ISRAEL

(Zech.12:3 & 9 - The Burdensome Stone)

Zechariah 12:3 "And in that day will I make Jerusalem a burdensome stone for all people: all that burden themselves with it shall be cut in pieces, though all the people of the earth be gathered together against it."

The Battle for Jerusalem Begins

The Global March to Jerusalem June 7th

Headline: The International Committee of the Global March to Jerusalem

This year, the International Central Committee of the GMJ has decided to organize marches all over the world on Friday, 7th June 2013, which is the forty-sixth anniversary of the occupation of the eastern part of the Holy City, which includes the Al-Aqsa Mosque, the Church of the Holy Sepulchre and other sacred sites. The 7 June marches in the neighbouring countries will once again be directed towards the city of Jerusalem, taking us to the nearest possible point to the Occupied Palestinian Territories. In the rest of the world mass rallies will be organized in the major cities. This will include organizing demonstrations in front of Israeli embassies to demand an end to the occupation of Jerusalem and the rest of the Palestinian territories. The International Central Committee hopes to make the GMJ into an annual event to mobilize efforts in protesting against the racist Zionist state and its brutal occupation of Palestine, and to demand the liberation of Jerusalem and the rest of the Palestinian territories. In the spirit of the Arab Spring our slogan is “the people of the world want to liberate Jerusalem” and we are certain that the will of the people is invincible. Therefore, we ask all people of good conscience to join us in organizing this year’s march to Jerusalem on Friday, 7th June 2013.

Headline: Israeli officials: Palestinian leaders inventing excuses to avoid resuming peace talks

An official in the White House reacted angrily on Wednesday, after Channel 10 News reported that Israel had approved tenders for the construction of 300 new homes in Jerusalem and plans to build more housing units beyond the “Green Line”. The report explained that the tenders in question, for construction in Jerusalem’s Ramot neighborhood, were published last November, right after the Palestinian Authority’s unilateral move at the United Nations which got it upgraded to the status of a non-member observer state, and before U.S. Secretary of State John Kerry began his latest push for the renewal of peace talks. Meanwhile, senior officials in Jerusalem have lambasted the Palestinian Authority, saying its leaders are not interested in renewing negotiations with Israel. The remarks came on the heels of a statement by chief Palestinian negotiator Saeb Erekat, who blasted Israel for releasing a tender for the construction of 300 housing units beyond the Green Line, in the Jerusalem neighborhood of Ramot.

Palestinian Authority Chairman Mahmoud Abbas is reportedly between a rock and a hard place as he ponders whether to accept a request by U.S. Secretary of State John Kerry to resume peace talks with Israeli. Abbas has reportedly told advisers that as the U.S. tries to restart Mideast peace talks, he is under intense international pressure to return to negotiations with Israel and drop his long standing precondition of a freeze on Jewish construction in Judea, Samaria and eastern Jerusalem.

PA officials told the Associated Press on Wednesday that in a closed meeting, Abbas lamented his difficult choice: Rebuff the Americans and alienate Washington, or cave in, drop the demand that Israel freeze construction and face an uproar at home.

A Palestinian young man from the southern Gaza Strip town of Rafah died on Thursday after setting himself on fire, hospital officials said. Doctors said the young man poured on himself flammable material in a public place in the town and set himself ablaze without knowing the reasons behind his action. The man was immediately taken to the hospital but he failed to survive despite physicians' rescue attempts. The police of Hamas-run government, which rules the Gaza Strip, said they are investigating the incident. Two Palestinians last year set themselves on fire in the Gaza Strip. One of them died after six days, while the other survived after receiving medical treatment.

Israel's National Security Adviser Yaakov Amidror sketched out what Jerusalem's "red line" is vis-à-vis the S-300 missile systems Russia intends to send to Syria before the 27 European Union ambassadors in Israel. Two diplomats who were in the room during the briefing last Thursday, who spoke on condition of anonymity because the meeting was a closed event, said that Amidror stressed Israel will act "to prevent the S-300 missiles from becoming operational" on Syrian soil. This message was also conveyed by Defense Minister Moshe Ya'alon when he said on Tuesday that if the missiles reach Syria "Israel will know what to do."

