ISRAEL

(Zech.12:3 & 9 - The Burdensome Stone)

Zechariah 12:3 "And in that day will I make Jerusalem a burdensome stone for all people: all that burden themselves with it shall be cut in pieces, though all the people of the earth be gathered together against it."

Headline: Star of David Not Allowed on Temple Mount

A volunteer with the Magen David Adom first aid service was forced on Sunday to remove his jacket with the organization's emblem before he was allowed to enter the Temple Mount. The emblem of Magen David Adom is a red Star of David. The volunteer, Yonatan Tal, recalled the incident in a conversation with Arutz Sheva. "I went up to the Temple Mount as I usually do. The weather was cooler so I put on my jacket [with the Magen David Adom emblem]," said Tal, who pointed out that the compound had been packed with tourists. As his turn came to enter, recalled Tal, he was called aside by a police officer who ordered him to remove his jacket. When Tal asked why he had to remove his jacket in order to enter the Temple Mount, the officer argued that this was the procedure. Tal, who refused to accept this answer, demanded to know if there is a prohibition to ascend the Temple Mount while wearing a jacket. "He (the officer) tried to avoid answering the question, but in the end he had to admit that he was ordering me to take off the jacket because of the red Star of David that is sewn on it." Tal noted that the order was puzzling, particularly because of the steps that had been taken by Magen David Adom to join the Red Cross and thereby receive international recognition. Furthermore, he noted, as a Magen David Adom volunteer who resides in the Judea and Samaria community of Beit Hagai, he often cooperates with the Red Crescent, yet is denied entry to the Temple Mount because he wears a jacket with Israel's national symbol.

Headline: UNESCO votes in favor of 6 resolutions condemning Israel

The United Nations Educational, Scientific and Cultural Organization (UNESCO) voted in favor of no fewer than six resolutions condemning Israel at its 192nd Session of the 56-member Executive Board in Paris on Friday. In its 6th resolution, the UN body criticized Israel for not fulfilling an agreement reached in April to allow a visit by a UNESCO delegation seeking to inspect Jerusalem's Old City. In May, Israel canceled the visit at the last minute. The visit had been heralded as a possible sign of a thaw in ties between Israel and UNESCO, after Jerusalem cut off contact with the UN body following its recognition of a Palestinian state in 2011. UNESCO members voted in favor of these five previously pending resolutions on Friday, condemning Israel over a variety of issues including the preservation of archaeological sites in the Old City, the construction of a visitors' center, plans to build an elevator by the Western Wall, accusations of archeological excavations said to be damaging Muslim sites atop the Temple Mount, the alleged deterioration of educational and cultural institutions in the West Bank and the Gaza Strip, and plans to invest in sites its considers national heritage sites, like the Tomb of the Patriarchs. The UN body's Arab and Islamic bloc led the drive for the adoption of the resolutions, backed by Russia and France. The UK and Italy abstained while the US was the only country to vote against.

Headline: Hamas to PA: Stop Talking to Israel

Hamas on Sunday called on the Palestinian Authority, headed by Mahmoud Abbas, to stop peace talks with Israel. Instead, said Hamas spokesman Sami Abu Zuhri, the PA should work for national unity. Abu Zuhri said that the remarks made by Prime Minister Binyamin Netanyahu during his speech at the Bar-Ilan University, according to which negotiations with the PA are fruitless so long as the PA refuses to recognize Israel as a Jewish state, require the PA to renounce the dialogue with Israel, implement the terms of the reconciliation plan between Hamas and Fatah and formulate a strategy agreed to deal with the "Zionist stubbornness and crimes," as he put it. Hamas and Fatah, which is headed by Abbas, have been at odds with one another since 2007, when Hamas violently took control of Gaza, setting up its own government there and cracking down on Fatah officials who reside in the territory. Fatah and Hamas signed a reconciliation deal in Cairo in 2011, pledging to set up an interim consensus government of independents that would pave the way for legislative and presidential elections within 12 months.

Headline: Fatah Official: Israel is to Blame for Psagot Attack

A post on the official Fatah Facebook page Sunday morning praised the shooting of a 9-year-old girl in the settlement of Psagot a day earlier, as well as the killing of a soldier in Hebron late last month.

