Headline: Middle East peace talks must succeed to avoid despair, says UK minister

Headline: Netanyahu getting 'several' calls weekly from Kerry on Palestinian state

"Darkness and despair" was the alternative to John Kerry succeeding in his mission to revive moribund Middle East peace talks, the British foreign office minister Alistair Burt said on Wednesday. On a visit to a West Bank village, Burt acknowledged that expectations of a positive outcome were "very low". But he urged Palestinians involved in grassroots protests against the 46-year Israeli occupation to give their political leaders a "completely free hand" to re-engage with negotiations, saying it was the only way to achieve an independent Palestinian state. "Time is very short," he added, saying the efforts of the US secretary of state still represented the "best chance for a generation, and a generation to come" to end the long-running conflict. "The important thing is the real urgency of the situation, the need to make the most of what Kerry is offering and for the communities on the West Bank to be solidly behind their political leaders, to give them the space for what they need to do," Burt told the Guardian.

Headline: Netanyahu backtracks on joint statement with Poland on Israeli-Palestinian conflict

A diplomatic embarrassment preceded the departure Wednesday morning of Prime Minister Benjamin Netanyahu and six Israeli cabinet ministers for a summit meeting with the Polish government in Warsaw. After officials of both governments drafted the final version of the joint statement to be issued at the summit's conclusion, the prime minister distanced himself from it. The Prime Minister's Office explained that low level staff members of the National Security Council had worked on the statement and had obtained Poland's agreement without Netanyahu or the council's director, Yaakov Amidror, ever reading it. Although non-binding, the statement falls into the category of written, official understandings between the two countries. It was rather moderate, particularly regarding the Israeli-Palestinian peace process, including some controversial points: "Both governments agree on the urgent need for progress towards a two-state solution to the Israeli-Palestinian conflict, through direct negotiations between the parties without preconditions."

Headline: UN wants better protection for Golan peacekeepers

Austrian troops in the UN monitoring force on the Golan Heights began withdrawing on Wednesday, days after Vienna decided to quit the mission over security concerns linked to Syria's civil war, AFP reported. A group of about 70 soldiers entered the Israeli side of the strategic plateau through the Quneitra crossing, the only direct passage between Israel and Syria. The troops, the first wave of the 378-strong Austrian contingent which is due to be pulled out in stages, arrived in jeeps accompanied by armored vehicles before crossing through Syrian and Israeli controls.

Headline: Israeli pilots say they are training for Syria, Lebanon threats

Headline: Israel's Mossad chief visited Turkey to discuss Syrian situation

Israeli air force pilots are training daily to meet threats posed by instability in neighboring Syria and Lebanon, pilots at a base in the north of the Jewish state said on Wednesday. Daily drills include preparing to counter "the transfer of all kinds of weapons that could lead to terror attacks," Lieutenant Colonel N, who could not reveal his last name, told AFP on a rare visit by journalists to Ramat David air base. Israel has carried out several air strikes inside Syria this year, which officials say were to preventing shipments of advanced weapons to Israel's arch-foe, the Lebanese Shiite movement Hezbollah. "The atmosphere is very tense," said N, who commands a squadron of F16 warplanes covering Israel's border with Lebanon and the armistice line between the Israeli-occupied Golan Heights and Syria. "It's not every day that a country the size of Syria, two minutes' [flight] from our base, goes through a civil war," he said.

Lebanon

Headline: Gulf begins mass expulsion of Lebanese Shiites over Hezbollah's role in Syria

Kuwait is the first Gulf emirate ready to act on the resolution of the recent Gulf Cooperation Council meeting in Jeddah to punish Hezbollah for its “flagrant intervention in Syria” against “freedom fighters.” The Interior Ministry in Kuwait is about to “end the residency of some 2,000 Lebanese Shiite citizens” and shut down their financial and commercial businesses. The six-member bloc denounced Iran’s Lebanese proxy as a terrorist group for its “flagrant military intervention in Syria and its participation in shedding the blood of Syrian people.” The Saudi Cabinet earlier condemned Hezbollah’s “blatant intervention” in the Syrian crisis. These Kuwait and Saudi moves are expected to soon touch off mass expulsions from the six Gulf nations of tens of thousands of Lebanese Shiites employed or operating businesses there. This forced repatriation of masses of unemployed Shiites will not only be a destabilizing factor in Lebanon but is bound to raise military temperatures between Shiite Iran and the Sunni Gulf.

