Headline: Akunis: No Building Freeze In Jerusalem, Despite Rumors

Recent media reports have given the impression that Israel has already, or is about, to impose a building freeze in Judea, Samaria, and Jerusalem. But those impressions are incorrect, at least regarding Jerusalem, said Ofer Akuniz, the Deputy Minister in the Prime Minister's Office for Liaison between the government and Knesset. “There has not been, there is not, and there will not be a building freeze in Jerusalem,” Akuniz declared at a Knesset session Monday. “There is no element that can force Israel to agree to such a decision. We will not stop building in Jerusalem, even if it costs us some condemnations from others around the world.”

Palestinian Authority (PA) chairman Mahmoud Abbas has decided to appoint an academic named Rami Hamdallah as his new prime minister. The decision was made public late on Sunday on the last day of a deadline to find a successor to Salam Fayyad, who resigned in mid April following months of tension with Abbas. Washington hailed the nomination of Hamdallah, who was widely expected to tread a similar path to Fayyad, and Israeli pundits also welcomed the move, describing him as a moderate pragmatist. “President Abbas has asked me to form a new government, and I have accepted,” Hamdallah told AFP late on Sunday.

Headline: Abbas dictates pre-conditions to Netanyahu: Free more terrorists, then we'll talk

If U.S. Secretary of State John Kerry determines that Israelis and Palestinians are not serious about the peace process, he will abandon his efforts on the matter, a senior U.S. official told Reuters. In an article by Arshad Mohammed, the Reuters journalist responsible for covering the State Department in Washington, the reporter cited those who called Kerry a "Lone Ranger" condemning the Middle East peace process, and that many involved call Kerry "naive." The senior U.S. official disputed the notion that Kerry was naive and said the Obama administration was prepared to abandon the effort if it decides the two sides are not genuine about pursuing peace. Meanwhile, Palestinian leader Mahmoud Abbas has called for the release of 120 more Palestinian terrorists jailed by Israel as a precondition for resuming peace talks. Washington is reportedly urging Israel to seriously consider the demand.

Headline: Assad says Arab world ready to join the fight against Israel

Headline: Assad supporters form 'resistance units' to fight on Golan

Syrian President Bashar Assad told Al-Manar TV on Thursday that "there is pressure by the people to open a new front on the Golan. Even among the Arab world there is a clear readiness to join the fight against Israel," he added in his interview with the Hezbollah TV station. Assad stated that Hezbollah is involved in fighting the Israeli enemy and its agents in Syria and Lebanon, according to the text of the interview on the Al-Manar website. He attributed the failure of the Syrian opposition to its dependence on outside funding and said that it failed to create a real rift in the country. Assad also said that he sees the balance of power in Syria shifting to the government's side. And this despite the fact that the "terrorists" – how Assad refers to the rebels – are smuggling fighters and weapons through all of the borders. In relation to Israel, he said, "If we want to respond to Israel, the response must be strategic."

Headline: Israel prepares as war clouds gather: Russia's determination to supply S-300 missiles to Assad's Syrian regime raises fears of arming Hezbollah

Headline: Five Things You Should Know about Syria and Russia's S-300 Missile System

Headline: There Are Many Reasons to Expect a War this Summer

In recent weeks, the drums of war have been beating louder. A week ago, there were reports in the Israeli media that a rocket was fired from Lebanon towards Israel. It didn't land – but the tension is being ratcheted up. In public, Israeli politicians are at pains to suggest that they will not take sides in the Syrian conflict even though Hezbollah has publicly thrown its weight behind Bashar al-Assad's government. Recent reports that the Netanyahu government was also hoping that Assad stays in power and maintains the quiet on the shared border were angrily countered. Despite its protestations, Israel has attacked targets inside Syria, both last month and in February. It will not admit to the action, but officials have lined up to argue that Israel has the right to prevent sophisticated weaponry reaching Hezbollah fighters in southern Lebanon. It is a calculated risk. Hezbollah – whose leader Hasan Nasrallah warns of a "strategic response" to the Israeli attacks – is known to have many short-range rockets, but longer-range, more advanced, missiles would threaten Israel's biggest city, Tel Aviv, further south and would bring the nearby Ben Gurion airport into play. And it is for that reason that Israeli officials are so concerned about the Russian insistence that it will deliver a batch of its advanced S300 missiles to Damascus. "Prime Minister Netanyahu said before cabinet [last week] that Israel will act to prevent the S300 missiles becoming operational, so if they arrive in Syria, Israel must act," says Jonathan Spyer, a senior research fellow at the Global Research in International Affairs Centre in Herzilya.