"The sniper of Palestine was here. He saluted Hebron, and rested in el-Bireh," the site administrator wrote in the post, according to watchdog group Palestinian Media Watch. "He left the signature of [real] men in different parts of the homeland. He saluted and left, and moved on to a different place, with a new signature, as he tells the stories of those who love the homeland." On Saturday night, an intruder, thought to be from the Palestinian town of el-Bireh, reportedly infiltrated Psagot and shot the girl, Noam Glick, lightly wounding her. On September 22, IDF soldier Gal Kobi was killed by apparent sniper fire in Hebron. Prime Minister Benjamin Netanyahu, speaking at a cabinet meeting Sunday, laid blame for the Psagot attack — as well as several other recent attacks — on incitement sanctioned by the Palestinian Authority. Fatah is the main PLO faction, headed by PA President Mahmoud Abbas.

Prime Minister Binyamin Netanyahu reiterated his position that a necessary condition for any peace agreement was an end to the Palestinian refusal to recognize the right of the Jews to a homeland in the land of their fathers. He also stood by his acceptance of a two-state solution. In a speech at Bar Ilan University Sunday night, Netanyahu covered the same ground as his UN speech last week when he accused Iran of seeking to dominate the Middle East and beyond and destroy the state of Israel. He said he was ready for a diplomatic solution of the nuclear question - provided Iran was stripped of its capabilities to develop nuclear weapons, i.e., no centrifuges or plutonium reactor.

Israeli and Palestinian negotiators met on Monday in Jerusalem for the ninth time since peace talks were renewed at the end of July. Justice Minister Tzipi Livni represented Israel, together with Prime Minister Benjamin Netanyahu's envoy, Isaac Molho. Chief negotiator Saeb Erekat and Palestinian official Mohammad Shtayyeh represented the other side. The sides recently agreed to meet more frequently - twice a week - as well as to increase U.S. involvement in the talks, as demanded by the Palestinians. American envoy Martin Indyk participated in the last meeting between the sides on Wednesday, but missed out on Monday's session. A senior Palestinian official told Reuters that the talks were intensifying, with the negotiating teams agreeing to meet for up to eight hours a day and to see one another more regularly than at the start of their latest diplomatic drive. "As the Americans requested, we are upping the tempo of the discussions," the official said, adding that Washington would evaluate the situation in the next two months and see how to narrow the inevitable differences. "So far we have achieved nothing," he said.

Egypt's interim President Adli Mansour is due to arrive in Amman Tuesday for a visit during which he will meet with His Majesty King Abdullah and senior officials, an official source told The Jordan Times. Talks will focus on bilateral ties and regional developments, the source said, without elaborating. King Abdullah was the first Arab leader to visit Egypt after the June 30 movement that saw a popular uprising and military intervention that led to change in leadership. Prime Minister Abdullah Ensour was in Cairo on Saturday in his capacity as defence minister to take part in Egypt's celebrations marking the 1973 October war between Arabs and Israel.

Headline: Report: Hezbollah capable of arming missiles with nuclear warheads

Saudi newspaper al-Watan reported Sunday that according to Lebanese sources, Hezbollah has an arsenal of chemical weapons which it had received from Bashar Assad's regime. The paper further reported that Hezbollah has bases from which to launch long-range missiles, some of them underground facilities. Khaled al-Daher of the Lebanese al-Mustaql party, which opposes Hezbollah who warned in the past that Assad is transferring chemical weapons to them, claimed that the bases were built under the supervision of the Iranian Revolutionary Guards. According to him, Hezbollah can arm the missiles with nuclear warheads. Al-Daher linked this information with recent statements made by Hezbollah Secretary-General Hassan Nasrallah, who said that in the next conflict, Israel will face weapons that have not been used against it before. The Lebanese MP also noted that the areas in which the bases are located are almost entirely inaccessible.

Headline: Berri warns of conspiracy against Arab world

Speaker Nabih Berri warned Sunday of what he termed "a continuing scheme aimed at dismembering and partitioning several Arab states and plunging them into bloodshed and civil wars." Speaking during talks with Arab parliamentarians in Geneva on the sidelines of the meetings of the Arab Inter-Parliamentary Union and the Union of Muslim states' parliaments, Berri said: "It is no coincidence that this conspiracy is targeting several states in the Arab world. This wind has put the region in a dangerous situation and calls for a firm and responsible stance in the face of this scheme."

"This dangerous situation facing us as Arabs provides a chance for Israel to grab the solution it wants for Palestine," he added, referring to Israel's settlement plan in occupied Palestinian territories.

