed to regain control of the border area - a strategic region because it links Damascus with the Mediterranean coastal enclave that is the heartland of President Bashar Assad's Alawite sect, an offshoot of Shiite Islam.

Headline: Assad urges Lebanon to help fight his foes: Lebanese delegates

Syrian President Bashar al-Assad believes neighboring Lebanon cannot shield itself from the civil war in his country and that both states should fight his opponents, three members of a Lebanese delegation who visited Assad said on Monday. Lebanon, which suffered its own civil war from 1975 to 1990 and endured a military presence by its historically dominant neighbor for 29 years until 2005, has maintained a policy of "dissociation" from Syria's two-year-old conflict. But many Lebanese officials feel their country is increasingly at risk of being dragged into Syria's bloodshed, which the United Nations says has killed 70,000 people. One of the 54 mostly pro-Assad Lebanese delegates who went to Damascus on Sunday quoted Assad as saying that historical and geographic realities meant Lebanon - a tiny country of only 4 million on the Mediterranean - could not stand aside.

Headline: Egypt to offer new Hamas-Fatah compromise formula

Egypt has proposed a new compromise formula to break the deadlock in reconciliation talks between Fatah and Hamas, an Arab daily has reported. Quoting "knowledgeable sources," Saudi-owned daily A-Sharq Al-Awsat reported Sunday that Egypt plans to pressure both Fatah and Hamas to forgo a respective key demand. According to the sources, Egypt intends to propose that Hamas and Fatah both maintain their own security agencies in the respective territories under their control, considering that security reorganization at this stage would render reconciliation efforts impossible. "The Egyptians are completely convinced that deep mistrust [between Fatah and Hamas] is preventing a breakthrough in reconciliation efforts," the sources were quoted by A-Sharq Al-Awsat as saying.

New King James Version (NKJV)

- 24 Damascus has grown feeble;
She turns to flee,
And fear has seized her.
Anguish and sorrows have taken her like a woman in labor.
- 25 Why is the city of praise not deserted, the city of My joy?
- 26 Therefore her young men shall fall in her streets,
And all the men of war shall be cut off in that day," says the LORD of hosts.
- 27 "I will kindle a fire in the wall of Damascus,
And it shall consume the palaces of Ben-Hadad."^[a]

The burden of Damascus. Behold, Damascus is taken away from being a city, and it shall be a ruinous heap.

Headline: At least 100 dead after 6 days of clashes in Syria, activists say

Syrian forces and militia men loyal to President Bashar al-Assad killed at least 85 people when they stormed a Damascus suburb after five days of fighting, opposition activists in the area said on Sunday. There was no immediate confirmation of the activists' account of what they described as a "massacre", including of women and children, at Jdeidet al-Fadel. Syrian authorities have banned most independent media since the uprising began two years ago. Jamal al-Golani, a member of the Revolution Leadership Council opposition group, said the number of dead may be higher than 250, mostly shot at close range, but the presence of army patrols made documenting all of them difficult. The killings happened over several days as and after pro-Assad forces stormed an area where there were up to 270 rebels, Golani said, adding that he had counted 98 bodies in the streets and 86 people who he said had been summarily executed in makeshift clinics where they were lying wounded.

Last week, a diplomatic source told Reuters that a meeting in May was a possibility, but that no date had yet been fixed. It would be the 10th round of negotiations between the two sides since early 2012, so far without a deal that would enable the UN watchdog to resume its long-stalled investigation of Iran's nuclear facilities.