Syrian rebels have attacked a village in the country's east, killing dozens of local Shiites, activists said Wednesday, highlighting the increasingly sectarian nature of Syria's more than two-year-old conflict. A Syrian government official denounced the attack, saying it was a "massacre" of civilians. In another escalation, a Syrian government helicopter on Wednesday fired three missiles on a border town in Lebanon, lightly wounding one person. At least one of the missiles struck the center of Aarsal, according to Lebanese security officials and residents.

Headline: Lebanon Warns Syria after Gunship Attack

Lebanon's army warned it will hit back against any new attacks from Syria after a helicopter gunship struck an eastern town on Wednesday, ratcheting up tensions ahead of US-British talks on the conflict. AFP reported that the escalation came hours after the emergence of video footage showing the mutilated corpse of one of some 60 Shiites killed in the latest outbreak of worsening sectarian violence in Syria. A Syrian helicopter gunship fired two rockets at the center of Aarsal, a Lebanese town populated mostly by Sunni Muslims, wounding one person, Lebanon's army said.

In a rare warning against the regime of Syrian President Bashar al-Assad, it said Lebanese troops "took the necessary defensive measures to respond immediately to any similar violations".

Lebanon's President Michel Sleiman called the attack "a violation of Lebanon's sovereignty" and said Beirut has the right to take steps to defend itself and to "submit a complaint" to the UN and the Arab League.

Saudi Arabia

Headline: Saudi forces nab nearly 150 government protesters

Regime forces in Saudi Arabia have detained about 150 people for participation in rallies held in several cities, demanding the release of political prisoners. The whereabouts of the detainees, reportedly nabbed on Wednesday, are still unknown. The protests were held despite a strict ban by the Saudi regime on anti-government rallies. Saudi Arabia has been the scene of frequent protests since early 2011. Over a dozen demonstrators have been killed and many arrested in the regime's crackdown during the past two years. Saudi activists say there are more than 40,000 political prisoners, mostly prisoners of conscience, in jails across the Kingdom.

Headline: Saudis set for conflict with Hezbollah

At the direction of Saudi Arabia, the Sunni-dominated Gulf Cooperation Council intends to "take measures" against the Shiite Hezbollah in Lebanon for its backing of the embattled regime of Syrian President Bashar al-Assad, according to Joseph Farah's G2 Bulletin. The decision by the GCC sets it up for a confrontation between Iranian-backed Hezbollah and Bahrain, Kuwait, Oman, Qatar, Saudi Arabia and the United Arab Emirates. The GCC has "decided to look into taking measures against Hezbollah's interests in the member states," council head Abdullatif al-Zayani said in the Saudi city of Jeddah. A number of GCC countries have a rising Shiite minority. Bahrain, whose population is predominantly Shia, has seen demonstrations by the Shia against the ruling monarchy, which is Sunni. In fact, Hamad bin Isa Al-Khalifah, king of Bahrain, ordered many Shia who had lived in Bahrain for generations banished out of concern for links to Hezbollah. Their properties were confiscated and a number were jailed without charges.

Headline: AU urges Egypt and Ethiopia to hold talks on Nile row

Headline: Rising Tensions Over The Nile River Basin

The African Union urged Egypt and Ethiopia to come together for talks to solve a bitter dispute over the sharing of Nile river waters amid Ethiopia's building of a new dam, the AU chief said Wednesday. Egyptian President Mohammed Morsi said Monday that "all options are open" in response to Ethiopia's building of the Grand Renaissance Dam on the Blue Nile tributary. "There should be discussions around these issues... aimed at having a win-win situation," AU Commission chief Nkosazana Dlamini-Zuma told reporters. "Both countries need the water," she said. Egypt says its "historic rights" to the Nile are guaranteed by two treaties from 1929 and 1959 which allow it 87 percent of the Nile's flow and give it veto power over upstream projects. But a new deal was signed in 2010 by other Nile Basin countries, including Ethiopia, allowing them to work on river projects without Cairo's prior agreement.