Headline: Egypt's president makes first trip to Saudi Arabia

Egypt's interim president visited Saudi Arabia on Monday for his first foreign trip, highlighting a regional realignment spurred by the military ouster of the Muslim Brotherhood from power in Cairo. Underscoring the tightening of relations between the two regional powerhouses, Adly Mansour was greeted in Riyadh airport by the kingdom's Defense Minister and Crown Prince Salman. Saudi Arabia has cemented itself as the new Egyptian leadership's staunchest supporter since President Mohammed Morsi was ousted July 3, showering the interim government with $5 billion in critical aid and leading a foreign diplomacy blitz with Western nations to soften their stances toward the coup that ousted Egypt's first democratically elected president. Mansour met in Jiddah with King Abdullah, who was quoted in the state-run Saudi Press Agency after their meeting as saying his kingdom is "standing against any attempts to touch Egypt's internal affairs, particularly by the terrorists." Arab Gulf officials and their Egyptian counterparts often refer to members of former President Mohammed Morsi's Muslim Brotherhood group as terrorists. More than 2,000 Brotherhood members have been arrested in Egypt, most accused of inciting or taking part in violence.

Egyptian police used tear gas Saturday to prevent Islamist students from entering a Cairo square that was the site of a deadly security crackdown in August, a security official told Reuters. Groups of students tried to enter Rabaa al-Adawiya Square in the Nasr City district when they were stopped by police who fired tear gas to disperse them, the official said. Rabaa al-Adawiya and Nahda squares were sites of a bloody crackdown on Aug. 14 against supporters of ousted President Mohammad Mursi, a member of the Muslim Brotherhood. "The Ministry of Interior asserts its determination on confronting violence and infringements of the law by Muslim Brotherhood supporters," a ministry statement said. "Security has been stepped up on highways, in all cities and at important installations. The Ministry of Interior warns against attempting to spoil the 6th of October commemoration," it added, referring to Sunday's 1973 Arab-Israeli war anniversary. The attempt to return to Rabaa al-Adawiya comes after Islamists staged anti-military protests on Friday in some Cairo districts and around the iconic Tahrir Square. Four people were killed when protesters clashed with their opponents and security forces, reported Agence France-Presse.

A massive explosion hit security headquarters in a southern Sinai town on Monday, Egyptian officials told Al Arabiya, as the death toll from clashes between rival Egyptian streams Sunday rose to 53. Sky News Arabia said two people died and 25 were injured in the Sinai blast. In further violence in the country, five Egyptian soldiers have been reported shot dead in Ismailia, in northeastern Egypt. It is not yet known if the attack is related to Sunday's protests. Security sources told Reuters that gunmen opened fire on the soldiers while they were sitting in a car at a checkpoint near Ismailia on the Suez Canal. The violence continued as unknown assailants fired rocket propelled grenades at communication satellite dishes in Cairo, damaging one, security officials told Agence France-Presse. The officials said one of the rockets left a 25 centimetre (nine inch) breach in a satellite dish used for international phone calls.

New King James Version (NKJV)

24 Damascus has grown feeble;
She turns to flee,
And fear has seized her.
Anguish and sorrows have taken her like a woman in labor.
25 Why is the city of praise not deserted, the city of My joy?
26 Therefore her young men shall fall in her streets,
And all the men of war shall be cut off in that day," says the LORD of hosts.
27 "I will kindle a fire in the wall of Damascus,
And it shall consume the palaces of Ben-Hadad."<sup>[a]</sup>

The burden of Damascus. Behold, Damascus is taken away from being a city, and it shall be a ruinous heap.

A United Nations official said Sunday that chemical weapons inspectors have begun destroying Syria's chemical weapons stockpile and machinery. The official couldn't confirm what specifically was destroyed, but said that by the end of Sunday, a combination of both weapons and some production equipment would be put out of order. He spoke anonymously because of the matter's sensitivity. The operation was being carried out by team from the Organisation for the Prohibition of Chemical Weapons (OPCW), the BBC reported. UN experts charged with starting the process of verifying and eliminating chemical weapons arrived in Syria on Tuesday for the mission endorsed by the UN Security Council.

Headline: US & Russia Call For November Syria Peace Conference

The head of the Syrian National Coalition Monday listed conditions that need to be "guaranteed" in order for the main opposition group to participate in the proposed Geneva II conference aimed at solving the 30-month Syrian conflict. "We do not reject participation in Geneva II but we request guarantees for its success. And if we receive these guarantees we will show them to the military leaders," Ahmed al-Jarba told reporters. Jarba, who described Iran as an "enemy" and "occupier" of Syrian land, said the Islamic republic must not participate as "mediator" in the conference.

