At the current time I have people signing up at my prophecy site to receive notices for my daily posts via your email address. However, due to the number of people who are signing on for the up-dates the cost of this service keeps going up as more people sign on. I have gotten to the point where I have to cut off this service. I wanted everyone to know now so they will make note of it. If you want to read the prophecy news I post and watch my videos at my site please put my site in your favorite box. I am sure when the daily posts stop going out automatically people will write me asking me why they are not receiving the daily posts. I am sorry about this service being cancelled but I need the funds to help the poor and support the Pastors I have been trying to support. I hope you understand. Frank

(Zech.12:3 & 9 - The Burdensome Stone)

Zechariah 12:3 "And in that day will I make Jerusalem a burdensome stone for all people: all that burden themselves with it shall be cut in pieces, though all the people of the earth be gathered together against it."

Headline: Clinton urges 2-state solution for Israel

The only choice for Israel to remain a Jewish and democratic nation is to work toward a two-state solution, former U.S. President Bill Clinton said. Clinton was in Israel to attend celebrations marking the 90th birthday of Israeli President Shimon Peres. "You have to cobble together some kind of theory of a two-state solution, and the longer you let this go, just because of sheer demographics, the tougher it's going to get. I don't see any alternative to a Palestinian state," the former U.S. President said in a speech before the Peres Academic Center in Rehovot Monday night. Clinton said he would donate the $500,000 payment received for his lecture to the Center to fund scholarships for students studying there, The Jerusalem Post reported. The event marked the start of three days of celebrations to honor Peres.

Headline: Kerry Makes Fifth Visit to Israel

US Secretary of State John Kerry leaves Friday on a 12-day trip during which he will return to the Middle East, hold high-level talks in Southeast Asia and make his first visit to India. At the start of his seven-nation tour, Kerry will head first for Doha to meet with top Qatari leaders and take part in a meeting of the core ministers from the Friends of Syria group, State Department spokeswoman Jen Psaki said in a statement Wednesday, according to the AFP news agency. The top US diplomat will then travel to India from June 23-25 for his first official visit since taking up his post on February 1 to chair the fourth annual US-India strategic dialogue. The forum is a way of "reflecting the strong strategic partnership between our countries," Psaki said, adding they will discuss issues ranging from security and defense to science, climate change and economic ties, as well as space cooperation. From Delhi, Kerry will travel to Saudi Arabia to meet top Saudi officials, before heading to Kuwait City on June 26, AFP reported. From June 27 to 29, the US secretary of state will return to the Middle East region with a stop in Jordan before making his fifth visit to Israel to meet Israeli and Palestinian Authority leaders.

Headline: Palestinians toughen line on Israel talks

The Palestinian president and his Fatah movement on Wednesday signaled a tough line on talks with Israel, casting new doubt on U.S. efforts to revive long-stalled negotiations. U.S. Secretary of State John Kerry is returning to the region next week, his fifth attempt this year to bridge wide gaps between the Palestinian leader, Mahmoud Abbas and Israeli Prime Minister Benjamin Netanyahu on the ground rules for talks. Abbas has said he won't negotiate unless Israel stops building in settlements on war-won lands or accepts its 1967 lines — before the capture of the West Bank, Gaza Strip and east Jerusalem in a Mideast war that year — as a starting point for border talks. The Palestinians claim all three areas for their future state. Netanyahu has rejected the Palestinian demands, saying there should be no pre-conditions — though his predecessor conducted talks on the basis of the pre-1967 lines, and the international community views the settlements as illegal or illegitimate. Abbas briefed Fatah leaders on Wednesday. In a statement after the meeting, Abbas adviser Nabil Abu Rdeneh said Fatah supports Abbas in his positions and "affirmed its rejection of the pressures on Abbas and the leadership," an apparent reference to the Kerry mission.