Directly taunting Israel, Syrian president Bashar Assad said in an interview prerecorded for broadcast Thursday night, May 30, that the first batch of Russian S-300 anti-air missiles has arrived in Syria and a second consignment was on the way. The broadcast was scheduled to air simultaneously over Hizballah's Al Manar and Syrian state television channels. The Syrian ruler was responding to the quote from Israel's National Security Adviser Yakov Amidror that the S-300 batteries have not been delivered yet and when they are, Israel will destroy them before they are operational.

Headline: 'Around 1,500 Syrians enter Jordan amid border lull'

Headline: China pledges support to Jordan over refugee crisis

Some 1,500 Syrians crossed into Jordan early Wednesday, marking the largest single-day influx in over two weeks, according to the Jordan Armed Forces. The arrivals signal an end to a recent drop in new arrivals that saw as few as a single refugee enter the country within a 24-hour period.

The rise came amid a lull in violence in southern Syria that last week stranded thousands of Syrians along the border and reduced a refugee inflow that once averaged some 1,500 persons per day to dozens. The violence was part of a sweeping military offensive by Damascus that saw regime forces retake several border towns and villages.

Separately, The White House announced Wednesday that President Barack Obama has not ruled out the idea of a no-fly zone over Syria. That of course includes the possibility of a no-fly zone," White House spokesman Jay Carney told a news briefing.

Headline: Gulf states to discuss placing Hezbollah on terror list on Sunday

The head of Hamas in Lebanon, Ali Barakha, was informed by Hizballah that his people were no longer welcome in the country, and that Hamas members should evacuate the country immediately, Israel Radio reported Thursday. The message raised the possibility that the two Islamist groups could end up fighting each other in Lebanon, as each vies for influence with opposing parties in Syria, analysts said. Syrian rebels have been receiving assistance from the Sunni-oriented Hamas terror group, while the Shi'ite-affiliated Hizballah terror group has been helping Syrian President Bashar al-

Assad's forces in the ongoing civil war in Syria. Hizbullah is aiding Assad as a proxy of Iran, the main backer of the Syrian despot, while Syrian rebels, seeking to unseat Assad, have turned to Sunni Muslim groups in the Middle East for help. Saudi Arabia is Sunni and fears Iran's increased domination. Assad himself is a member of the Alawite cult, considered heretical by both Sunni and Shi'ite Muslims.

Jeremiah 49:24-27

New King James Version (NKJV)

24 Damascus has grown feeble;
She turns to flee,
And fear has seized her.
Anguish and sorrows have taken her like a woman in labor.
25 Why is the city of praise not deserted, the city of My joy?
26 Therefore her young men shall fall in her streets,
And all the men of war shall be cut off in that day," says the LORD of hosts.
27 "I will kindle a fire in the wall of Damascus,
And it shall consume the palaces of Ben-Hadad."^[a]

The burden of Damascus. Behold, Damascus is taken away from being a city, and it shall be a ruinous heap.

Headline: SNC: No peace talks until Hezbollah, Iran halt "invasion"

Syria's ruling regime says it will attend Geneva talks with "good intention" to end the war and with no preconditions. At the same time, discord between Syrian opposition elements is growing, threatening potential talks in June. Should the Geneva peace conference take place, the Syrian government will be represented by the Foreign Minister, Walid al-Moualem. Speaking from Damascus to Beirut-based TV, he said his government is yet to decide on the makeup of its delegation for talks. "We will go with good intentions, with hopes that we reach a (deal) ... we will go to Geneva with no preconditions," Reuters reported citing the Minister. While the regime expresses firmness, Syria's opposition coalition said it will only take part in a planned peace conference if a deadline was set for an internationally-guaranteed settlement based on President Bashar Assad leaving power.

However, despite the looming event, it still remains unclear if the opposition will participate, and if it is going to be in Geneva, who will represent it.

The top United Nations human rights official urged global powers on Wednesday not to supply Syria with weapons and to press both sides in its civil war to find a political solution to prevent more massacres and threats to regional stability. "If the current situation persists, or deteriorates further, increased inter-communal massacres are a certainty, rather than a risk," said Navi Pillay, addressing an urgent debate at the UN Human Rights Council on Wednesday. "The message from all of us should be the same: we will not support this conflict with arms, ammunition, politics or religion," she told the 47-member Geneva forum. Pillay spoke after the European Union decided to let an EU arms embargo on Syria expire and Russia said it would deliver an advanced S-300 air defense system to the Damascus government despite U.S., French, and Israeli objections.