Headline: Jordan arrests 13 after riots in south over double murder

Headline: Maan 'cautiously calm' as town goes on 'civil disobedience'

Jordan security forces have arrested 13 people in connection with riots and armed clashes in the southern city of Maan amid the country's deteriorating security situation. Officials said on Monday that the detainees are suspected of clashing with police over the murder of two men in the city a few days ago and they have been referred to the military state security court. "Police arrested 13 people today and referred them to the (military) state security court," Maan MP Amjad al-Khattab said, adding, "Businesses and shops in the city stayed closed for the second day as part of civil disobedience amid a tense calm." The unrest erupted after a YouTube video showed unknown people kicking the corpses of the two men. Angry rioters torched shops and a post office, accusing the police of failing to arrest suspects in the killing of the two men. However, police say investigations are still under way, and insist that the video footage was fabricated.

Headline: Fatwa Encourages Suicide Attacks Against Hezbollah In Lebanon

Hezbollah guerrillas fought a deadly battle with Syrian rebels in Lebanon's eastern border region early on Sunday, security sources said, in the latest eruption of Syria's conflict on Lebanese soil.

Lebanese security sources said at least 12 rebels were killed in the fighting east of the Bekaa Valley town of Baalbek, but the toll would not be clear until bodies were retrieved from the remote and rugged border area. One Hezbollah fighter also died, they said. Syria's two-year-old conflict has increasingly sucked in its smaller neighbor, with fighting shaking the northern Lebanese city of Tripoli and rockets hitting the Bekaa Valley and southern Beirut.

Hassan Nasrallah: "Syria is the back of the resistance. It is the supporter of the resistance. The resistance cannot stand idly by while its back is being exposed and its support is being broken. I say this loud and clear. We are not stupid. Only a stupid person would watch death, siege, and conspiracy closing in on him without lifting a finger. Only a stupid person would do this. A reasonable, responsible person lives up to his obligations in full. "My brothers and sisters, if Syria falls into the hands of the U.S., Israel, the people who accuse others of heresy, and all of America's pawns, which purport to be leading countries in the region, the resistance will find itself under siege, and Israel will invade Lebanon, in order to impose its terms on the Lebanese people, and in order to revive its aspirations and schemes. Then, Lebanon will embark upon another Israeli era. "If Syria falls, Palestine will be lost. The resistance in Palestine will be lost. Gaza, the West Bank, and Jerusalem will be lost." "We do not force our young men to go to the front. In all 30 years of our history, no one has ever been sent to the front against his will. They all go there willingly. Today, we have to regulate the flow [of volunteers], due to the great enthusiasm of our mujahideen. "I do not need to declare Jihad. I just need to say the word, and tens of thousands of mujahideen will go to those fronts."

Headline: Neighborhood clashes in Lebanon leave 3 dead, 28 injured

Clashes between residents in two neighborhoods in Tripoli, northern Lebanon, killed three people and injured 28 others, officials said Monday. Small arms, machine guns and rocket-propelled grenades were used by the combatants in the Bab al-Tabbaneh and Jabal Mohsen neighborhoods, The (Beirut) Daily Star reported. They started fighting Sunday in a conflict tied to the Syrian civil war, the Star said. Many residents in Jabal Mohsen support Syrian President Bashar Assad and much of Bab al-Tabbaneh backs the rebels fighting against Assad's regime, the report said. Soad Mohammad, Sayed Antoun and Ahmad Sabih, were killed by gunfire during the clashes, officials said. A number of residential buildings and stores were damaged. Last month, 30 people were killed and more than 200 injured in similar clashes, the newspaper said.