Headline: Turkish PM Erdoğan meets Hamas leader Meshal and Gaza PM Haniyeh

Prime Minister Recep Tayyip Erdoğan came together with Hamas leader Khaled Meshal and Prime Minister of the Gaza administration Ismail Haniyeh in Ankara on June 18, in a meeting that lasted over two-and-a-half hours. Foreign Minister Ahmet Davutoğlu also attended the meeting. Israel's Jerusalem policies were expected to top the agenda of the meeting, according to Hamas' International Relations official Usame Hamdan. Hamdan also said the construction of Israeli settlements and Israel's "imposition policies" aimed at the Palestinian economy would also be discussed during the meeting. Another topic to be discussed was the gap still existing between the two main Palestinian representatives, Hamas and Fatah, he added. "Turkey's role in the Middle East and the world is crucial," Hamdan told Anatolia news agency.

Headline: Hamas: 100,000 children to train at military camps this summer

It's summer again, and as has become customary in recent years, thousands of Gazan children will flock to terrorist-organized summer camps to engage in semimilitary training, including the use of live ammunition and simulated kidnappings of Israeli soldiers, Ynet reported Tuesday. The summer programs — offered by Hamas, the Islamic Jihad and the Popular Resistance Committees — view the training as a serious recruitment tool for finding dedicated young soldiers to help fight Israel, Ynet reported. Senior Hamas officials say some 100,000 children are expected to take part in the various summer camps. The Islamic group's leader in Gaza, Ismail Haniyeh, said the goal of the summertime activities is to "instill children with values, strengthen their moral core and spread the spirit of Jihad," Ynet said.

Headline: Terrorists Fire 3 Rockets at Ashkelon

An early morning attack intended for southern Israel following President Shimon Peres's birthday bash fizzled with at least one – and possibly two -- of the rockets intended to kill Jewish civilians exploding instead inside Gaza. A total of three rockets were fired overnight, security officials said. The third rocket reportedly landed on the Israeli side of the border in an open area, but no property damage was reported, and no one was physically injured, according to Israel state radio. Meanwhile, Terrorists from Hamas-controlled Gaza fired three rockets at southern Israel early Wednesday morning. At least one rocket exploded in an open region of the Hof Ashkelon Regional Council, causing no physical injuries or damages. Two other rockets may have exploded in Gaza.

Jordan

Headline: 'Exercise Eager Lion' War Games Active in Jordanian Desert

Military forces from Jordan and the U.S. are drilling together in the Jordanian desert with 17 other nations in Exercise Eager Lion 2013 -- the third such military drill to take place in Jordan. The 12-day war games, slated to end Thursday, was explained by a statement on the website of the U.S. Armed Forces Central Command as an opportunity to "promote cooperation and interoperability among participants," but appears clearly intended to send a warning to Jordan's northern neighbor, Syria. At least one or two Patriot anti-missile batteries was recently deployed by the U.S. along the Jordanian-Syrian border to defend the kingdom against spillover from the country's savage civil war. A similar set of four such batteries were deployed by NATO along Turkey's border with Syria in January for similar reasons. Involving forces on land, sea and in the air, the exercises bring together 8,000 troops from a total of 19 European and Arab nations. All are engaged in learning counterinsurgency techniques, fighting terrorism, non-standard warfare methods and border security. June 19, 2013

Lebanon

Headline: Rockets fired from Syria hit Eastern Lebanon, security source says

Two rockets fired from Syrian territory hit on Tuesday the eastern Lebanese region of Bekaa, a Hezbollah stronghold, a security source told AFP. "Two rockets landed in the Brital countryside and the nearby Taybeh valley," the source said on condition of anonymity. There were no immediate reports of casualties or damages. Tension along the Syrian-Lebanese border has soared in recent weeks, ever since Lebanese Shiite group Hezbollah aided the Damascus regime of President Bashar al-Assad to take down insurgent bastion Qusayr in central Syria. Frequent fire has hit Hezbollah bastions in eastern Lebanon, while the Syrian army has for several months fired on Sunni Lebanese areas that back the anti-Assad revolt. Lebanon has officially maintained a policy of neutrality in Syria's conflict, but powerful Hezbollah is playing a growing role in the fighting in the strife-torn country.