Jeremiah 49:24-27

New King James Version (NKJV)

- 24 Damascus has grown feeble;
She turns to flee,
And fear has seized her.
Anguish and sorrows have taken her like a woman in labor.
- 25 Why is the city of praise not deserted, the city of My joy?
- 26 Therefore her young men shall fall in her streets,
And all the men of war shall be cut off in that day," says the LORD of hosts.
- 27 "I will kindle a fire in the wall of Damascus,
And it shall consume the palaces of Ben-Hadad."^[a]

The burden of Damascus. Behold, Damascus is taken away from being a city, and it shall be a ruinous heap.

Syria

Headline: Syrian Civil War an 'Iranian Fight' Says Think Tank Chief

The head of a think tank in Dubai says Syria's civil war has become a fight for Iran's survival and rulership in the Middle East. Mustafa Alani, director of security and defense at the Dubai-based Gulf Research Council, explained in a report published by The Washington Post on Wednesday that the Syrian government's chief backer, Iran, is the most responsible for its survival in the savage civil war that began in March 2011. President Bashar al-Assad is facing two major factions: the mostly secular Free Syrian Army (FSA) and the fundamentalist Islamist Front for the Liberation of Syria, most of whose member factions are terrorists aligned with Al Qaeda. But Assad's forces are slowly recapturing ground that was seized by rebels in previous weeks with the aid of forces from the elite Iranian Revolutionary Guards, and guerrilla fighters from the Lebanon-based Hizbullah terrorist organization, also a protégé of Iran.

Headline: Tensions in Syrian Rebel Factions Over Teen Killing in Aleppo

The execution of a 15 year old coffee vendor in the streets of Aleppo earlier this week has sparked rage among residents and galvanized moderate Syrian rebels to condemn the radical Islamist factions that have taken over the city. Louay Meqdad, a spokesman for the Free Syrian Army (FSA), called the public killing of the young teen by Al Qaeda-linked rebels an act of terrorism. He emphasized the group responsible was not connected to the FSA, according to the pan-Arabic Aljazeera news network, and said the perpetrators should turn themselves in to the "legitimate authorities" in Aleppo. The question, however, is, who the FSA considers to be the "legitimate authorities" in Aleppo. The city is currently controlled by the same radical Islamist rebel faction that earlier in the year declared the city would become a separatist Shari'a (Islamic law) state – and which sometimes fights together with the FSA when it becomes necessary to unite to fight off Syrian government forces.

Headline: Syrian regime kills 26 attempting to break Ghouta siege

Twin suicide bombers targeted a Damascus police station on Tuesday killing at least 14 people, as the Syrian army launched multiple attacks on rebel positions in the northern province of Aleppo.

The blasts wounded more than 30 people, state media and the Syrian Observatory for Human Rights watchdog said. They caused widespread damage in the capital's central Marjeh neighbourhood, with state television broadcasting images of blood and broken glass on the pavement near the scene.

"The number of casualties after a twin suicide attack in Marjeh Square has risen to 14 dead and 31 injured," said the channel, updating an earlier toll. "The two suicide explosions took place near a police station," it said. The observatory put the death toll at 15, and said one of the blasts "was caused by a suicide bomb attacker who blew himself up inside the police station". "A second explosion took place just outside the police station," the Britain-based group said, without elaborating on the nature of that blast.

Candidates in Iran's presidential election are wrapping up the final day of campaigning, with a moderate cleric seeing his chances significantly boosted just two days before the vote.

Rowhani's chances also increased with former popular presidents Akbar Hashemi Rafsanjani and Mohammad Khatami publicly giving their support to him. Friday's election will find a successor to Mahmoud Ahmadinejad, who cannot run for a third term in office.