Headline: Egypt deploys air, ground and naval forces to Sinai

An Israeli military source confirmed Sunday night that the Egyptian military has deployed "additional ground forces" of an unspecified quantity to the northern Sinai Peninsula in an attempt to rein in Islamist extremists. Cairo aims to launch a major ground offensive against Islamist terrorist groups that run rampant in the lawless territory bordering Israel and the Gaza Strip, an Egyptian military source told the Palestinian Ma'an News Agency. The Egyptian military has deployed six Apache helicopters to reinforce the ground troops, and additional infantry and naval craft have been dispatched to the Suez Canal zone in order to protect maritime traffic from terrorist attacks.

Headline: Egypt: Politicians advise attacking Ethiopia

Politicians meeting with Egypt's president have proposed hostile acts against Ethiopia, including backing rebels and carrying out sabotage, to stop it from building a massive dam over the Nile River. Some of the politicians attending Monday's meeting with President Mohammed Morsi appeared unaware it was being carried live on TV. Morsi did not directly react to the suggestions. Morsi called the meeting to review the impact of Ethiopia's dam on Egypt's share of the Nile's water. Younis Makhyouun, leader of an ultraconservative Islamist party, said Egypt should back rebels in Ethiopia or, as a last resort, destroy the dam. Liberal politician Ayman Nour proposed spreading rumors about Egypt obtaining advanced warplanes to scare the Ethiopians. Egypt has in the past threatened to go to war to preserve its water share.

Headline: President Morsi overturns Constitutional Court ruling, reinstates Senate

Egyptian President Mohamed Morsi has reinstated the country's Senate, known as Shura Council, after the country's Supreme Constitutional Court voted to nullify the upper house of the parliament. Egypt's presidential office said in a statement on Sunday that the upper house of the parliament will maintain its legislative powers until a new parliament is elected. Morsi overturned the court decision hours after the top court ruled earlier on Sunday that the country's Senate and the panel that drafted the constitution were illegally elected and must be dissolved.

New King James Version (NKJV)

24 Damascus has grown feeble;
She turns to flee,
And fear has seized her.
Anguish and sorrows have taken her like a woman in labor.
25 Why is the city of praise not deserted, the city of My joy?
26 Therefore her young men shall fall in her streets,

of hosts.
27 "I will kindle a fire in the wall of Damascus,

Headline: Israel's defense minister: Hezbollah moving elite fighters into Syria

Thousands of Lebanese Hezbollah militants were massed around the northern Syrian city of Aleppo on Sunday, according to rebels and a senior commander in the Lebanese Shiite movement, broadening Hezbollah's backing of President Bashar al-Assad's forces and stoking fears of an imminent assault on the city. The commander, who spoke on the condition of anonymity because he is not authorized to talk to the media, said there were about 2,000 Hezbollah fighters in Aleppo province, largely stationed in Shiite towns north of the city. The rebel Free Syrian Army said Hezbollah forces had gathered in a suburb of the city Sunday and appeared to be preparing for an attack. Rebels have secured swaths of Aleppo — Syria's commercial capital and most populous city — since fighting engulfed it last summer, but the two sides have been locked in a grinding stalemate for months. An assault on the city could stretch rebel forces, which have sent reinforcements from Aleppo to fight against Hezbollah and Syrian troops in the battle for the town of Qusair, near the Lebanese border. The claims of a Hezbollah presence in Syria's north follow a pledge by its leader, Hasan Nasrallah, to back Assad to victory and indicate that the movement could be used as a guerrilla force wherever required.

He referred to Alawites, the followers of the Muslim sect to which President Bashar al-Assad of Syria belongs, as being "worse infidels than Christians or Jews". He also used the deliberately contemptuous term "Nusayris" when talking about them. He was particularly critical of the roles played by Iran, which is largely Shia, and the Lebanon Shia militia Hizbollah whose name translates as Party of God but which he called "Party of Satan", in supporting the Assad regime. Headline: Iranian general warns of bio-warfare

Two top retired Israeli and American generals last week published an unofficial theoretical sequence of events that is likely to precede any strike against Iran's nuclear program. American general James Cartwright, most recently chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff, and Maj.-Gen. (res.) Amos Yadlin, former head of the Israel Defense Forces Military Intelligence and Israel Air Force chief of staff, used the exercise to determine what set of events would justify military action against Iran, and, if it comes to that, which nation - Israel or America - should lead the charge. Generals Cartwright and Yadlin published the report simultaneously to the websites of the Washington Institute for Near East Policy and Israel's Institute for National Security Studies (of which Yadlin is the current director) in hopes of sparking more concerted discussion between the two nations' political and defense establishments over the topic. The narrative of the Cartwright-Yadlin document follows more or less what Israel and its supporters increasingly expect to see happen. Iran will continue to rebuff all international efforts to curb its quest for nuclear arms, necessitating a difficult decision by Washington and Jerusalem to implement preemptive military strikes.