Headline: Clashes erupt in south Lebanon amid Syria tensions

Headline: Lebanese MP accuses president of "high treason"

Clashes erupted on Tuesday between unknown gunmen and followers of a radical Sunni cleric in south Lebanon, security officials said, the latest apparent outbreak of violence between Lebanese factions supporting opposing sides in the civil war in neighboring Syria. Automatic rifles and rocket propelled grenades were being used in the fighting in an eastern suburb of the port city of Sidon, security officials said. There were no immediate reports of casualties. Lebanon has been on the edge for months. The country's Sunni Muslims largely support their brethren in Syria, who make up the majority of the rebellion against President Bashar Assad's regime. Many Shiites support Assad because his regime is dominated by Alawites, an offshoot sect of Shiite Islam.

The major organization of Syrian rebels, the Free Syrian Army, announced Wednesday that forces affiliated with Bashar Assad's regime and Hezbollah fighters employed chemical weapons in battles at the outskirts of Damascus, according to Alarabiya network. Assad's forces are continuing to shell a number of towns and areas within Syria using a range of munitions, especially chemical warfare which, this time around, hit the town of Zamalka, outside of Damascus. The rebels stated that the military forces use of chemical weapons killed several people and caused several to sustain injuries resulted from suffocation. The network uploaded video clips showing the dead and wounded. The report was not confirmed by other sources.

Headline: Morsi Critics Demand Early Egypt Elections

For many Egyptians, the year since Mohamed Morsi became the nation's first democratically elected president has been a failure. After a year of dreadful economic decline, energy and water shortages, lack of security and what some see as the president's overbearing, exclusive, Islamist agenda, they now want to do something about it. Across the country, activists with the Tamarod - or Rebel - campaign have been collecting signatures expressing lost confidence in Morsi and demanding early elections. Some view the campaign, and planned demonstrations on June 30, as an exercise in democracy. May Wahba, head of Tamarod's media department, argues the legally elected Morsi lost legitimacy when he assumed extraordinary powers for several weeks late last year. She says anti-Morsi campaigners would like to use the same democratic way he came to power to make him leave. She cites Article 1 of the constitution, which places power in the hands of the people.

Jeremiah 49:24-27

New King James Version (NKJV)

24 Damascus has grown feeble;
She turns to flee,
And fear has seized her.
Anguish and sorrows have taken her like a woman in labor.
25 Why is the city of praise not deserted, the city of My joy?
26 Therefore her young men shall fall in her streets,
And all the men of war shall be cut off in that day," says the LORD of hosts.
27 "I will kindle a fire in the wall of Damascus,
And it shall consume the palaces of Ben-Hadad."<sup>[a]</sup>

The burden of Damascus. Behold, Damascus is taken away from being a city, and it shall be a ruinous heap.

Syria

Headline: Kerry Urged Washington to Declare War on Syria

Headline: Obama Silent on US Arms to Syrian Rebels

Secretary John Kerry advised senior Washington officials last week to launch a massive airstrike against Syrian airfields from which jets that deployed chemical weapons against rebel forces took off. General Martin Dempsey, Chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff opposed the idea, explaining that the State Department was unaware of how complex such an operation would be. Meanwhile, U.S. President Barack Obama says Syria's government has lost its legitimacy by killing tens of thousands of its citizens in a bloody civil war, but he refused to describe the type of military support Washington will provide rebel forces. Speaking at a news conference Wednesday in Berlin with German Chancellor Angela Merkel, Obama said reports the United States is heading into a new Middle Eastern war in Syria were exaggerated. He reiterated his view that President Bashar al-Assad's government had used chemical weapons, while acknowledging that Russia was skeptical on this point. Obama called for the United Nations to conduct "a serious investigation" into chemical weapons use.