Headline: Iran's presidential candidates clash over nuclear approach

Recent weeks have seen foreign policy analysis to the effect that further pressure on Iran ought not be imposed, because the regime may soften its stance in nuclear negotiations after the upcoming June elections. The eight hardline presidential candidates allowed to run in the election – some 670 other candidates were purged last week – are campaigning in the opposite direction: Iranian leaders have long emphasized that the upcoming June election will not alter the country's stance in negotiations related to its atomic program, which in any case is set by Iran's unelected Supreme Leader Ayatollah Ali Khamenei. The elimination of any candidate even marginally distant from Khamenei's past policies is being taken as a signal that he will not use the election as an opportunity to soften Iran's position. The signal has not been lost on defense officials in Israel. Speaking yesterday at a forum hosted by The Israel Project, Israel's Minister of Intelligence and Strategic Affairs Yuval Steinitz emphasized that the election "is going to change nothing."

Headline: Iraq violence 'ready to explode' - UN envoy

The UN's envoy to Iraq has warned that "systemic violence is ready to explode at any moment", as a fresh wave of attacks killed at least 24 people. Martin Kobler urged Iraq's political leaders to "engage immediately to pull the country out of this mayhem". There has been a recent upsurge in violence across Iraq amid rising sectarian and political tension. Several car bombs targeted different areas of the capital, Baghdad, and the northern city of Mosul on Thursday. Five bombs killed 21 people in Baghdad and wounded dozens, officials said. In Mosul, three policemen were killed in an early morning suicide attack. The dramatic escalation in attacks in recent weeks has raised fears of a return to the levels of sectarian violence seen in 2006 and 2007, in which thousands died.

This week alone, more than 60 people were killed in attacks targeting main Shia areas of Baghdad on Monday. A further 25 deaths were reported in bombings in the city on Wednesday.

Headline: Turkey Returns Fire After Shots Fired From Syria

Turkey's military on Thursday returned fire after shots were fired at an armored personnel carrier from across the border with Syria. A military statement said a group of around three to five people from across the border fired up to 15 shots toward the vehicle that was patrolling an area near the Orontes river, on the frontier. Turkish state-run TRT television said no one was wounded and the military said the group escaped and "disappeared from view" when it fired back. Turkey has repeatedly struck back at the Syrian military in response to shelling and mortar rounds that landed on its territory since shells from Syria struck a Turkish village in October, killing five people. The incident prompted NATO to send anti-aircraft batteries to the area to protect Turkey. Thursday's incident was the first time the military has responded to shots fired from across the border and comes at a time of increased fears that Turkey and other neighbors of Syria are being drawn into the country's civil war.

Headline: UNSC votes for extra 1,100 troops to Abyei Sudan

The UN Security Council has agreed to increase the number of international peacekeepers in Sudan's Abyei area by more than 1,100 troops amid new tensions over the disputed territory between Sudan and South Sudan. The Security Council made the decision on Wednesday following repeated demands by UN Secretary-General Ban Ki-moon. The number of the UN Interim Security Force for Abyei (UNISFA) will increase to 5,326 troops from the current 4,200. All the soldiers will be sent to the region from Ethiopia. In a recent report to the Security Council, Ban said that rival groups in Abyei "remain armed, hostile and highly distrustful of each other." He said extra forces are necessary for securing Abyei's borders in the face of growing presence of armed groups.

Headline: Capital flight continues as savers flee Cyprus banks

The European Central Bank warned on Wednesday that the euro zone's slumping economy and a surge in problem loans were raising the risk of a renewed banking crisis, even as overall stress in the region's financial markets had receded. In a sober assessment of the state of the zone's financial system, the E.C.B. said that a prolonged recession had made it harder for many borrowers to repay their loans, burdening banks that had still not finished repairing the damage caused by the 2008 financial crisis. Last year "was not a good year for banks at all," Vítor Constâncio, the vice president of the E.C.B., said Wednesday. While the E.C.B., as customary, did not mention specific banks, it said the most vulnerable were those in countries with high unemployment or falling house prices. That list would include Italy, Spain, Greece and Portugal among others. But ailing banks are also a problem in stronger countries like Germany, where Commerzbank and publicly owned landesbanks, or state banks, are struggling with bad loans to the shipping industry and other problems.