Headline: Beck Breaks Exclusive Information on Saudi National Once Considered a Person of Interest in Boston Bombings

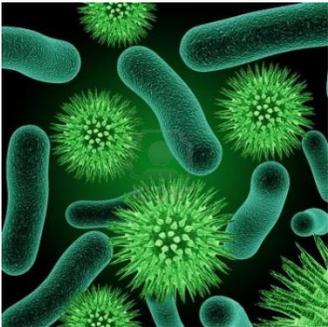

The big questions buzzing over Boston Bombers Tamerlan and Dzhokhar Tsarnaev have a single answer: It emerged in the 102 tense hours between the twin Boston Marathon bombings Monday, April 15 – which left three dead, 180 injured and a police officer killed at MIT – and Dzhokhar's capture Friday, April 19 in Watertown. The conclusion reached by debkafile's counterterrorism and intelligence sources is that the brothers were double agents, hired by US and Saudi intelligence to penetrate the Wahhabi jihadist networks which, helped by Saudi financial institutions, had spread across the restive Russian Caucasian. Instead, the two former Chechens betrayed their mission and went secretly over to the radical Islamist networks. Meanwhile, Glenn Beck laid out what he knows about the Saudi connection to the Boston marathon bombings. It is a story that the mainstream media has all but completely ignored, though Beck says TheBlaze's Chief Content Officer Joel Cheatwood reached out to numerous other networks in an effort to get the story out. But now a number of congressional sources have confirmed that the story is as TheBlaze reported last week, and Beck is presenting more pieces of the big picture. "This week has changed me," he said at the top of his radio program on Monday. "The events in Boston changed me....The events in Washington around Boston changed me." We crossed an "extraordinarily disturbing threshold" last week, Beck said, but we know "exactly who we're dealing with now." After a discussion of how Dzhokhar Tsarnaev, who is currently under guard in the hospital, wasn't read his Miranda rights, Beck proceeded to lay out a number of key points on the case.

Headline: Bedbugs invade hospitals

As if adapting to health-care reform and curbing the “nightmare bacteria” weren’t challenge enough, hospitals are increasingly plagued by another problem: bedbugs. More than a third of pest-management companies treated bedbug infestations in hospitals in 2012, 6% more than the year before and more than twice as many as in 2010, according to a survey released today by the National Pest Management Association. The percentage of exterminators dealing with bedbugs in nursing homes has also almost doubled since 2010, to 46%. Bedbug experts also report seeing them in ambulances. Hospitals are already cracking down on anything that could increase the risk of patient infections, which not only can be deadly but may also lead to more readmissions and reduced federal funding under the Affordable Care Act. While bedbugs have not been found to transmit infections to humans, they leave itchy bites after feeding on people’s blood, which can lead to secondary infections when victims scratch, opening themselves up to bacteria.

In 2009, the UNGA proclaimed April 22 as International Mother Earth Day, expressing its conviction that, to achieve a just balance among the economic, social and environmental needs of present and future generations, "it is necessary to promote harmony with nature and the Earth." In his speech, the secretary-general stressed that, at this time, "climate change is a real and growing problem" and "we have to confront the hard truth that our planet is under threat."

Thousands of residents of the Argentine city of Santiago del Estero in the early hours of Sunday morning caught a glimpse of a suspected meteor that lit up the sky above the city. The event took place at about 3:20 AM (local time). Argentine authorities believe the spectacular fireball was caused by a meteor entering the earth’s atmosphere and disintegrating. Some witnesses reported to local newspapers that they felt a slight tremor soon after seeing the meteorite. According to local media reports, police in the area were inundated with phone calls from frightened residents, and from parents who were worried about their children still out in the city’s bars and nightclubs. Meteors are small particles from the solar system that burn from friction when entering the atmosphere. According to the American Meteor Society, thousands of meteors of fireball magnitude occur every day, most of them unseen over the oceans or hidden by daylight. A similar event lit up the skies above 13 U.S. states on March 22. On February 15, a meteor exploded over Russia’s Ural Mountains and sent fireballs blazing to earth, injuring almost 1,200 people and causing approximately 33 million U.S. dollars in damages.

Headline: Midwest braces for record floods as waters STILL rise after two are killed and third is missing in devastating surges

At least three people have died in flooding that is causing havoc across the Midwest. In all three deaths - two at the same spot in Indiana and one in Missouri - vehicles were swept off the road in flash floods. The flooding was started by torrential rain last week which caused the Mississippi and many other rivers to surge in Missouri, Illinois, Iowa, Wisconsin, Michigan and Indiana. And the misery is not over as forecasters say more rain is expected tonight and tomorrow in many places.