Headline: Syrian warplanes strike rebel posts in Aleppo

Syrian warplanes struck rebel positions near a besieged military air base and other rebel-held areas in the country's north Tuesday as regime forces stepped up attacks against opposition fighters in the key province of Aleppo, activists said. Rebels fighting to topple President Bashar al-Assad have for months been trying to take Kweiras and two other military air bases nearby without success. The government has recently gone on the offensive in the province and in areas in the country's heartland to recapture rebel-held territory. Activists said warplanes also struck targets in the villages of Atareb and Kfar Hamra in Aleppo province, and troops clashed with rebels inside the provincial capital of the same name. There were no immediate reports of casualties. The regime has gone on the offensive in Homs and Aleppo, the country's largest city, to build on the momentum from its victory at the strategic town of Qusayr earlier this month. The violence also continued to spill over the border. Heavy clashes erupted between pro-Hezbollah gunmen and followers of a radical Sunni cleric in southern Lebanon, killing two people, officials said.

Troops loyal to Syrian President Bashar al-Assad pushed forward a bid to crush rebel bastions near the capital Damascus on Tuesday, a monitoring group and activists said. The Syrian Observatory for Human Rights said troops battled rebels in Zamalka and Mleiha east of Damascus, maintained a siege on Douma, also in the east, and fired on Daraya and Moadamiyet al-Sham southwest of the capital. Meanwhile, clashes pitting rebels against troops raged in the Qadam area in the southwest of Damascus, according to the Observatory, which relies on a broad network of activists, doctors and lawyers for its reports. "The regime is trying to score victories around Damascus to give its supporters a boost of confidence," Observatory director Rami Abdel Rahman told AFP.

Headline: Syrian rebels launch attack to block northern highway leading to Turkey

Rebels attacked a main highway in northern Syria on Wednesday, opposition groups said, to try to choke off a major supply line for President Bashar Assad's forces in the region. Assad's troops, backed by battle-hardened Lebanese Hezbollah fighters and emboldened by their capture of a strategic border town, are starting an offensive to regain the rebel-dominated north and remaining rebel strongholds around Damascus. The pro-opposition Syrian Observatory for Human Rights said the rebels had seized an army checkpoint on the Ariha-Latakia stretch of an international highway that goes through Syria's biggest city, Aleppo, to the Turkish border. Other rebel groups said opposition forces had seized three checkpoints and needed to capture three more to cut off army access to the M5 highway. "This is a very important battle in our move to put a stranglehold on regime supply lines from its stronghold on the coast into the north, particularly to Idlib city, which is one of the regime's last footholds in Idlib province," said Mohammed Fizo, a rebel spokesman speaking by Skype.

"Thus says the LORD of hosts: 'Behold, I will break the bow of Elam, The foremost of their might. <sup>36</sup> Against Elam I will bring the four winds From the four quarters of heaven, And scatter them toward all those winds; There shall be no nations where the outcasts of Elam will not go. <sup>37</sup> For I will cause Elam to be dismayed before their enemies And before those who seek their life. Headline: Iraqi Shi'ites flock to Assad's side as sectarian split widens

At least five people have been killed after a bomb blast hit a social gathering in northern Iraq. The attack took place early Wednesday morning in the town of al-Hadr in Nineveh Province. The social gathering was hosted by the United Iraq Party whose leader and four of his relatives were killed in the attack. No group has claimed responsibility for the deadly attack which happened on the eve of provincial elections in Iraq. Electoral officials are to hold provincial elections in the northern and western provinces of Nineveh and al-Anbar on June 20 after authorities delayed the polls in those provinces due to security concerns. Meanwhile, Syria is splintering the Middle East along a divide between the two main denominations of Islam, becoming a battlefield in a proxy war between Assad's main regional ally, Shi'ite Iran, and his Sunni enemies in Turkey and the Gulf Arab states. The conflict has already drawn in streams of Sunni Islamist fighters on the rebel side, while Lebanon's Iranian-backed Hezbollah is openly fighting for Assad. Now the flow of Iraqi militiamen across the border is also casting doubt on the Shi'ite-led Baghdad government's official position of neutrality in the Syrian civil war that has killed 90,000 people in more than two years.