Headline: Spain economy shrinks for 7th consecutive quarter

The French Labor Ministry says the number of unemployed people reached a record high of 3.26 million in April. The ministry said on Thursday that the number of registered jobseekers in the eurozone's second-largest economy increased by 39,800 last month, marking the 24th consecutive monthly rise. The increase is equivalent to 1,326 new jobseekers per day and represented a 12.5 percent rise over a year ago. The previous jobless record in the country was in January 1997, when 3.195 million people were unemployed. The figures are considered as a major challenge for Socialist President Francois Hollande, who has pledged to curb the unemployment rate from the current level of more than 10 percent to a single-digit figure by December this year.

More than half a million UK people may rely on food banks, says a study by Church Action Poverty and Oxfam. It blames benefit cuts, unemployment and the increased cost of living for the growth in hunger and poverty. Oxfam said: "Cuts to social safety-nets have gone too far, leading to destitution, hardship and hunger." The Department of Work and Pensions (DWP) said: "Our welfare reforms will improve the lives of some of the poorest families in our communities." The report was backed by the Trussell Trust, the UK's biggest provider of food banks. Headline: Dollar could be in danger as the world's currency

Headline: A Tsunami of U.S. Dollars Come Flooding Back To U.S.

Though the US dollar continues to reign as the foreign reserve currency of choice, a new International Monetary Fund analysis shows that the currency has slumped to a 15-year low, heightening concerns that it may lose that status. While the dollar currently constitutes 62 per cent of the $6 trillion in foreign holdings by the world's central banks, when a historical view is taken into account, Dick Bove, vice president of equity research at Rafferty Capital Markets says the dollar's actual percentage of total money supply worldwide has gone from 90 per cent in 1952 to about 15 per cent today.

Bove, like many other analysts, believes that the rise of the Chinese currency, the yuan, is at the expense of the US dollar's dominance as a safe haven. "Generally speaking, it is not believed by the vast majority that the American dollar will be overthrown," says Dick Bove. "But it will be, and this defrocking may occur in as short a period as five to 10 years," he tells CNBC. The repercussions of the dollar's decline as the foreign currency holding of choice would be more than a symbolic hit to America's economic standing. With a budget deficit exceeding $1 trillion per year, if the dollar were to decline against other currencies the US would find itself in the uncomfortable position of having to pay back this debt.

Headline: Record 10,978,040 Now on Disability; 'Disability' Would Be 8th Most Populous State

The total number of people in the United States now receiving federal disability benefits hit a record 10,978,040 in May, up from 10,962,532 million in April, according to newly released data from the Social Security Administration. The 10,978,040 disability beneficiaries in the United States now exceed the population of all but seven states. For example, there are more Americans collecting disability today than there are people living in Georgia, Michigan, North Carolina, New Jersey or Virginia. The record 10,978,040 total disability beneficiaries in May, included a record 8,877,921 disabled workers (up from 8,865,586 in April), a record 1,939,687 children of disabled workers (up from 1,936,236 in April), and 160,432 spouses of disabled workers. May was the 196th straight month that the number of American workers collecting federal disability payments increased.

Headline: Weekly Jobless Claims Make Surprise Jump

The number of Americans filing new claims for unemployment benefits unexpectedly rose last week, but not enough to suggest a shift in the recent pattern of modest job gains. Initial claims for state unemployment benefits increased 10,000 to a seasonally adjusted 354,000, the Labor Department said on Thursday. Claims for the prior week were revised to show 4,000 more applications received than previously reported. Economists polled by Reuters had expected first-time applications to hold steady at 340,000 last week. A Labor Department analyst said claims for five states, including Virginia, Minnesota and Oregon, were estimated since state offices had less time to prepare data because of the national holiday on Monday.

Prophecy Sign: Wars & Rumors of Wars Matthew 24:6 , Revelation 6:3-4 & Revelation 6:8

"And you will hear of wars and rumors of wars. See that you are not troubled; for all these things must come to pass, but the end is not yet." Headline: Summit likely to call for N. Korea denuclearization

A lengthy front-page editorial in the North's ruling party daily Rodong Sinmun said a strong nuclear deterrent was the only guarantee of a "final victory" against the forces of imperialism. "We will tighten our grip on this priceless nuclear treasure sword and carry out battles against imperialists with greater vigour," it said. The editorial appeared days after Chinese state media said North Korean leader Kim Jong-un had informed Chinese president Xi Jinping that Pyongyang would consider resuming six-party denuclearisation talks. The Xinhua news agency said the message was sent in a letter that was hand delivered to Xi by Kim's personal envoy during a visit to Beijing last week. North Korean state media had confirmed delivery of the letter but made no mention whatsoever of a dialogue proposal. Meanwhile, North Korean nuclear disarmament may be included in the joint declaration of the South Korea-China summit next month, a diplomatic source told Yonhap News. The source told Yonhap if the "denuclearization" word is adopted in the document to be issued after the summit between South Korean President Park Geun-hye and her Chinese host Xi Jinping, it would indicate China's new leadership led by Xi is willing to step up efforts to convince its ally North Korea to scrap its nuclear weapons program. Park, who became president in February after her election victory, is scheduled to visit China next month for a summit with the new Chinese president.