Headline: Gulf sources: "Accidents" to Ahmadinejad, Jalili were attempted assassinations

Twelve days before Iran's presidential election, stubborn rumors were making the rounds that two "accidents" which took place Sunday, June 2, were in fact attempts on the lives of outgoing Iranian president Mahmoud Ahmadinejad and a leading presidential hopeful, Iran's senior nuclear negotiator Saeed Jalili. Both escaped unhurt. The rumors pointed the finger of suspicion at supreme leader Ayatollah Ali Khamenei or his underlings possibly acting on their own. The ayatollah's insiders are said to fear Ahmadinejad is plotting an emergency for bringing the masses out on the streets in order to force the postponement of the June 14 election. He would then stay on as president until the dust settled. In the overheated, pre-election atmosphere in Tehran, government circles are extra jittery over the apparently irrepressible wave of Turkish popular dissent against the Islamist government of Tayyip Erdogan. They are concerned lest the tumult spill over into Iran and target the ayatollah's authority.

Headline: Iraq warns Israel on using airspace in Iran strike

Baghdad has warned Israel that it would respond to any attempts by the Jewish state to use Iraqi airspace for a strike against Iran's controversial nuclear program, a top Iraqi minister told AFP. The remarks from Hussein al-Shahristani, deputy prime minister responsible for energy affairs, mark the first time a senior Iraqi official has publicly warned Israel against entering its airspace -- the most direct route -- to hit targets in Iran. Shahristani also said that Iraq had received assurances from Washington that the United States would not use its airspace to attack Iran, which Western powers believe is trying to develop a nuclear weapon. Tehran has repeatedly denied the claim. "The (Americans) have assured us that they will never violate Iraqi airspace or Iraqi sovereignty by using our airspace to attack any of our neighbors," Shahristani said in an interview in his office in Baghdad's heavily-fortified Green Zone. "We have also warned Israel that if they violate Iraqi airspace, they will have to bear the consequences."

It calls for: more frequent eurozone summits; a "specific fund for the euro area" alongside the general EU budget; and new "structures" in the European Parliament to oversee euro-level economic governance. It says eurozone countries should sign binding contracts with EU institutions on economic reform.

Headline: IMF Halves German GDP Growth Forecast to 0.3% for 2013

The International Monetary Fund slashed its estimate for Germany’s economic growth in 2013 in half on Monday, warning the uncertainty caused by the euro zone’s recession is holding back growth in Europe’s largest economy. The IMF cut its expectation for German gross domestic product growth to “around 0.3%” for 2013 as the euro-zone recession hit exports and business investment, a move that comes less than eight weeks after the IMF had lifted its growth forecast for Germany to 0.6%.

The revised downward forecast is particularly due to a weak first quarter, said the IMF’s Subir Lall, while presenting the so-called Article IV report, which assesses each country’s economic health and attempts to prevent future financial problems. Despite strong domestic consumption and low unemployment, a drop in German exports to the rest of the recession-hit euro zone and lower investment by businesses means German output and jobs are at the mercy of uncertainty in the bloc should growth fail to materialize, the IMF warned.

Headline: EU entry to shine harsh light on Croatia’s finances

Croatia may have to go straight into an EU disciplinary procedure when it joins the bloc in July and face an even tougher haul than its ex-Communist peers in adapting to free market pressures.

Croatia will become the European Union’s 28th member state and only the second entrant, after Slovenia, of the republics that emerged from the Yugoslav wars of the 1990s. But after four years without growth and only limited efforts to reduce the state’s role in the economy, debt and budget deficit levels breach EU limits. A European Commission paper, issued last week alongside others on current EU member economies, suggests Croatia will have to be put under formal EU scrutiny almost as soon as it enters the bloc on July 1. Croatia, accepted for entry after six years of talks, will follow in the footsteps of 10 other ex-communist states. Of these, the Czechs and Slovaks privatized major state-run banks and companies before they joined and sold off more after entry.