Headline: Kurdish rebel commander warns Turkish state sabotaging peace

A top Kurdish militant commander warned on Wednesday a fragile peace process had been jeopardized by increased military activity and a lack of concrete steps by the government, including the continued detention of Kurdish politicians. Members of the Kurdistan Workers Party (PKK) began a withdrawal from Turkish territory to bases in northern Iraq last month, part of a deal brokered between the state and the group's jailed leader Abdullah Ocalan earlier this year aimed at ending a conflict that has claimed 40,000 lives since 1984. "The state is doing what it can to sabotage this process. It is preparing for war. This is creating serious problems for us," Murat Karayilan, the PKK commander based in northern Iraq, told the Firat news agency, which is close to the rebels. He pointed to increased military surveillance and the construction of new army posts in the mainly Kurdish southeast as undermining the rebels' withdrawal, which is expected to take months. There was no immediate comment from the military General Staff, although in April, the military issued a statement that it would continue to fight against "terrorism".

Turkish Prime Minister Recep Tayyip Erdogan has announced plans to increase the police's powers to deal with anti-government protests. In an address to parliament in the capital Ankara on Tuesday, Erdogan said that riot police had acted with restraint against the violent demonstrators and that their powers would be increased. "Our security forces put up a successful and extremely patient struggle against the acts of violence by remaining within the limits set by democracy and the law," he stated. Erdogan's defiant stance came amid unrelenting demonstrations in Istanbul and Ankara. The unrest in Turkey began on May 31 after the police broke up a sit-in held at Istanbul's Taksim Square to protest against the proposal to demolish Gezi Park. Over the next several days, tens of thousands of anti-government protesters held demonstrations in 78 cities across the country.

After the G8 summit issued its final communiqué Tuesday, including the controversial Syrian clause, Vladimir Putin cautioned the West that if arms shipments to the rebels (as disclosed exclusively by DEBKAFile Tuesday) continue, Moscow will consider more arms transactions with the Assad regime. In another warning, the Russian leader said that European arms supplies to Syrian rebels would recoil against them from their own back yard in the hands of radical Islamists. Meanwhile, just one day after the G8 Summit ended in the failure of Western leaders to overcome Russian resistance to a resolution mandating President Bashar Assad's ouster, Moscow announced Wednesday June 19, the dispatch to Syria of two warships carrying 600 Russian marines. They were coming, said the official statement, "to protect the Russian citizens there." Russian Deputy Air Force Commander Maj.-Gen. Chancellor Angela Merkel's conservatives have rejected Turkish membership in the European Union in their German election program, saying the country would "overburden" the bloc because of its size and economy. The Christian Democratic Union (CDU) and its Bavarian sister party, the Christian Social Union (CSU), have long opposed Turkey joining the 27-nation bloc, but haven't stood in the way of EU accession talks that were launched shortly before Merkel took office. The German line has hardened in recent weeks however because of Ankara's tough response to three weeks of protests against Prime Minister Tayyip Erdogan. On Monday, Merkel said she was "appalled" at Turkey's handling of the protests, which have turned into fierce clashes between police firing teargas and water cannon, and masked demonstrators throwing bottles and other missiles. In a draft of the CDU/CSU program seen by Reuters, the parties dropped use of the term "privileged partnership" to describe their preferred relationship between Turkey and the EU, but reiterated their long-standing opposition to it joining.

Headline: 130,000 leave Germany due to failing economy, lack of business opportunities

Headline: Europe faces uphill battle over youth unemployment

Thousands are emigrating from Germany, one of Europe's strongest economies, to seek opportunities elsewhere, citing "no safety for the future" and overcomplicated business legislation as the reasons behind their decision. Some 130,000 people – the most in a generation – left Germany in 2012, RT's Peter Oliver reported. Recent government data has shown that unemployment in Germany climbed by 21,000 in May – four times more than economists forecast. At the end of May, the Federal Labor Office published unemployment statistics showing that 2.96 million Germans (3 percent of the country's population) are currently jobless.