Headline: Virus 'a threat to entire world'

The new Sars-like respiratory illness which has killed more than half of the people who have been infected with it is a "threat to the entire world", the World Health Organisation (WHO) has warned. Experts raised concerns that the disease is "emerging faster than our understanding". The WHO says that since September last year there have been 49 laboratory confirmed cases across eight countries which have resulted in 27 deaths, including two people in the UK. Officials from the Ministry of Health in Saudi Arabia have confirmed a further five cases of the novel virus. Earlier this week, WHO's director general said that Middle East respiratory syndrome coronavirus, or MERS-CoV, is her "greatest concern". Addressing the World Health Assembly in Geneva on Monday, Dr Margaret Chan said: "Looking at the overall global situation, my greatest concern right now is the novel coronavirus. "We understand too little about this virus when viewed against the magnitude of its potential threat. Any new disease that is emerging faster than our understanding is never under control. These are alarm bells and we must respond. The novel coronavirus is not a problem that any single affected country can keep to itself or manage all by itself. The novel coronavirus is a threat to the entire world."

Headline: Three more people die of novel coronavirus in Saudi Arabia

Saudi health authorities say three more people have died from a deadly new respiratory virus related to the Severe Acute Respiratory Syndrome (SARS) in the country. Saudi Arabia's Ministry of Health announced on Thursday that the three victims, aged between 24 and 60, were suffering from chronic diseases, including kidney failure. They had been hospitalized a month ago. Thirty people have died globally from the novel coronavirus. The novel coronavirus, also known as nCoV-EMC, is a cousin of SARS. The virus first emerged in the Middle East, and was discovered on September 2012 in a Qatari man who had recently traveled to Saudi Arabia. Cases have been reported in Saudi Arabia, Jordan, the UAE, Qatar, Britain and Germany, and health officials have said the virus is likely to have already spread between people in some circumstances.

Headline: Suspected Ebola Fever Surfaces in DRC

The United Nations is reporting a suspected outbreak of Ebola fever in the north of the Democratic Republic of Congo. The suspected cases have been found in the Monge health zone in Aketi territory, about 200 kilometers from the border with the Central African Republic and about 700 kilometers from the Ugandan border. The news was announced Wednesday by the U.N.'s Office for the Coordination of Humanitarian Affairs (OCHA). "Six suspected cases of Ebola fever were reported in Monge Health district between May 1 and May 12, and with help of the World Health Organization, a medical team has been sent to Monge to investigate and take blood samples," explained Sylvestre Ntumba, OCHA's spokesman in Kinshasa. The test results are not yet known. There was an outbreak of Ebola in Uganda last July that killed 16 people in one month, and a month later the disease was detected in the DRC.

Prophecy Sign: Animal Deaths Hosea 4:1-3 & Ezekiel 38:20 & Zephaniah 1:3

"I will consume man and beast; I will consume the birds of the heavens, The fish of the sea, And the stumbling blocks along with the wicked. I will cut off man from the face of the land," Says the LORD."
(Zephaniah)

"There is no faithfulness, no love, no acknowledgment of God in the land. There is only cursing, lying and murder, stealing and adultery; they break all bounds, and bloodshed follows bloodshed. Because of this the land mourns, and all who live in it waste away; the beasts of the field and the birds of the air and the fish of the sea are dying. [Hosea 4:1-3]

The fish of the sea, the birds of the air, the beasts of the field, every creature that moves along the ground, and all the people on the face of the earth will tremble at my presence. The mountains will be overturned, the cliffs will crumble and every wall will fall to the ground. [Ezekiel 38:20]

Headline: OIE Reports Nine HPAI Outbreaks in Six Provinces Across Nepal

The Nepalese veterinary authorities have reported nine further outbreaks of highly pathogenic avian influenza (HPAI) at various farms located in Seti, Mechi, Bagmati, Lumbini, Narayani and Gandaki, affecting broilers, backyard chickens, egg layers, ducks and a house crow (Corvus splendens) also known as Corvidae. Intensive surveillance activities are ongoing throughout the country. The source of the outbreaks remains inconclusive.