This is no time to be complacent. Massive economic problems are erupting all over the globe, but most people seem to believe that everything is going to be just fine. In fact, a whole bunch of recent polls and surveys show that the American people are starting to feel much better about how the U.S. economy is performing. Unfortunately, the false prosperity that we are currently enjoying is not going to last much longer. The following are 18 signs that massive economic problems are erupting all over the planet...

Headline: China's Demand For Physical Quadruples Gold Premium

Headline: Gold Trader: “Stock Market May Crash 10-20% In Next 5-10 Days, Will Create Setup For Bubble Phase In Gold”

The premium that gold buyers in China pay to take immediate delivery of bullion has jumped four-fold in the last six weeks following the gold price 'crash'. As Bloomberg notes, even before the mid-April drop, China's gold imports jumped to a record in the first quarter as domestic demand (776 tons) outweighed domestic supply (403 tons). Images of consumers overwhelming jewelry shops were everywhere but the following chart clarifies just what the suspected gold manipulation did for demand as China's gold premium, while admittedly noisy, jumped from a long-run average of around $7 to over $32! As one analyst notes, the gold "premium is a function of demand and supply, and right now you could interpret the high premium in Shanghai as a sweetener to entice the overseas gold supply to flow into China."

See that you are not troubled; for all these things must come to pass, but the end is not yet.” Revelation 6:3-4 speaks of the fiery red horse given power to make men slay one another and Revelation 6:8 speaks again of this red horse in conjunction with the pale horse of Death and Hades, as the one that has the power to kill by sword.

Headline: Chuck Hagel rebuked by Chinese general over US buildup in Asia

US defence secretary Chuck Hagel was challenged by a Chinese general Saturday to better explain the US military's Asia pivot, just moments after the Pentagon chief warned Beijing over cyberwarfare. In a speech at a high-profile security conference in Singapore, Hagel said the US administration has concerns about "the growing threat of cyberintrusions, some of which appear to be tied to the Chinese government and military". The rebuke – coming in China's backyard and in front of a Chinese delegation – was countered by questioning of America's intent in the region, following a reposition of its military strategy. Major General Yao Yunzhu, director of the Center for China-America Defense Relations at the People's Liberation Army's Academy of Military Science, challenged Hagel to better explain America's military buildup across the region.

Headline: China, India, Pakistan boost nuclear arsenals

Three of the world's nuclear powers — China, India and Pakistan — have increased their arsenals over the past year, while the other five have cut their strength or kept it stable, the Stockholm International Peace Research Institute said Monday. China now has 250 nuclear warheads against 240 in 2012, while Pakistan has increased its warheads by about 10 to between 100 and 120 and India has also added roughly 10 for a total of 90 to 110, SIPRI said in its annual report.

According to SIPRI, the arms race is all the more disturbing because of what the institute called a 'fragile' peace in Asia, characterised by growing tensions since 2008 between India and Pakistan, China and Japan, and the two Koreas, among others. 'While states have avoided direct conflict with each other and have stopped supporting insurgent movements on each other's territory, decades-old suspicions linger and economic integration has not been followed up with political integration,' SIPRI said. Only the two old superpowers have cut their warheads, Russia reducing its number from 10,000 to 8,500, and the United States scaling back from 8,000 to 7,700.

Headline: Egypt: Politicians advise attacking Ethiopia

Politicians meeting with Egypt's president have proposed hostile acts against Ethiopia, including backing rebels and carrying out sabotage, to stop it from building a massive dam over the Nile River.

Some of the politicians attending Monday's meeting with President Mohammed Morsi appeared unaware it was being carried live on TV. Morsi did not directly react to the suggestions. Morsi called the meeting to review the impact of Ethiopia's dam on Egypt's share of the Nile's water. Younis Makhyou, leader of an ultraconservative Islamist party, said Egypt should back rebels in Ethiopia or, as a last resort, destroy the dam. Liberal politician Ayman Nour proposed spreading rumors about Egypt obtaining advanced warplanes to scare the Ethiopians. Egypt has in the past threatened to go to war to preserve its water share.