Headline: IMF calls for urgent steps on Spain unemployment

Cypriot President Nicos Anastasiades has strongly criticized the terms of an international debt bailout in a letter to eurozone leaders, warning that the country might not be able to reach the current required targets. In the leaked letter Anastasiades sent last week, he accused the eurozone leaders of treating Cyprus unfairly, saying the current terms has harmed the country's economy and banking system even more than expected. "An alternative, longer-term, downsizing of the banking system away from publicity and without bank runs was a credible alternative that would not have produced such a deep recession and loss of confidence in the banking system," said Anastasiades. In return for a 10 billion-euro bailout (USD13 billion), the international troika of lenders demanded the restructuring and partial merger of Cyprus' two largest banks, the Bank of Cyprus and Laiki bank, which account for 80 percent of the domestic banking sector.

When a central bank like the Federal Reserve turns itself into a hedge fund, you know the lunatics have fully taken over the asylum. leverage is leveraged again. madness is the meme. The Greenspan put has been around at least since 1998 when LTCM was so conveniently bailed out by the Reverend "free money" Al. Bernanke has continued the tradition. The result has been a set of incredible bubbles around the world, in overvalued financial assets and stocks in the West, and in currencies, commodities, real estate, stocks and bonds in all emerging markets. Without QE oil would certainly not be $100 a barrel, and one million Russian tourists a year would likely not be vacationing in sunny Thailand. The unwind is starting. Europe is on a one way road to hell. Greece and Cyprus are already there. Spain, France, Portugal, Italy, Slovenia, and others are close behind. every European bank is basically insolvent. Turkey, Brazil, & Argentina are cracking. China is set for a total financial meltdown, mainly self-inflicted, but of course Ben's easy money has kept the music playing right across Asia for far too long.

Headline: New MERS virus spreads easily, deadlier than SARS

A mysterious new respiratory virus that originated in the Middle East spreads easily between people and appears more deadly than SARS, doctors reported Wednesday after investigating the biggest outbreak in Saudi Arabia. More than 60 cases of what is now called MERS, including 38 deaths, have been recorded by the World Health Organization in the past year, mostly in Saudi Arabia. So far, illnesses haven't spread as quickly as SARS did in 2003, ultimately triggering a global outbreak that killed about 800 people. An international team of doctors who investigated nearly two dozen cases in eastern Saudi Arabia found the new coronavirus has some striking similarities to SARS. Unlike SARS, though, scientists remain baffled as to the source of MERS. In a worrying finding, the team said MERS (Middle East respiratory syndrome) not only spreads easily between people, but within hospitals. That was also the case with SARS, a distant relative of the new virus.

With the Supreme Court preparing to deliver two landmark decisions on same-sex marriage, the Justice Department on Tuesday celebrated gay pride with speeches by Attorney General Eric H. Holder Jr., Sen. Tammy Baldwin, Wisconsin Democrat, the first openly gay member of the Senate, and singer-songwriter and lesbian activist Melissa Etheridge. In what was billed as “A Year of Firsts” by the official website for LGBT employees at the Justice Department, Mr. Holder said the nation has made “great strides in overcoming the obstacles and biases that too often affect gay, lesbian, bisexual and transgender individuals.” And nowhere was that clearer, he said, than in the work performed by the department’s Civil Rights Division. “Under the landmark Matthew Shepard and James Byrd Jr. Hate Crimes Prevention Act — which President Obama signed into law in 2009 — we’ve strengthened our ability to hold accountable those who commit acts of violence that are motivated by someone’s actual or perceived gender, sexual orientation, gender identity or disability — and to achieve justice on behalf of all who are victimized simply because of who they are, or who they love,” Mr. Holder said. “As part of an administration-wide commitment to stopping harassment, bullying and abusive behavior, we have partnered with a variety of agencies, including the Department of Education, to forge new alliances between educators, school administrators and anti-bullying advocates.”