UN Secretary-General Ban Ki-moon has expressed concern over the outbreak of deadly violence in Iraq, calling for dialogue among all Iraqi political groups to address the current critical situation in the country. In a statement on Wednesday, Ban voiced concern over “the escalating political tensions and the appalling upsurge of violence that has killed a high number of civilians over the last two months.” Ban also urged “all parties to redouble their efforts to ensure that the momentum of national reconciliation is not lost to those groups that strive to reignite sectarian violence in Iraq.” Ban’s statement come after a wave of attacks killed seventy people and injured dozens across Iraq on Monday.

Headline: Police clear Istanbul protest, Erdogan meets protesters

Turkish riot police pummeled protestors with tear gas, rubber bullets and water cannons in Istanbul’s Taksim square into the early hours of Wednesday (12 June) as unrest deepens over Prime Minister Recep Tayyip Erdogan’s strong-arm tactics to stamp out the demonstrations. The 13-day stand-off has left some 5,000 injured and four dead in what started off as a peaceful demonstration against a shopping centre project in central Istanbul. The sit-in quickly spiralled into a wider protest over what many Turks see as Erdogan’s uncompromising grip on power. On Tuesday, Erdogan once again struck a defiant tone. He accused the protesters - which had swelled to around 30,000 people - of “being used by some financial institutions, the interest rate lobby and media groups to [harm] Turkey's economy and [scare away] investments,” reports Reuters.

Headline: Libya to get C-130J transports in first U.S. military sale to Libya in decades

The administration of President Barack Obama has approved a Libyan request for two C-130J aircraft, manufactured by Lockheed Martin. On June 7, the Defense Security Cooperation Agency notified Congress of the Libyan request, not expected to meet opposition from either the House or Senate. "The government of Libya uses airlift to maintain the connection between the central government and the country's outlying areas," the Pentagon agency said. "The sale of these C-130Js to Libya will significantly increase its capability to provide in-country airlift support for its forces, thus strengthening its capacity in the security arena." The proposed sale, reported at $588 million, was approved amid a breakdown of security in Libya. In June, Libya's chief of staff was fired for failing to stop militia attacks on government and military facilities, particularly in the east. "Libya intends to use these aircraft primarily to move supplies and people within Libya," DSCA said on June 10. "This medium lift capability should assist with border security, the interdiction of known terrorist elements, and rapid reaction to internal security threats."

Headline: German top court 'not interested' in saving euro

The German Constitutional Court is not interested whether the European Central Bank's (ECB) actions in the euro-crisis were successful, but whether they were legal, the court's top judge said on Tuesday (11 June) in a public hearing. "Otherwise the end alone would justify the means," Andreas Vosskuhle, the presiding judge, noted. In the run-up to the hearing, ECB chief Mario Draghi had called his bank's bond-buying programme "the most successful monetary policy undertaken in recent time." It recently bought some €1.1 billion of troubled bonds, helping Italy and Spain to keep their heads above the water. The plaintiffs - a group which has so far challenged almost every euro-rescue step taken by Germany - also asked the Karlsruhe-based court to look at the ECB's Outright Monetary Transactions (OMT) scheme. Under the OMT, the bank is to buy "unlimited" bonds from troubled euro-countries, provided they sign up to strict reforms. In this respect, the programme is different to the other bond-buying scheme, which comes with no strings attached on reform.

Headline: Dollar Weakens Before Economic Data That May Sway Fed Stimulus

The dollar fell against the yen and euro after erasing gains before U.S. economic data that may provide more direction about when the Federal Reserve will begin to taper its monetary stimulus. The Dollar Index touched its lowest point in almost four months before a report tomorrow forecast to show retail sales grew 0.4 percent in May, according to a Bloomberg survey. Sentiment has grown that a strengthening economy will prompt the U.S. central bank to taper bond buying, which risks devaluing the currency. The yen fell earlier on speculation the biggest gain in three years yesterday was too rapid amid forecasts for further stimulus from the Bank of Japan. "The market will look at it as a direction; everything that comes out now, I think, is much more closely watched," said Fabian Eliasson, head of U.S. currency sales at Mizuho Financial Group Inc. (8411), by phone from New York. "That's what adds this volatility to the market, it's just this uncertainty of Federal Reserve actions."