Headline: Saudi Arabia says 3 more die from new virus that is related to SARS

Saudi Arabia has reported that three more people have died from a new respiratory virus related to SARS, bringing the total number of deaths in the kingdom to 24. The Ministry of Health said Sunday the three deceased were among 38 infected in the kingdom with the respiratory virus called MERS. It says two of the three whose deaths were reported Sunday were suffering from chronic diseases. The World Health Organization said Saturday prior to the latest Saudi announcement that it was informed of 51 confirmed cases of the new virus since September and 30 cases were fatal. The new virus is related to SARS, which killed some 800 people in a global epidemic in 2003, and belongs to a family of viruses that most often causes the common cold.

Headline: New MERS-CoV Cases In Italy Further Heighten Global Concern

The World Health Organization (WHO) has identified two additional laboratory-confirmed cases of MERS-CoV in Italy over the past 24 hours, according to a recent update by the WHO. MERS-CoV belongs to the coronavirus family and is responsible for illnesses ranging from the common cold to Severe Acute Respiratory Syndrome (SARS). SARS, spreading from South China to Hong Kong, was responsible for over 775 deaths out of 8,273 cases worldwide between November, 2002 and July, 2003, according to the WHO. Within a few weeks, SARS spread from Hong Kong to infect individuals in 37 countries in early 2003. While MERS-CoV is similar to SARS, it is not as easily as transmissible based upon clusters of patients evaluated to date. Thus far, out of 53 laboratory-confirmed cases of MERS-CoV since September of 2012, 30 have died.

"I will consume man and beast; I will consume the birds of the heavens, The fish of the sea, And the stumbling blocks along with the wicked. I will cut off man from the face of the land," Says the LORD.
(Zephaniah)

"There is no faithfulness, no love, no acknowledgment of God in the land. There is only cursing, lying and murder, stealing and adultery; they break all bounds, and bloodshed follows bloodshed. The fish of the sea, the birds of the air, the beasts of the field, every creature that moves along the ground, and all the people on the face of the earth will tremble at my presence. The mountains will be overturned, the cliffs will crumble and every wall will fall to the ground. [Ezekiel 38:20]

Headline: Dutch Authorities to Cull Poultry after Avian Influenza Outbreak

Health authorities will cull 11,000 chickens at a farm in the Netherlands after an outbreak of a mild form of avian influenza, the Dutch Economic Affairs Ministry said on Saturday. The chickens were believed to have the low pathogenic H7 strain, the ministry said in a statement. They would be culled as a precaution because the strain can mutate into a form that is fatal for poultry. Authorities imposed a one-kilometer safety perimeter around the farm banning transports of poultry, eggs and other farm products. Testing would also be carried at 11 other farms in the area, it said. In recent years several cases of the low pathogenic bird flu strain have been reported in the Netherlands. The most devastating outbreak of H7N7 avian flu in the country was in 2003 and led to the culling of 30 million birds, about a third of the nation's poultry flock.

Headline: Iran arrests Pastor, then closes his Church

Iranian agents closed Iran's largest Persian-language Pentecostal church Monday, one week after arresting its pastor during worship services, according to Fox News. Apparently the closing of Tehran's Central Assemblies of God was part of the Islamic Republic's crackdown on Christians before the presidential election in June to replace Mahmoud Ahmadinejad. "These incidents appear to be an attempt to stop worship services from being conducted in Farsi, the language of the majority of Iranians," George Wood, general superintendent for the Assemblies of God (U.S.), told BosNewsLife, a news service that reports on the plight of Christians in the Middle East. Previously on May 21, Iranian authorities abducted Pastor Robert Asserian while he was conducting services; his whereabouts are still unknown.

Would you wear an electronic tattoo if you couldn't log on to the Internet without one? That may sound crazy to many of you, but the technology for such a system already exists. RFID tattoos have existed for quite some time, and they are already being used on animals. But now an entirely new generation of electronic tattoos are being developed that can monitor your vital signs, interact with your mobile phone and even communicate directly with your mind. These new electronic tattoos are thinner than a human hair, and they are going to fundamentally transform the way that we think about human identification.