Headline: Nigeria: Boko Haram Kills Pastor, Destroys Four Churches

Suspected members of Boko Haram attacked four settlements in Nigeria's Borno State, killing a pastor and torching four churches, according to AllAfrica Global Media. Boko Haram is a militant Islamist sect that has been active in Nigeria since 2009. The group's name translates as "Western culture is forbidden by Islam," e.g., Western ways are sinful. Haram's Islamists — who likely fled their camps in the Sambisa Games Reserve after they were destroyed by the Nigerian military — attacked the Hwa'a, Kunde, Gathahure and Gjigga settlements by night, fire bombing four churches while chanting "Allahu Akbar". After burning the church in Hwa'a, the Rev. Jacob Kwiza of the Church of Christ in Nigeria was killed by the Islamists after he refused to renounce his faith in Christ. Tada Garuta, a resident told local media, "The gunmen threw some explosives at our church, they forced the retired Reverend to renounce Christianity and be converted to Islam, but Rev. Jacob defied the gunmen's threat of being killed." "After he refused to renounce his faith. They slit his throat with sharp objects; and we started to flee for safety, as we don't know the next targets of these gunmen."

Eye witnesses seemed to confirm that assessment from officials, with some coming forward to tell Reuters afterwards that although shaking was felt, no widespread damage to buildings and no injuries were seen. Peru's geological survey recorded the tremor as a 5.6 magnitude quake. However, the USGS measured the quake as a 4.6 magnitude tremor.

Rains on Tuesday claimed 11 more lives in North India, taking the toll to 73, even as 71,440 pilgrims bound for the Himalayan shrines remained stranded in monsoon-ravaged Uttarakhand, apart from 1,700 people stuck in Himachal Pradesh. Though rescue efforts picked up in flash flood and landslide-hit areas of Himachal Pradesh and Uttarakhand with a let-up in the rains and decrease in water level in the Ganga and its tributaries, the whole of Uttarakhand still wore a marooned and devastated look. Hundreds of homes and roads were washed away. Flash floods, cloudbursts and subsequent landslips in Uttarakhand have claimed 44 lives, left as many injured and destroyed 175 houses. Rudraprayag was the worst hit where 20 people perished and 73 buildings, including 40 hotels along the banks of the River Alaknanda, were swept away by the swirling waters. Pilgrims bound for Kedarnath, Badrinath, Gangotri and Yamunotri, are stranded in Rudraprayag, Chamoli and Uttarkashi districts with the 'Char Dham' yatra still suspended due to massive damage to the road network.

The Arab Spring in Prophecy

(Revelation 6:3-4 Revelation 6:8)

“For nation shall rise against nation,

UNREST

Luke 21:9 and Matthew 24:7 speak of nation against nation and kingdom against kingdom in the end times. Revelation 6:3-4 speaks of the fiery red horse given power to make men slay one another and Revelation 6:8 speaks again of this red horse in conjunction with the pale horse of Death and Hades, as the one that has the power to kill by sword. I like to call this “The Arab Spring in Prophecy” because for us it is easy to identify- that’s what the world calls it.

Luke 21:9: wars & commotions; the Greek word here is Akatastasia, meaning instability, a state of disorder, disturbance, confusion (revolutions)

Matthew 24:7: the Greek word for nation is Ethnos & refers to various ethnic groups fighting among themselves, where the next sentence in the verse refers to kingdoms (basileiva) fighting one another (not to be confused with an actual kingdom but rather the right or authority to rule over a kingdom) I have tried to separate it into areas that sweep EAST from the point of North America.