The Arab Spring in Prophecy

(Perilous Times Luke 21:9 & Nation against Nation, Kingdom against Kingdom Matt.24:7)
(Revelation 6:3-4 Revelation 6:8)

“For nation shall rise against nation,
and kingdom against kingdom.
There will be earthquakes in various places, and there will be famines and sedition; these are the beginning of the labor pains.”

Mark 13:8

CIVIL UNREST

Luke 21:9 and Matthew 24:7 speak of nation against nation and kingdom against kingdom in the end times. Revelation 6:3-4 speaks of the fiery red horse given power to make men slay one another and Revelation 6:8 speaks again of this red horse in conjunction with the pale horse of Death and Hades, as the one that has the power to kill by sword. I like to call this “The Arab Spring in Prophecy” because for us it is easy to identify- that’s what the world calls it.

Luke 21:9: wars & commotions; the Greek word here is Akatastasia, meaning instability, a state of disorder, disturbance, confusion (revolutions)

Matthew 24:7: the Greek word for nation is Ethnos & refers to various ethnic groups fighting among themselves, where the next sentence in the verse refers to kingdoms (basileiva) fighting one another (not to be confused with an actual kingdom but rather the right or authority to rule over a kingdom) I have tried to separate it into areas that sweep EAST from the point of North America.

Africa- ONLY COUNTRIES NOT IN PROPHECY

Headline: Militants capture town in northeastern Mali

Arab militants captured a village near Mali’s desert city of Timbuktu on Sunday, sources told AFP, as ethnic Tuareg rebels massed in a show of strength near another key northern city. The Arab Movement of Azawad (MAA) told AFP it had taken Ber, a settlement of around 9,000 people some 50 kilometers (30 miles) east of Timbuktu, from an armed gang which had been “harassing our parents.” “As of Sunday, we control the town,” Mohamed El Maouloud Ramadane, a spokesman for the MAA told AFP. “We want to work with the French and Africans fighting against terrorism and drug traffickers,” he added. A military source in Timbuktu confirmed the claim, adding: “The MAA effectively controls the city now. They launched an attack on a local armed group which has not been identified yet.”

Headline: Butchery in Nigeria: At least 185 killed as army battles Islamists

A northeastern Nigerian town turned into a slaughterhouse as a battle between government troops and Islamist militants left at least 185 dead. Heavily-armed extremists used locals as human shields while soldiers set residential quarters on fire. The town of Baga, on the border with Chad, has been largely devastated in hours-long fully-fledged urban combat between regular troops and Islamist insurgents that started on Friday, local government official Lawan Kole told AP on Sunday. The official body count confirms 185 citizens have been found dead. The real number of casualties is much greater, as citizens continue to collect corpses throughout the town and in the suburbs.

Middle East- ONLY COUNTRIES NOT IN PROPHECY

Headline: Bahrain police attack F1 protesters

Bahraini security forces have clashed with anti-regime protesters, hours ahead of the controversial Formula One Grand Prix auto race. The violence erupted on Sunday when police attacked protesters blocking roads in the capital, Manama, in protest against the Formula One race. The protesters also burnt tires on roads in villages outside Manama, according to witnesses. Protests have increased in Bahrain as the Manama regime prepares to host the controversial sporting event. Bahrain's public security chief, Major General Tariq Hassan said in a statement, "Police are out in force to beef up security measures at the Bahrain International Circuit." On Saturday, police fired tear gas at anti-regime demonstrators calling for the cancelation of the sporting event over the regime's crackdown on peaceful protests.

Headline: Italians reject reelection of Napolitano as president

Thousands of Italians have protested in the capital, Rome, against the re-election of President Giorgio Napolitano, saying he does not represent the people of Italy. The Sunday march went through central Rome and ended by the Colosseum. Gianluca Bisogno, one of the protesters, said Napolitano was not elected by the people. "We are fed up with presidents coming from the old political clans. We want a president who really represents the Italian people. We do not want a president from the political clubs or one that will only defend them and that is why we are all here."