Prophecy Sign: EARTHQUAKES/WEATHER
(Isaiah 24:19-20 , Matthew 24:7 , Mark 13:8 , Luke 21:11 , Luke 21:25 - storms)

Headline: Magnitude 6.3 quake jolts a vigilant Taiwan, kills two

Taiwan's strongest earthquake so far this year killed two and injured 80 on Sunday, jolting an island that is already hyper-aware of the potential for temblors given its position on the Pacific Rim's ring of fire. The magnitude 6.3 quake hit at a relatively shallow 10 kilometers (6.2 miles) underground in a rural mountain area, setting off rock slides that killed both victims and left others hurt. A collapsed road injured one person. Separately, local news reports showed one fractured road blocked by a rock slide. In a scenic area with a landmark suspension bridge known called "Ladder to Heaven," 300 tourists were stranded for more than three hours, Taiwan's official Central News Agency reported. Sunday's epicenter in central Taiwan's Nantou county approximates that of an infamous quake that struck on Sept. 21, 1999. About 2,400 people died from that quake, and the number "921" remains a household term among Taiwanese.

The Arab Spring in Prophecy

(Perilous Times Luke 21:9 & Nation against Nation, Kingdom against Kingdom Matt.24:7)
(Revelation 6:3-4 Revelation 6:8)

“For nation shall rise against nation,
and kingdom against kingdom.
There will be earthquakes in various places, and there will be famines and sedition; these are the beginning of the labor pains.”

Mark 13:8

UNREST

Luke 21:9 and Matthew 24:7 speak of nation against nation and kingdom against kingdom in the end times. Revelation 6:3-4 speaks of the fiery red horse given power to make men slay one another and Revelation 6:8 speaks again of this red horse in conjunction with the pale horse of Death and Hades, as the one that has the power to kill by sword. I like to call this “The Arab Spring in Prophecy” because for us it is easy to identify- that’s what the world calls it.

Luke 21:9: wars & commotions; the Greek word here is Akatastasia, meaning instability, a state of disorder, disturbance, confusion (revolutions)

Matthew 24:7: the Greek word for nation is Ethnos & refers to various ethnic groups fighting among themselves, where the next sentence in the verse refers to kingdoms (basileiva) fighting one another (not to be confused with an actual kingdom but rather the right or authority to rule over a kingdom) I have tried to separate it into areas that sweep EAST from the point of North America.

Al-Qaeda’s military chief in Yemen warned Americans in an audio message posted online yesterday that the Boston bombings revealed a fragile security as he urged Muslims to defend their religion. Qassim Al-Rimi, the military chief of Al-Qaeda in the Arabian Peninsula, said making bombs such as the ones used in the twin blasts in Boston in April, is within “everyone’s reach.” “The Boston events... and the poisoned letters (sent to the White House), regardless of who is behind them, show that your security is no longer under control, and that attacks on you have taken off and cannot be stopped,” he said, in the message entitled: “A letter to the American people.” “Every day you will be hit by the unexpected and your leaders will not be able to defend you,” warned the man whose organization is considered by Washington the world’s most dangerous Al-Qaeda branch.

Three firebombs have detonated in the Greek capital, Athens, injuring at least one woman, officials said. The bombs, which consisted of camping gas canisters, exploded at different locations in the center of the capital on Monday. One bomb went off at the fifth floor of an apartment building in central Athens at 8 a.m. local time. The building is located near the political office of the Secretary-General of the Greek Ministry of Justice, Transparency & Human Rights. A woman was injured in the incident as she was emerging from her apartment. Several firebomb attacks have taken place across Greece over the past years as a way to express opposition to the government. The attacks take place mostly at night and outside government offices, banks or other symbols of wealth.

Headline: EU potential for social unrest is world's highest: ILO

The potential for social unrest in European Union countries is higher than anywhere else in the world and the already yawning gaps between rich and poor, a major trigger, are likely to widen globally, the International Labour Organisation said on Monday. In its annual World of Work Report, the ILO said social unrest - strikes, work stoppages, street protests and demonstrations - had increased in most countries since the economic and financial crisis that began in 2008. But the risk, it said, "is highest among the EU-27 countries - it increased from 34 percent in 2006-07 to 46 percent in 2011-2012." However, the risk was not evenly spread and had not grown in at least seven of the member states. Those most vulnerable, the report said, were Cyprus, Czech Republic, Greece, Italy, Portugal, Slovenia and Spain. However the risk of social unrest had declined in Belgium, Germany, Finland, Slovakia and Sweden since 2010.