Iran and the Lebanese Shiite movement, Hezbollah, have fought alongside the Syrian regime of Bashar al-Assad against rebels. "We ask Hezbollah to leave Syria," he added. The opposition leader said that there will be "no dialogue with criminal Assad regime," re-iterating his group's redundant appeal for embattled President Assad to cede power for any political solution to be negotiated. "Nationalist dialogue is only with nationalists," he repeated. Asked about Hezbollah's presence in Syria, Jarba said the Lebanese group was "still fighting in our beloved Syria."

Headline: Syrian army retakes crucial road to Aleppo

Headline: Rebels launch assault on key Syria bases

Syrian troops wrested control of a key road linking the government-held heartland with the embattled northern city of Aleppo, reopening the crucial supply route after heavy fighting with rebels, state media and activists said Monday. Government forces and opposition fighters have been locked in a bloody, block-by-block fight for Aleppo since rebels launched an assault on the city 15 months ago. The battle has been locked in a stalemate, with neither side willing to relent with control of Syria's largest city at stake. With much of the northern countryside now in opposition hands, a cat-and-mouse game has emerged over the past year as the rebels try to cut the government supply lines to the regime's remaining troops in the north, particularly in Aleppo. After the rebels cut the main north-south highway late last year, President Bashar Assad's regime built a desert road to bypass contested areas. Opposition fighters responded by severing the alternate route — a winding road that runs northeast from the city of Hama — in August. It was that desert road that regime troops reopened late Sunday, according to Syria's state news agency and the Britain-based Syrian Observatory for Human Rights activist group.

Iranians broke into chants of “Death to Israel” and “Death to America” while burning the flags of both countries after weekly prayers in Tehran. The outburst comes in sharp contrast to their new president’s charm offensive in the West and promises of moderation. The rhetoric coming from the Iranian president has changed, but the facts on the ground remain the same. Slamming the US as arrogant, dishonest, untrustworthy, and controlled by Zionists, Iran’s Supreme Leader Ayatollah Ali Khamenei said Saturday that “some” aspects of President Hassan Rouhani’s trip to the United Nations General Assembly in New York last month were “not proper. Khamenei was speaking Saturday at a ceremony of army graduates, where he said that he was pessimistic about dealing with an arrogant US regime, and vowed a harsh response to “disgusting threats.” “We are pessimistic towards the Americans and do not put any trust in them,” he said, 10 days before the US and other world powers are to make a new effort to negotiate with Iran on its rogue nuclear program. “The American government is untrustworthy, supercilious and unreasonable, and breaks its promises,” he was quoted by AFP as saying.

Headline: Al-Qaeda claims recent attacks in northern Iraq

Deadly attacks in Iraq killed at least 33 people on Sunday, including a dozen children slain when a suicide bomber detonated the explosives-laden car he was driving near their elementary school in the north of the country, officials said. The attacks are the latest in a relentless wave of killing that has made for Iraq’s deadliest outburst of violence since 2008. The mounting death tolls are raising fears that the country is falling back into the spiral of violence that brought it to the edge of civil war in the years after the 2003 US-led invasion. Sunday’s blasts began around 9:30 a.m. in the Shiite Turkomen village of Qabak, just outside the town of Tal Afar. One car bomb in the tiny village targeted an elementary school while children ages 6 to 12 were in class as another struck a nearby police station, Tal Afar mayor Abdul Aal Al-Obeidi said. The dead included 12 children, the school principal and two policemen. Another 90 people were wounded, he said. Another suicide bomber, this time on foot, blew himself up hours later as people walked through the largely Sunni neighborhood of Waziriyah in the north of the Iraqi capital. At least 12 people were killed and 23 wounded in that attack, according to police and hospital officials. It was the second time in less than 24 hours that a suicide bomber managed to thwart security checkpoints and target people.

Turkey has been preparing for an air war with Syria. The Turkish military said four U.S.-origin F-16 multi-role fighters were sent to the Syrian border on Oct. 5. The military said the F-16s were deployed to stop the approach of Syrian Air Force warplanes. "Two F-16 fighter jets scrambled from Diyarbakir air base for patrols, then headed to the region as Syrian planes approached the border," the military said. The statement reflected Turkish efforts to stop Syrian air combat operations. Officials said the Syrian Air Force was sending both fixed- and rotary-wing aircraft over northern Syria near the Turkish border. In September, the Turkish Air Force intercepted an Mi-17 helicopter after it crossed the border. The helicopter was shot and crashed in Syrian territory. In the latest incident the Turkish military reported the approach of a Syrian Air Force Su-24 fighter-bomber near Kilis. The military said another Su-24 flew toward Turkey's Hatay province. In both cases, the Su-24s were driven off by the F-16s.