South Korea dismantled the meeting table, pulled down the placards and rolled up the red carpet. Its intended guest, North Korea, has stopped answering the phone. The rivals' much-anticipated meeting, which had been set for Wednesday, collapsed before it even began. But while the last-minute cancellation over a protocol dispute shows the Koreas' deep mutual mistrust, they may have more reasons than not to eventually unpack the meeting gear and get back to negotiations. New South Korean President Park Geun-hye is under pressure to make good on her campaign promises to reverse a deterioration of ties under her hard-line predecessor. A high-level meeting would validate her attempt to combine a tough line against provocations with commitments to provide aid and steady calls for dialogue.

Drugstores are preparing to change how they stock and sell a widely used emergency contraceptive after the Obama administration agreed to allow the pill to be sold over the counter to customers of all ages. The pill, sold primarily under the brand name Plan B, is currently stocked behind pharmacy counters, not on drugstore shelves. Also, girls 16 or younger need a prescription to buy it.

That is set to change in the coming months, after the Obama administration said late Monday that it would reverse its long-standing position and would comply with a judge's ruling to make the drug available to women and girls of any age without a prescription.

Prophecy Sign: Scorching Sun Isaiah 30:26 & Revelation 16:8-9

“Moreover the light of the moon will be as the light of the sun, And the light of the sun will be sevenfold, As the light of seven days, In the day that the LORD binds up the bruise of His people And heals the stroke of their wound.” (Isaiah 30:26) “Then the fourth angel poured out his bowl on the sun, and power was given to him to scorch men with fire. ⁹ And men were scorched with great heat, and they blasphemed the name of God who has power over these plagues; and they did not repent and give Him glory.” (Revelation 16:8-9)

Headline: Record high temps, and dry weather fuels forest fires in Colorado: thousands evacuated Thick smoke plumes, visible for miles, billowed from fires near Colorado Springs, in southern Colorado, and in Rocky Mountain National Park to the north. A wildfire in a residential area northeast of Colorado Springs forced mandatory evacuations of 2,530 homes, including some worth more than $1 million, El Paso County Sheriff Terry Maketa said. Video from a helicopter showed several large homes engulfed in flames. Maketa said about eight homes had burned but had no exact number because the fire was moving so quickly across parched forest. “Right now the firefighters are more focused on fighting fires, drawing lines. And law enforcement, to be very honest, is scrambling to get people out of there as well as do searches,” Maketa said. He said firefighters have shifted from evacuation mode to search and rescue mode. Three helicopters were battling the Black Forest Fire, he said. The area is not far from last summer’s devastating Waldo Canyon Fire that destroyed 346 homes and killed two.

Headline: Unusually massive line of storms may affect 1 in 5 Americans

A gigantic line of powerful thunderstorms could affect one in five Americans on Wednesday as it rumbles from Iowa to Maryland packing hail, lightning and tree-toppling winds. Meteorologists are warning that the continuous line of storms may even spawn an unusual weather event called a derecho, which is a massive storm of strong straight-line winds spanning at least 240 miles. Wednesday's storms are also likely to generate tornadoes and cause power outages that will be followed by oppressive heat, said Bill Bunting, operations chief at the National Weather Service's Storm Prediction Center in Norman, Okla. The risk of severe weather in Chicago, Indianapolis, Cincinnati and Columbus, Ohio, is roughly 45 times higher than on a normal June day, Bunting said. Detroit, Baltimore, Washington, Milwaukee, Pittsburgh and Louisville, Ky., have a risk level 15 times more than normal. All told, the area the weather service considers to be under heightened risk of dangerous weather includes 64 million people in 10 states.