Prophecy Sign: Apostasy & Alternative Lifestyles Amos 8:11, 1 Timothy 4:1-3 & Romans 1:26-27

"Now the Spirit expressly says that in latter times some will depart from the faith, giving heed to deceiving spirits and doctrines of demons,² speaking lies in hypocrisy, having their own conscience seared with a hot iron,³ forbidding to marry, and commanding to abstain from foods which God created to be received with thanksgiving by those who believe and know the truth." Headline: France's first gay marriage is broadcast to nation

In a historic ceremony broadcast live on French television, the first gay couple to marry in France said "oui," then sealed the deal with a lengthy and very public kiss. Hundreds of invited guests including a government minister gathered for the moving ceremony Wednesday inside city hall in southern French city of Montpellier. Hundreds more flocked to the square outside the building as Vincent Autin, 40, and his 30-year-old partner, Bruno Boileau, were wed. The politically charged ceremony was held under tight police surveillance - a stark reminder of the months of bruising opposition to the new gay marriage law that French lawmakers passed earlier this month. Although the marriage itself went undisrupted, outside the city hall it was not trouble-free. A plainclothes policeman dragged back one protester on Wednesday who shouted threats and tried to approach the couple as they were being escorted into the building, before the ceremony. Police also used tear gas to push back a small group of demonstrators who gathered behind the city hall.

13:16-17

"But you, Daniel, shut up the words, and seal the book until the time of the end; many shall run to and fro, and knowledge shall increase." (Daniel) "He causes all, both small and great, rich and poor, free and slave, to receive a mark on their right hand or on their foreheads,¹⁷ and that no one may buy or sell except one who has the mark or the name of the beast, or the number of his name." Headline: Mark of the Beast phase one....Homeland Security to require all employees to carry biometric smartcard

The Homeland Security Department is buying $100 million worth of services to issue staff at all agencies smartcards with iris and facial recognition capabilities. Late Friday, DHS opened the bidding process for a decade-long project to upgrade personnel identification cards that are used to access federal buildings and networks. Following the September 2001 terrorist attacks, Homeland Security Presidential Directive–12, or HSPD-12, mandated biometric IDs for employees governmentwide. But many workers, including 82 percent of DHS computer users, flash the credentials at guards, rather than digital readers, largely because the cards' electronic components haven't been activated, according to internal audits. Now, contractors will replace about 161,924 cards in 2013 and 116,172 cards in 2014, according to contracting documents.

Headline: Navy considers 3D-printing future fleets of drones

Three-dimensional (3D) printers are quickly proving to be capable of creating just about anything out of little more than thin air, and that could be the military's key to keeping an endless arsenal of drones at its disposal. Just as 3D-printed organs, pizza and even firearms are being made with the post-modern machinery, the United States military is eyeing the up-and-coming technology as to further their upper-hand on the battlefield. Recently, a decorated member of the US Navy made an argument for adding unmanned aerial vehicles and even munitions to the list of items that can be made with little more than a well-equipped printer and a few clicks of a mouse. Hobbyists and engineering students have already toyed with the idea of using 3D printers to make unmanned aerial vehicles, or drones, but the Navy could piggyback on that idea to ensure that UAVs made to withstand military operations are soon a reality.

Headline: Hurricane Barbara lashes Mexico's southern coast

Hurricane Barbara has been lashing parts of Mexico's Pacific coast after making landfall in the town of Santo Domingo Zanatapec, in Oaxaca state. Two people have been killed in the state, the authorities say - an American surfer and a young Mexican swept away by flood waters.

Fourteen fishermen were also reported missing at sea. Barbara quickly lost strength over land but drenched coastal areas with rain, leading to flooding in some areas. The hurricane came ashore some 130 km (80 miles) east of Salina Cruz, home to Mexico's biggest oil refinery. A warning was issued for the stretch of coast between Puerto Angel and Barra de Tonala. Thousands of people in Chiapas and Oaxaca states have been evacuated. Roads have been closed and sea traffic suspended in the area. The storm that preceded the hurricane caused floods in many coastal areas, including the resort city of Acapulco, further north. The hurricane is expected to dissipate in the next 24 hours.