Headline: New Sudan protests as Bashir orders women freed

Tires burned and shouts for "freedom" filled the air in a Sudanese town Sunday night during renewed anti-government demonstrations, witnesses said, while authorities freed some people arrested after earlier protests. President Omar al-Bashir ordered the release of female detainees, and a judge in Khartoum threw out charges against 19 people who were among hundreds rounded up after deadly protests sparked by fuel price hikes in late September, a lawyer said. The latest demonstrations occurred in various parts of Sinnar town, an agricultural centre about 250 kilometres (155 miles) southeast of Khartoum, witnesses said, adding that police fired tear gas. Up to 300 demonstrators also called for freedom and justice in Shambat, a poor district of North Khartoum, another witness said. Shambat has been the scene of several demonstrations since September 23, when the government cut fuel subsidies, sending thousands into the streets in the worst urban unrest of Bashir's 24-year rule. State radio reported on Sunday night that Bashir ordered the release of "all the women arrested except those accused of a crime".

In two operations nearly 3,000 miles apart, U.S. military forces went after two high-value targets over the weekend. And while officials have yet to say whether the operations were coordinated or directly related, they show Washington's reach, capability and willingness to pursue alleged terrorists.

One operation took place Saturday in the Libyan capital of Tripoli, when U.S. forces captured Abu Anas al Libi, an al Qaeda leader wanted for his role in the deadly 1998 bombings of two U.S. embassies in Africa. As al Libi was leaving his house for morning prayers, a group of 10 masked men surprised him, a source close to Libyan intelligence said. Citing al Libi's wife, the source said the al Qaeda leader tried to reach into his car to grab his gun -- but the U.S. forces quickly snatched him. In the second raid, a team of U.S. Navy SEALs in southern Somalia targeted the top leader of Al-Shabaab, which was behind last month's mall attack in Kenya. The SEALs came under fire and had to withdraw before they could confirm whether they killed their target, a senior U.S. official said.

Headline: Boehner says U.S. on path to default if Obama won't negotiate

Congress is playing with fire. If the US government, for the first time in its history, chooses not to pay its bills on time, we will be in default," said Mr Lew. "Anyone who thinks that the United States government not paying its bills is anything less than default hasn't thought about it very clearly," he told NBC's Meet the Press. Mr Lew said the treasury had already exhausted its normal funds in May and has been "creating room" by resorting to one-off tricks, but these, too, have run dry. The government will have just $30bn by October 17, half what is needed to cover immediate needs over subsequent days. "That is a dangerously low level of cash, and we're on the verge of going into a place we've never been. Even getting close to the line is dangerous," he said. Mr Lew's dramatic comments mark a further escalation in the game of chicken on Capitol Hill. They suggest that the White House has for now ruled out a drastic fiscal squeeze to balance the books if there is no deal, and is unwilling to contemplate exotic loopholes – such as a $2 trillion platinum coin – to circumvent the will of Congress.

Headline: China tells US to avoid debt crisis for sake of global economy

U.S. stocks dropped on Monday as the partial U.S. government shutdown dragged on with no signs politicians were willing to relax positions over the debt-ceiling limit or budget impasse. Republican House Speaker John Boehner vowed on Sunday not to raise the U.S. debt ceiling without a "serious conversation" about what is driving the debt, while Democrats said it was irresponsible and reckless to raise the possibility of a U.S. default. The United States faces a deadline of Oct. 17 to raise its $16.7 trillion debt limit or risk an unprecedented debt default. The two issues of emergency funding for the government to operate and increase the U.S. borrowing authority started out separately in the House but have been merged by the pressure of time. "Now you've got not only the budget but the debt ceiling and time is running out and everybody knows it, including (the politicians)," said Terry Morris, senior vice president and senior equity manager for National Penn Investors Trust Company in Reading, Pennsylvania. "The longer this goes on, the more the uncertainty, the closer the deadline and the more nervous investors are going to be." The S&P 500 has fallen for two straight weeks and is down nearly 3 percent from its all-time high of 1,725.52 on concerns about the effect of Washington dysfunction on the economy.