The Arab Spring in Prophecy

(Perilous Times Luke 21:9 & Nation against Nation, Kingdom against Kingdom Matt.24:7)

(Revelation 6:3-4 Revelation 6:8)

“For nation shall rise against nation,
and kingdom against kingdom.
There will be earthquakes in various places, and there will be famines and sedition; these are the beginning of the labor pains.”

Mark 13:8

UNREST

Luke 21:9 and Matthew 24:7 speak of nation against nation and kingdom against kingdom in the end times. Revelation 6:3-4 speaks of the fiery red horse given power to make men slay one another and Revelation 6:8 speaks again of this red horse in conjunction with the pale horse of Death and Hades, as the one that has the power to kill by sword. I like to call this "The Arab Spring in Prophecy" because for us it is easy to identify- that's what the world calls it.

Luke 21:9: wars & commotions; the Greek word here is Akatastasia, meaning instability, a state of disorder, disturbance, confusion (revolutions)

Matthew 24:7: the Greek word for nation is Ethnos & refers to various ethnic groups fighting among themselves, where the next sentence in the verse refers to kingdoms (basileiva) fighting one another (not to be confused with an actual kingdom but rather the right or authority to rule over a kingdom) I have tried to separate it into areas that sweep EAST from the point of North America.

Headline: Tuareg rebels ready to sign peace deal with Malian government: source

A Tuareg source in neighboring Burkina Faso said that the group is ready to sign a regionally brokered peace deal, AFP reported on Tuesday. Talks between the two sides kicked off in Ouagadougou, Burkina Faso on Saturday. We will not obstruct the process," the source said, adding, "When the time comes, we will sign, no problem." Earlier in the day, a Malian source stated that the government is also ready for a peace deal but is seeking some final changes to the agreement. Chaos broke out in the West African country after Malian President Amadou Toumani Toure was toppled in a military coup on March 22, 2012. The coup leaders said they mounted the coup in response to the government's inability to contain the Tuareg rebellion in the north of the country, which had been going on for two months.

Headline: Greeks protest government decision to shut down state broadcaster ERT

Thousands of people have gathered outside the headquarters of the national broadcaster ERT in the Greek capital, Athens, in protest at a government decision to shut down the country's main media outlet, Press TV reports. Protesters rushed to the main headquarter of the broadcaster in a northern suburb of the capital on Tuesday after the government announced the closure. The move is part of the country's cost-cutting drive demanded by its international creditors, and will result in the loss of some 2,700 jobs. "ERT is a case of an exceptional lack of transparency and incredible extravagance. This ends now," government spokesman Simos Kedikoglou said at a news conference earlier in the day. Greece's main trade unions, opposition parties, media groups, European and international journalists' unions have warned against the closure of the state broadcaster.

Headline: France air traffic control strike spreads across EU

A strike staged by French air traffic controllers is expanding across Europe with ten more countries bracing for similar industrial action. Nearly three-quarters of flights from France's busiest airports were cancelled due to the ongoing strike, which came in protest at a European Commission (EC) proposal to create a single airspace for the continent. The French Directorate General for Civil Aviation (DGAC) said in a statement that about 1,800 flights were cancelled on Wednesday. "Nearly 100 percent" of France's air traffic controllers were taking part in the strike, DGAC added. The three-day strike, which was called by the European Transport Workers' Federation (ETF), started on Tuesday.

Headline: Tibetan Nun Self-Immolates in Apparent Anti-China Protest

Witnesses say a Tibetan Buddhist nun has set herself on fire in China's southwestern Sichuan province, in an apparent protest against China's policies in Tibet. Sources tell VOA's Tibetan service that the unidentified nun self-immolated Tuesday afternoon near a monastery in the Tawu district. Her condition was not immediately known, as Chinese security personnel took her to a nearby hospital. Sources say all communications to and from the district have been blocked and travel restrictions have been imposed. The self-immolation is the 119th in the vast Tibetan region since early 2009, when anti-China protesters - most of them monks and nuns - began setting themselves on fire to protest what locals describe as Chinese interference in Tibetan customs and religious practices. Protesters have also sought to bring attention to demands for the return of their exiled spiritual leader, the Dalai Lama.