The Arab Spring in Prophecy

(Perilous Times Luke 21:9 & Nation against Nation, Kingdom against Kingdom Matt.24:7)

(Revelation 6:3-4 Revelation 6:8)

“For nation shall rise against nation, and kingdom against kingdom. There will be earthquakes in various places, and there will be famines and sedition; these are the beginning of the labor pains.”

Mark 13:8

CIVIL UNREST

Luke 21:9 and Matthew 24:7 speak of nation against nation and kingdom against kingdom in the end times. Revelation 6:3-4 speaks of the fiery red horse given power to make men slay one another and Revelation 6:8 speaks again of this red horse in conjunction with the pale horse of Death and Hades, as the one that has the power to kill by sword. I like to call this “The Arab Spring in Prophecy” because for us it is easy to identify- that’s what the world calls it.

Luke 21:9: wars & commotions; the Greek word here is Akatastasia, meaning instability, a state of disorder, disturbance, confusion (revolutions)

Matthew 24:7: the Greek word for nation is Ethnos & refers to various ethnic groups fighting among themselves, where the next sentence in the verse refers to kingdoms (basileiva) fighting one another (not to be confused with an actual kingdom but rather the right or authority to rule over a kingdom) I have tried to separate it into areas that sweep EAST from the point of North America.

Africa- ONLY COUNTRIES NOT IN PROPHECY

Headline: Mali youth hold protest against French

Youth in the recently-liberated Malian city of Gao held a sit-in on Thursday to protest against what they see as France's tacit support of the Tuareg ethnic group, the first indication that the mood toward the French in Mali is changing. Gao was the first city where Islamic extremists were pushed out by French forces in January, and is now where the population is staging the first act of protest against the French. The youth staged the sit-in in an area in the center of the city that came to be known as "Shariah Square" during the city's 10-month-long occupation last year by the radical Movement for Oneness and Jihad in West Africa, or MUJAO. Countless accused thieves were strapped to chairs and had their hands sawed off by the jihadists in the square, in scenes of horror that had never previously been witnessed in this part of the world that has long practiced a more tolerant version of the religion.

Headline: Bahrain explosion wounds seven policemen

Bahrain's Interior Ministry says an explosion has wounded seven policemen in what is described as a "terrorist" attack in the Gulf kingdom. Thursday's statement says at least two policemen are in critical condition. It says a homemade device went off late on Wednesday in Bani Jamra, about 10 kilometers (six miles) west of the capital, Manama. Police have been targeted before in the strategic island nation, which is home to the U.S. Navy's 5th Fleet. However, the latest blast is among the most police casualties in a single attack.

Headline: Lisbon metro workers hold anti-austerity strike

Portuguese metro workers have held a 24-hour strike in the capital, Lisbon, in protest to the government's tough austerity measures. The Lisbon metro closed late on Wednesday and will re-open on Friday morning as its staff took part in the strike organized by the largest trade union, the General Confederation of Portuguese Workers (CGTP). The move brought businesses in the capital to a standstill and forced thousands of commuters to find an alternative way. "We anticipate strong participation by workers who will also show their availability for a more general struggle," said CGTP secretary general Armenio Carlos. The union is planning to hold a general strike next month after it organized similar strikes last year. The strike came in response to the government's labor reforms and wage cuts. The government planned to merge the metro company with Lisbon bus company in order to save money through streamlining services provided by unprofitable companies.

Headline: Mobs spread fear in Myanmar's north

Within a few hours on Wednesday, at least one person was dead and four injured as this northeastern town of Myanmar became the latest to fall prey to the country's swelling tide of anti-Muslim unrest. The violence that started Tuesday in the northeastern city of Lashio is casting fresh doubt over whether President Thein Sein's government can or will act to contain the racial and religious intolerance plaguing a deeply fractured nation still struggling to emerge from half a century of military rule. Muslims have been the main victims of the violence since it began in western Rakhine state last year, but so far most criminal trials have involved prosecutions of Muslims, not members of the Buddhist majority. The rioting in Lashio started Tuesday after reports that a Muslim man had splashed gasoline on a Buddhist woman and set her on fire. The man was arrested. The woman was hospitalized with burns on her chest, back and hands. Mobs took revenge by burning down several Muslim shops and one of the city's main mosques, along with an Islamic orphanage that was so badly charred that only two walls remained, said Min Thein, a resident contacted by telephone.