Headline: World Bank cuts China, East Asia growth forecasts

The World Bank lowered its 2013 and 2014 economic growth forecasts for China and most of developing East Asia on Monday, citing slower growth in the world's most populous nation as well as weaker commodity prices that have hurt exports and investments in countries such as Indonesia. "Developing East Asia is expanding at a slower pace as China shifts from an export-oriented economy and focuses on domestic demand," the World Bank said in its latest East Asia Pacific Economic Update report. "Growth in larger middle-income countries including Indonesia, Malaysia, and Thailand is also softening in light of lower investment, lower global commodity prices and lower-than-expected growth of exports," it added. The Washington-based development bank now expects developing East Asia to expand by 7.1 percent this year and by 7.2 percent in 2014, down from its April estimate of 7.8 percent and 7.6 percent, respectively.

CHINA LOCAL GOVERNMENT DEBT A CONCERN

On China, the World Bank said the massive, investment-heavy stimulus program supported by credit expansion had run its course, and policymakers must focus on containing the rapid growth of credit and tighten financial supervision. It added local government debt was a concern, given the complexity and opacity of municipal finances, and said they should be reformed "with clear rules on borrowing, on allowed sources of borrowing, on debt resolution, and on the disclosure of comprehensive financial accounts by local governments". "The rapid expansion of shadow banking poses serious challenges, since shadow banking is closely linked to the banking system, is less regulated, and operates with implicit guarantees from banks and local governments," the World Bank said.

Headline: North Korea Threatens Pre-Emptive Strikes against South Korea and US

North Korea has threatened to launch strikes against its enemy South Korea and the US, to pre-empt an attack by the two countries on its nuclear facilities. The threat follows an agreement between Seoul and Washington over the introduction of nuclear deterrents against Pyongyang. Under the US-South Korea agreement, the two countries vowed to attack North Korea if there are indications it will use its nuclear weapons. The strategy is being dubbed as "customised deterrence". North Korea has denounced the agreement and said it will not hesitate to attack US and South Korean interests if they resort to "such military provocations". The North Korean spokesperson added: "If our enemies try to threaten us in the slightest, the country will launch ruthless pre-emptive strikes of annihilation." Meanwhile a statement from the Committee for the

Peaceful Reunification of Korea (CPRK), carried by the state-run Korean Central News Agency (KCNA), claimed that "the military plot aims to derail the ongoing peace process and dialogue on the Korean Peninsula and can fuel tensions that can lead to a nuclear conflict."

India has successfully launched a domestically produced missile capable of carrying a nuclear warhead. Indian military sources said Prithvi II was fired from the Integrated Test Range at Chandipur, some 15 kilometers (about 9.5 miles) from Balasore District of the eastern state of Odisha, around 9.15 a.m. local time on Monday. "The test-firing of the missile, randomly chosen from the stock, was successful," Xinhua news agency cited the Indian sources. The surface-to-surface missile, with a strike range of 350 kilometers, is capable of carrying nuclear warheads of up to 1,000 kilograms. Prithvi II, which was developed by state-owned Defense Research and Development Organization, has already been inducted into the Indian army.

Headline: Holy Fukushima: Fish Caught Near Fukushima Hitting Japanese Markets

As 300 tonnes of contaminated water pours into the Pacific Ocean every day from the damaged Daiichi nuclear plant site, alarming reports that fisherman have now resumed commercial operations are hitting the news. That's right, Japanese families are now being served sea life from the same coast as the Daiichi disaster. This cannot be good. Check out this report from Mainichi: Fishery products caught off Fukushima Prefecture were ready for trial sale as early as Sept. 26 after fisheries cooperatives here resumed test fishing the day before. Some 5.2 tons of 11 varieties of fish — including octopus, horsehair crab, blackbelly rosefish and angler — were landed at the Matsukawaura Port in Soma, northern Fukushima Prefecture, after 21 dragnet fishing boats returned there on the afternoon of Sept. 25. After screening the catches for radioactive materials, the seafood is to go on trial sale at supermarkets and other retailers as early as Sept. 26. The details of what this testing involves, or what levels have been deemed acceptable for consumption have not been made clear, but if Japan is anything like North America, which has simply just raised the amount of many toxic and radioactive materials allowed in food, then this new development in the ongoing Fukushima disaster cannot be good.

Headline: Bible oath could be scrapped from courts

Magistrates will debate scrapping the religious oath for witnesses and defendants, but critics have raised fears the move could further erode the Christian heritage of Britain. Instead all those giving evidence in court would make a secular pledge which it is thought would make it fairer and more relevant for people to help them understand the importance of what they are saying. The proposals are to be debated this month by the Magistrates' Association, and if agreed will be put forward to the Ministry of Justice. Ian Abrahams, a magistrate from Bristol, said he had often seen people shrug their shoulders when presented with the religious oath, not caring that they are being asked to swear on the bible. Under his proposals all holy books of all religions would be removed and people would instead read an affirmation promising “very sincerely” to tell the truth.