Headline: Brazilian politicians struggle with how to respond to another night of protests

The Brazilian government will deploy National Public Security Force in five cities hosting the FIFA football tournament in an effort to contain the ongoing protests across the country. The announcement by the Brazilian Justice Ministry comes after a day of violent clashes between protesters and riot police. The ministry decided to deploy the joint federal police force on Wednesday in response to violent rioting across the country. The troops will reportedly be tasked with mediating the conflict, rather than punishing protesters. The National Public Security Force is usually deployed in Brazil to address serious security crises, such as prison riots or major gang violence. The protests were sparked earlier this month by a hike in public transport fees and escalated into a massive anti-government movement, with hundreds of thousands of people marching to express anger at the state's policies.

Islamist militants carried out a deadly assault on the main U.N. compound in the Somali capital on Wednesday, dealing a blow to fragile security gains that have allowed a slow return of foreign aid workers and diplomats. The assault, claimed by Islamist group al Shabaab, began before midday when a car bomb exploded outside the United Nations Development Programme (UNDP) base. Rebel gunmen forced their way into the compound and fought with security guards. The African Union (AU) peacekeeping force, which sent soldiers and armored vehicles to the compound, which includes several buildings, said it was under the control of friendly troops after a gun fight that lasted more than 90 minutes. Interior Minister Abdikarim Hussein Guled said four foreign U.N. security staff and four local guards were killed in the gun battle that left seven insurgent fighters dead.

Headline: Mali signs ceasefire deal with Tuaregs

Mali signed a ceasefire deal with Tuareg separatist rebels on Tuesday, paving the way for government troops to return to the northern, rebel-held town of Kidal before a presidential election next month. At the heart of a region plagued by poverty, Mali won a 3.25 billion euros ($4.35 billion) Western aid package last month aimed at shoring up democracy. Tuesday's agreement - reached after nearly two weeks of talks mediated by regional powers, the United Nations and the European Union - foresees rebel groups disarming as part of a broader peace process to resolve Tuaregs' longstanding demands for greater autonomy for northern Mali. "The signing of this agreement represents a significant step in the stabilisation process in Mali," said U.N. Special Representative to Mali Bert Koenders, who attended the signing ceremony in neighbouring Burkina Faso's capital, Ouagadougou. The government in the capital Bamako has made clear that it wants its civilian administration and army reinstated in the rebel stronghold before the July 28 vote, which is meant to complete a democratic transition after the coup of March 2012.

Three Houthis have been killed and 10 others injured in a blast that occurred in the northern city of Sa'ada, Yemen. The incident occurred on Wednesday as an attacker detonated a bomb-laden motorbike in a local market in Yemen's Shiite city of Saada. No group has claimed responsibility for the attack yet. On Sunday, thousands of Houthi demonstrators gathered outside Yemen's National Security Intelligence Agency headquarters under a rally called, 'Loyalty to the Blood of Our Martyrs.' The demonstrators urged Yemeni officials to exercise their rights and prosecute the culprits. "We came out in support of our martyrs and to say that these demonstrations will be victorious because we will not let the blood of our martyrs go to waste. This is the message that we want to send to the criminals responsible for the killings," a demonstrator said on condition of anonymity. On June 9, Yemeni forces killed 13 Shia protesters and wounded 100 others during a demonstration outside the headquarters of the National Security Intelligence Agency in Sana'a.

Thousands of Bulgarians took to the streets for a sixth straight day of protests on Wednesday, demanding the resignation of new Prime Minister Plamen Oresharski despite his apology over a political blunder. Carrying Bulgarian flags, the protesters gathered outside the government headquarters in downtown Sofia, shouting "Mafia!" "Red garbage!" and "Resignation!" Over 600 nationalists also staged a separate rally outside parliament, waving black flags and pressing for new elections. Oresharski's appointment of controversial media mogul Delyan Peevski as head of the powerful national security agency DANS had sparked public outrage. The prime minister, who has been in office just three weeks, has since reversed the appointment. He also apologised Wednesday. "I made a political mistake and I apologise not only to you but to all the people who came out to protest," Oresharski, 53, told parliament. But the demonstrators would not let up on their protests, sparking fears of a fresh political crisis after massive rallies against rising poverty forced out the previous government just four months ago.