Headline: Catholic priests in military face arrest for celebrating Mass

In a stunning development, some military priests are facing arrest if they celebrate mass or practice their faith on military bases during the federal government shutdown. “With the government shutdown, many [government service] and contract priests who minister to Catholics on military bases worldwide are not permitted to work – not even to volunteer,” wrote John Schlageter, the general counsel for the Archdiocese for the Military Services USA, in an op-ed this week. “During the shutdown, it is illegal for them to minister on base and they risk being arrested if they attempt to do so.” According to its website, the Archdiocese for the Military Services “provides the Catholic Church’s full range of pastoral ministries and spiritual services to those in the United States Armed Forces.” In his piece, Schlageter worries about this restriction as Sunday nears. “If the government shutdown continues through the weekend, there will be no Catholic priest to celebrate Mass this Sunday in the chapels at some U.S. military installations where non-active-duty priests serve as government contractors,” he wrote. Because of the lack of active-duty Catholic chaplains, the military relies on hiring civilian priests to serve as government service and contract ministers. Those civilian priests are not allowed on the bases during a shutdown, Schlageter wrote.

Herdsmen killed 15 Christians in Nigeria’s Kaduna state early Saturday morning when Fulani Muslims assaulted the Christian village of Zangang. The Fulani Muslims laid siege to the village while attacking Christians with guns and burning down their houses, Nkut said. Nkut, pastor of an Evangelical Church in Zankan, said the gunmen also had machetes and knives. Kumai Badu, chairman of the Kaura Local Government Council, told Morning Star News by phone that in addition to the 15 Christians killed, others were wounded and hundreds more displaced. The attack was the third time this year that Muslim herdsmen had attacked Christians and destroyed their property in Zangang village.

Headline: Now MasterCard Wants Your Fingerprints...

Earlier this week, USA Today reported that massive payment processor MasterCard had joined the FIDO alliance. FIDO is an acronym for Fast IDentity Online. USA Today reports that: SAN FRANCISCO — MasterCard is joining the FIDO Alliance, signaling that the payment network is getting interested in using fingerprints and other biometric data to identify people for online payments. MasterCard will be the first major payment network to join FIDO. The Alliance is developing an open industry standard for biometric data such as fingerprints to be used for identification online. The goal is to replace clunky passwords and take friction out of logging on and purchasing using mobile devices. It's for your own good, and it'll probably fight terrorism too! Apple's new iPhone 5s smartphone has a fingerprint sensor, but the tech giant is not part of FIDO. However, Google is part of the Alliance, and devices running Google's Android operating system will have fingerprint sensors by next year. I'm sure the folks at the Department of Homeland Security will be more than happy that the financial giant will make mass collection under its Biometric Optical Surveillance System (BOSS) that much easier.

Headline: Lightning strikes killed 32 people, including nine children, during weekend storms in India

Lightning strikes killed 32 people, including nine children, during storms at the weekend in India. It is not rare for lightning to strike someone when it is monsoon season, but that the sheer number of the death toll is extremely rare. The strikes killed people in the eastern Indian states of Bihar and Jharkhand. 'About 24 people including seven children were killed Saturday and Sunday by bolts of lightning across Bihar,' State Disaster Management Minister Renu Kumari Kushwaha said.

In neighbouring Jharkhand, eight people including two children died, Puran Mahto, an official in the state's Dhanbad district said. The high death toll is extremely unusual - on average three people die in the UK each year from lightning strikes, while in the US 30 people a year are usually killed.

Though lightning strikes during the June-October monsoon season are common, the weekend toll was unusually high. Villagers housed in bamboo-and-grass huts are generally most at risk.

Last June 27 people were killed in Bihar following lightning strikes and more than two dozen sustained serious burn injuries. Nalanda and Aurangabad districts reported six deaths each, Rohtas four, Shekhpura and Nawada three each, and Gaya and Bhojpur two each. One death was reported from Kaimur.

Extreme weather conditions — both natural and man-made — are ruining the October "Golden Week" for many Chinese travelers and threatening the lives and livelihoods of people in the path of a typhoon packing winds of up to 94 mph. More than 400,000 residents and tourists in southeast China had been evacuated by Sunday afternoon as high waves pounded the coast ahead of Typhoon Fitow, state news agency Xinhua reported. China's National Meteorological Center predicted the "strong" typhoon would hit between Zhejiang and Fujian provinces in southeast China early Monday morning local time. Meanwhile, a dense haze of pollution and fog covered most of northern China on Sunday, shutting dozens of major highways, Xinhua reported. The smog reached such a hazardous level, even for China's long-suffering capital, that the U.S. Embassy sent an e-mail alert to American citizens in Beijing, advising they stay indoors and keep their air purifiers on.

The Arab Spring in Prophecy

(Perilous Times Luke 21:9 & Nation against Nation, Kingdom against Kingdom Matt.24:7)

(Revelation 6:3-4 Revelation 6:8)

Mark 13:8

CIVIL

Luke 21:9 and Matthew 24:7 speak of nation against nation and kingdom against kingdom in the end times. Revelation 6:3-4 speaks of the fiery red horse given power to make men slay one another and Revelation 6:8 speaks again of this red horse in conjunction with the pale horse of Death and Hades, as the one that has the power to kill by sword. I like to call this “The Arab Spring in Prophecy” because for us it is easy to identify- that’s what the world calls it.

Luke 21:9: wars & commotions; the Greek word here is Akatastasia, meaning instability, a state of disorder, disturbance, confusion (revolutions)

Matthew 24:7: the Greek word for nation is Ethnos & refers to various ethnic groups fighting among themselves, where the next sentence in the verse refers to kingdoms (basileiva) fighting one another (not to be confused with an actual kingdom but rather the right or authority to rule over a kingdom) I have tried to separate it into areas that sweep EAST from the point of North America.

Thousands of people have taken to the streets of Mexico City to protest against reforms proposed by Mexican President Enrique Pena Nieto. On Sunday, around 12,500 people staged a demonstration to protest Nieto's plans to inject foreign capital into the state-owned oil industry. The demonstration was mainly a reply to a call by the leftist opposition leader, Andres Lopez Obrador for rallying peacefully against the plans. "They want to share out with foreign oil companies, the earnings of the people, the nation," said Lopez Obrador, calling the plan an affront to Mexican sovereignty. On October 1, hundreds of Mexican teachers staged a new protest in the country and blocked the main road to Mexico City's international airport.

Headline: Islamists shell Gao in northern Mali

Armed Islamic extremists on Monday shelled Gao, the largest town in northern Mali, wounding at least one Malian soldier, military sources told AFP, two days after regional peace talks resumed.

"The Islamists lobbed shells on the town of Gao from a distance. For the moment, I cannot say whether there were victims or not," a Malian general staff officer told AFP, asking not to be named.

"Troops were at once sent to the place where the shell-fire was coming from," the source added.

The violence followed the resumption on Saturday of talks between the government of the vast west African country and Tuareg separatist rebels and two associated Arab bodies in Burkina Faso's capital Ouagadougou. Two Gao residents told AFP that Monday's shells came from a place called Bourem, to the north of the city in the desert. The blasts came nine days after a suicide attack in Timbuktu, the other main town in the north of Mali, which killed at least two civilians, wounded seven soldiers and killed the four bombers, according to the government. Responsibility for the Timbuktu attack was claimed by Al-Qaeda in the Islamic Maghreb (AQIM), which emerged in Algeria and operates across borders in the sub-Saharan Sahel region.

The anti-bifurcation agitation in coastal Andhra and Rayalaseema regions took a turn for the worse with police imposing curfew and issuing shoot-at-sight orders in the north coastal Andhra town of Vizianagaram following large-scale violence in the past three days, even as six districts in Seemandhra went without power on Sunday with employees of power utilities joining the strike. According to D. Tirumala Rao, Inspector General of Police (North Coastal Zone), the decision to impose curfew was taken after the situation threatened to spiral out of control with angry agitators indulging in arson and damaging public and private properties. The mobs also set fire to a bank, he said, adding people have been asked not to come out on the roads without permission. The state Congress chief and Transport Minister Botsa Satyanarayana hails from Vizianagaram, and the anti-division agitators have been targeting his residence in the town. Additional police forces have been deployed in the town to bring the situation under control. On Sunday, despite the curfew and shoot-at-sight orders, violence continued in the town with agitators taking to the streets and pelting stones and targeting an engineering college reportedly run by the family of Satyanarayana. Police fired rubber bullets at the mobs, lobbed tear-gas shells and cane-charge to disperse the angry mobs in various parts of the town.
